Endless Chain (An).

BY PANSY. Every one who takes up this new story will have an irresistible inclination to read the next page, and the next, and so on until the finis. It is a peculiarity of "Pansy's" books that they have the freshness as well as the healthfulness of the sea winds in June, and are as natural and acceptable and wholesome. This is the explanation of their marvellous popularity; and the explanation itself is explained by the fact that Mrs. Alden derives the inspiration for all of her work from a cheerful, living, trustful faith in the Master to whose service she consecrates her best efforts. Illustrated, 12mo, $1.50.

New Books and New Editions

Arranged Alphabetically by Names of Authors and Titles of Series.

Rev. Alex. V. G. Allen, D. D.

Continuity of Christian Thought. By Rev. Alex. V. G. Allen, D. D., Professor of Ecclesiastical History in the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, Mass. 1 vol. 1 2mo.

A book of noble aim and admirable execution. It contains a careful survey of the history of religious thought since the begin ning of the Christian era, and points out the disappearance of ce tain simple but essential features under the dominance of the Reman Church, and the reappearance of these in the nineteen century to revolutionize the realm of religious ideas, not by the tagonisms of theology, but by the restoration of the simplicity the early Christian days. The great value of the work as a study of religious history is even surpassed by its value as suggesting the power and vitality and breadth of the religious thought and fail which are to conquer and transform the world.

Thirty Portraits of American Authors.

A handsome volume containing portraits of thirty famous American writers, — Agassiz, Aldrich, Bryant, John Burrough Alice and Phœbe Cary, Joseph Cook, Cooper, Emerson Fields, Fiske, Bret Harte, Hawthorne, Holmes, Howelf James, Sarah Orne Jewett, Lucy Larcom, Longfellow, Lowel Parton, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Scudder, Stedman, Hart Beecher Stowe, Bayard Taylor, Celia Thaxter, Thoreau, Waner, Whipple, Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney, Whittier. Many these portraits are new, and are by the best engravers America. All are carefully printed on the best of paper, and are accompanied by brief biographical sketches of the authorized and some account of their writings. I vol. quarto.

American Commonwealths.

Edited by Horace E. Scudder.

This series meets so fully and exactly the demand for an historical portraiture of those States of the Union whose origin or development has been remarkable in important respects, that its popularity was inevitable. The volumes already issued are:—

VIRGINIA: A History of the People. By JOHN ESTEN COOKE.

OREGON: The Struggle for Possession. By WILLIAM BARROWS.

Each of these contains a Map. 16mo, $1.25. During the autumn the following volumes will appear:—

MARYLAND. By WILLIAM HAND Browne, Associate of Johns Hopkins University.

Kentucky. By Nathaniel Southgate Shaler, Professor of Geology in Harvard University, and Director of the State Geological Survey of Kentucky.

CALIFORNIA. By Josiah Royce, Ph. D., recently Instructor in English Literature in the University of California; now Instructor of Philosophy in Harvard University.

Kansas. By Leverett W. Spring, Professor of English Literature in the University of Kansas.

Each of these writers is exceptionally qualified for the work assigned him, by familiar knowledge of the annals of the State, appreciation of what should be included in a popular yet accurate history, and literary skill to make the book equally attractive and valuable. The same may be said of the gentlemen who have in preparation similar histories of the following States:—

Connecticut. By Prof. Alexander Johnston.

South Carolina. By Hon. William H. Trescot.

PENNSYLVANIA. By Hon. WAYNE McVEAGH.

TENNESSEE. By JAMES PHELAN, Ph. D.

New York. By Hon. Ellis H. Roberts.

MICHIGAN. By Judge T. M. COOLEY.

Further announcements will be made later.

American Men of Letters.

Brief biographies of persons distinguished in American literature. Edited by Charles Dudley Warner.

The following volumes have already appeared in this series: —

WASHINGTON IRVING. By CHARLES DUDLEY WARNER.

NOAH WEBSTER. By HORACE E. SCUDDER.

HENRY D. THOREAU. By FRANK B. SANBORN.

GEORGE RIPLEY. By O. B. FROTHINGHAM.

JAMES FENIMORE COOPER. By T. R. LOUNSBURY.

MARGARET FULLER OSSOLI. By T. W. HIGGINSON.

Each with a fine Steel Portrait of the subject. 16mo, gilt top. $1.25.

The following volumes will probably be added to the series this season:—

RALPH WALDO EMERSON. By OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

EDMUND QUINCY. By SYDNEY HOWARD GAY.

EDGAR A. POE. By GEORGE E. WOODBERRY.

We are justified in anticipating a book of remarkable interest on Emerson by Dr. Holmes. The brief address made by Dr. Holmes at a meeting of the Massachusetts Historical Society soon after Mr. Emerson's death evinced a most intimate knowledge of his character and works and a noble appreciation of both. With such a subject, the Autocrat of the Breakfast Table will be even wiser and more engaging than ever before, if that be possible.

Mr. Sydney Howard Gay was closely associated with Edmund Quincy, so that he can do justice to his sterling character and rare humor, as well as to his admirable contributions to American literature.

Mr. Woodberry in preparing his Life of Poe will have the advantage of much new material, notably many letters from Poe to Mr. Lowell. His admirable scholarship and remarkable critical acumen cannot fail to make his book peculiarly valuable.

Other volumes are promised for this series, as follows:—

WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT. By JOHN BIGELOW.

NATHANIEL P. WILLIS. By HENRY A. BEERS.

NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE. By JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL

BAYARD TAYLOR. By JOHN R. G. HASSARD.

WILLIAM GILMORE SIMMS. By GEORGE W. CABLE.

Benjamin Franklin. By John Bach McMaster.

American Statesmen.

Brief biographies of men famous in the political history of the United States. Edited by John T. Morse, Jr.

The popular favor with which the books of this series have been received has been very marked. They have given the history of the country during the years when the statesmen commemorated were conspicuous figures in American politics, and have described the part borne and the influence exerted by them, so that the books have at once great value as history and the special charm which belongs to the best biography. The following volumes have already appeared:—

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS. By JOHN T. MORSE, JR.

ALEXANDER HAMILTON. By HENRY CABOT LODGE.

JOHN C. CALHOUN. By Dr. H. von Holst.

Andrew Jackson. By Wm. G. Sumner.

JOHN RANDOLPH. By HENRY ADAMS.

James Monroe. By D. C. Gilman.

THOMAS JEFFERSON. By JOHN T. MORSE, JR.

Daniel Webster. By Henry Cabot Lodge.

Albert Gallatin. By John Austin Stevens.

JOHN ADAMS. By JOHN T. MORSE, JR.

JAMES MADISON. By SYDNEY HOWARD GAY.

The excellence of Mr. Morse's previous contributions to this series assures a work of great interest on John Adams, who is one of the most striking figures in American history.

The "Popular History of the United States," in preparing which Mr. Gay had so important a share, justifies us in anticipating a book on Madison which will be a substantial and attractive addition to the series.

Other volumes are in preparation, as follows: —

MARTIN VAN BUREN. By WILLIAM DORSHEIMER.

HENRY CLAY. By CARL SCHURZ.

SAMUEL ADAMS. By JOHN FISKE.

Hans Christian Andersen.

A new and cheaper edition of the works of Hans Christian An-Dersen, as follows:—

THE IMPROVISATORE; OR, LIFE IN ITALY.

THE Two Baronesses. A Romance of Denmark.

O. T.; OR, LIFE IN DENMARK.

ONLY A FIDDLER. A Danish Romance.

In Spain and Portugal.

A POET'S BAZAAR. A Picturesque Tour in Germany, Italy, Greece, and the Orient.

PICTURES OF TRAVEL. In Sweden, among the Hartz Mountains, and in Switzerland, with a visit to Charles Dickens.

THE STORY OF MY LIFE. With Portrait.

Wonder Stories told for Children. Illustrated.

Stories and Tales. Illustrated.

In ten volumes, 12mo, tastefully bound.

Sold only in sets. Price, $10.00; half calf, $25.00.

This is a cheap, yet excellent and tasteful, new edition of these charming stories, which delight American readers, old and young hardly less than they delighted the Scandinavian readers for whom they were primarily written. The low price at which they are now to be published ought to secure for them a new and universal lesse of popularity.

William Henry Bishop.

Choy Susan, and Other Stories. By William Henry Bishon, author of "The House of a Merchant Prince," etc. 1 vol. 16mo.

CONTENTS: Choy Susan; The Battle of Bunkerloo; Deodand Braxton's New Art; One of the Thirty Pieces; McIntyre's Fals Face; Miss Calderon's German.

Mr. Bishop is one of the most successful of American writers short stories. Indeed, he has gained from the admirable sho stories he has written nearly as much reputation and as hearty welcome among American readers as from the excellent novels has published. He has chosen the most striking of his stories the volume above named.

Björnstjerne Björnson.

The Novels of Björnstjerne Bjornson. New and Cheape Edition. In 3 volumes, 12mo. Sold only in sets.

Vol. I. Synnöve Solbakken, Arne, The Railroad and to Churchyard, Thrond, A Dangerous Wooing, The Be Hunt, The Father, The Eagle's Nest.

Vol. II. A Happy Boy, The Fisher Maiden, Blakken, Fidels
A Problem of Life.

Vol. III. THE BRIDAL MARCH, CAPTAIN MANSANA, MAGNHU Dust.

Björnson is beyond comparison the most famous of living Scalinavian writers. His stories take us to new scenes and introduct us to people and customs peculiarly simple and engaging. I London Spectator, speaking of one of his stories, mentions characteristics largely belonging to all: "The freshness of the Not mountain air breathes through its open pages; the simplicity of Norse peasant's life, in its frame of gorgeous scenery, stands out like a picture before the mind's eye as one reads. In that land of fell and fjord, where, in all the remoter places, the sounds of the threshing-machine and railway are unknown, where towns are few and far between, and the quiet people live in peaceable habitations, each with his own fields around his door and his own sheep's wool on his back, the tangled complications of our vast civilization, all necessary for the conventional 'plot,' are unknown."

Anne C. Lynch Botta.

*A Hand-Book of Universal Literature. From the Best and Latest Authorities. By Anne C. Lynch Botta. A New and Carefully Revised Edition. 12mo, $2.00.

Mrs. Botta has just made a very thorough revision of this book, and brought it down to date in its references to writers and their works. Her Hand-Book has for years been recognized as an admirable outline of the world's literature, embracing a general view of the literary achievements of all nations which have contributed in any considerable degree to the intellectual enrichment of mankind: Hebrew, Syriac, Chaldaic, Phœnician, Hindoo, Persian, Chinese, Egyptian, Greek, Roman, Arabian, Italian, French, Spanish, Portuguese, Finnish, Hungarian, Turkish, Armenian, Slavic, Scandinavian, German, Dutch, English, and American.

John Burroughs.

FRESH FIELDS. A new volume by John Burroughs, author of "Wake Robin," "Winter Sunshine," "Birds and Poets," "Locusts and Wild Honey," and "Pepacton." I vol. 16mo, uniform with his other books. $1.50.

CONTENTS: Nature in England; English Woods; A Contrast; In Carlyle's Country; A Hunt for the Nightingale; English and American Song Birds; Impressions of some English Birds; In Wordsworth's Country; A Glimpse of English Wild Flowers; British Fertility; A Sunday in Cheyne Row; At Sea.

A book of remarkable attractiveness for all lovers of nature. It merits the praise given to others of Mr. Burroughs's books by the London Saturday Review, which speaks of Mr. Burroughs as "of the same breed as Gilbert White of Selborne, as Audubon, as Thoreau; and he combines their exactitude of observation, their scientific sympathy, with more careful study of style than they chose to give in jotting down their impressions. . . . It is the manly simplicity of style which gives it so great a charm. . . . We have very seldom the pleasure of meeting with two little volumes which we can commend to our readers so entirely without reserve as these " [" Wake Robin" and "Locusts and Wild Honey"].

Joseph Cook.

OCCIDENT. With Preludes on Current Events. Ninth Volume of Boston Monday Lectures. By Joseph Cook. 12mo, $1.50.

Contents: Lectures, — Advanced Thought in England; Advanced Thought in Germany; Delitzsch on the New Criticism of the Old Testament; Professor Zöllner's Views on Spiritualism; Opponents of Professor Zöllner's Views on Spiritualism; Advanced Thought in Italy and Greece. Preludes, — New Departures in and from Orthodoxy; Does Death end Probation? The Future of Civil Service Reform; The Vanguards of Christian Missions; American and Foreign Temperance Creeds; Probation at Death. Appendix, — The Decline of Rationalism in the German Universities; Theodore Christlieb and German Church Life; The New House and its Battlement, or, The Relations of the Temperance Reform to Civil Liberty (a Lecture in the Metropolitan Tabernacle, London); Reply to Professor Smyth, of Andover; A Night on the Acropolis; or, Art and History at Athens.

Of the force, the effectiveness, and the rhetorical brilliancy of these Lectures and Preludes, it is quite unnecessary to speak. Those who have read or heard Mr. Cook, as almost everybody has, need no description of his vigor, dash, and generous equipment for oratory; and they certainly do not require any suggestion to read whatever new book he gives to the world.

In Preparation.

ORIENT. With Preludes on Current Events. Tenth Volume of Boston Monday Lectures. By Joseph Cook.

J. Fenimore Cooper.

SEA TALES. By J. FENIMORE COOPER. Second Series. Including JACK TIER, THE SEA LIONS, AFLOAT AND ASHORE, MILES WALLINGFORD, THE CRATER. 5 vols. 12mo, tastefully bound, $5.00.

This series and the first, including "The Pilot," "The Red Rover," "Wing and Wing," "The Two Admirals," and "The Water Witch," comprise all of Cooper's famous "Sea Tales," which drew from a well-known English critic the remark that "the power with which the scenes on the waste of waters are depicted, and the living interest with which Cooper invests every particle of a ship, as if it were all an intelligent being, cannot be excelled." And the Edinburgh Review said of Cooper, "The empire of the sea has been conceded to him by acclamation."

NOVELS. By J. FENIMORE COOPER. New Edition in a fresh and attractive binding. In 32 volumes, 16mo, $1.00 each; the set, $32.00; half calf, $80.00.

A very desirable edition of Cooper's works, which are so American and so interesting that they should have an honored place in every public and every private library.

F. Marion Crawford.

An American Politician. A Novel, by F. Marion Crawford, author of "Mr. Isaacs," "A Roman Singer," etc. 1 vol. 16mo.

This is a story which appeals in the most direct manner to every intelligent American. It is a story of American life, society, and politics of to-day; not, indeed, the singular politics of the current Presidential campaign, but touching political topics in which hosts of people must be interested, and including other and tenderer themes of which Mr. Crawford writes very attractively. The story cannot fail to create much discussion and engage general attention.

The Elizabethan Dramatists.

THE WORKS OF CHRISTOPHER MARLOWE. Edited by A. H. Bul-LEN, B. A. In three volumes, 8vo, each, $3.00. *Large paper, $4.00.

These are the first volumes of a handsome library edition of the works of the Elizabethan Dramatists. Their works, once so much read, are now difficult to procure; and it is believed that the appearance of this tasteful edition will be heartily welcomed. Mr. A. H. Bullen, an intelligent and careful student of the literature of the Elizabethan period, has prepared the plays of Marlowe for publication. The works of Thomas Middleton will follow.

Ralph Waldo Emerson.

POEMS. By RALPH WALDO EMERSON. Household Edition. Bound in uniform style with new Household Edition of Longfellow, Whittier, Holmes, Lowell, etc. With Portrait. 1 vol. 12mo, $2.00; half calf, $4.00; tree calf, or morocco, $5.00.

THE EMERSON CALENDAR FOR 1885. Containing for each day of the year selections from the writings of RALPH WALDO EMERSON. Mounted on a handsomely decorated card, after a design by Miss Florence Taber, printed in colors, and having a portrait of Mr. Emerson. $1.00.

The selections from Mr. Emerson's writings for this Calendar are largely different from those in the Calendar for 1884, and the card on which it is mounted has an entirely new design, which cannot fail to please Mr. Emerson's admirers.

John Fiske.

THE DESTINY OF MAN, VIEWED IN THE LIGHT OF HIS ORIGIN. By JOHN FISKE, author of "Outlines of Cosmic Philosophy," "The Unseen World," "Excursions of an Evolutionist," etc. 16mo.

The substance of this little volume was read by Mr. Fiske before the Concord School of Philosophy. It treats a great theme in a noble and adequate manner. It applies the principles of evolution to man's origin and destiny, and finds in the facts and prophetic developments of man's earthly career strong arguments for his immortality. The reverent spirit of the book, the wide range of illustration, the remarkable lucidity of thought and style, and the noble eloquence that characterizes it, render this book one of striking value and interest.

Gentleman's Magazine Library.

Being a Classified Collection of the Chief Contents of the "Gentleman's Magazine" from 1731 to 1868. Edited by G. LAN RENCE GOMME, F. S. A. In fourteen volumes.

This library will reproduce the most important and permanent interesting portions of the two hundred and twenty-four volume of the "Gentleman's Magazine," which has been a notable gather of antiquarian and other curious facts. The editor will arrang and classify this mass of valuable material in volumes as follows I. MANNERS AND CUSTOMS: II. DIALECT, PROVERBS, AND WORD Lore; III. Popular Superstitions and Traditions; IV. Archa OLOGY — Geological and Pre-Historic; V. ARCHÆOLOGY — Roman and Saxon; VI. Archæology — Foreign and Later English; VII. Numismatics; VIII. Historical Antiquities; IX. Original LETTERS; X. TOPOGRAPHY; XI. LITERARY CURIOSITIES; XII. B OGRAPHY AND FAMILY HISTORY; XIII. NATURAL HISTORY; XIV This arrangement puts the reader in pos Anecdote and Humor. session of such a fund of entertaining information as has rarely been placed at his disposal, either for continuous and systematic reading on topics interesting at all periods, or for the occupation of odd half-hours of leisure in profitable and pleasant recreation, or for studying quaint manners and habits now obsolete and forgottes

The first two volumes will be issued this season, each containing 300 to 350 octavo pages, printed in old-faced type, and handsome bound.

ı

Price in cloth, $2.50 a volume; * in roxburgh, $3.50; * large-paper edition, roxburgh, $6.00.

Handy-Volume Classics.

Four books of strikingly different character, but each an undisputed classic of its kind.

PARADISE LOST. By JOHN MILTON.

THE VICAR OF WAKEFIELD. By OLIVER GOLDSMITH.

Tales from Shakespeare. By Charles and Mary Lamb

THE AUTOCRAT OF THE BREAKFAST TABLE. By OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

Carefully printed, tastefully bound, in blue cloth, gilt top, rough edges, forming peculiarly elegant little books. 18mo, $1.25 each. The set, in box, $5.00.

Bret Harte.

ON THE FRONTIER. By BRET HARTE, author of "The Luck of Roaring Camp," etc. 1 vol. 18mo, Little Classic style. $1.00. Contents: At the Mission of San Carmel; A Blue Grass Penelope; Left out on Lone Star Mountain.

These three stories are altogether in the literary domain which Mr. Harte has made his own, and by his mastery in which he has won the attention and the charmed interest of all English-reading nations.

Nathaniel Hawthorne.

The complete works of NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE. Wayside Edition. In 24 volumes, 16mo. With a fine Steel Portrait of Hawthorne and 23 Etchings. Carefully printed and tastefully bound. Sold only in sets. Cloth, $36.00.

This is a beautiful and very desirable edition of Hawthorne's works. The type is sufficiently large, the page unusually attractive, the printing and binding of the best Riverside style. Of the contents happily nothing need be said; Hawthorne is one of the few American writers whom the world is glad to honor.

A Wonder Book. For Girls and Boys. By Nathaniel Hawthorne. Holiday Edition. With Illustrations by F. S. Church. 1 vol. 4to, beautifully printed and attractively bound.

Readers of Hawthorne will remember that the Wonder Book contains several classic myths and legends, told in a manner to charm young and old alike. The stories told are of The Gorgon's Head, The Golden Touch, The Paradise of Children, The Three Golden Apples, The Miraculous Pitcher, and The Chimæra.

This Holiday Edition of the Wonder Book is made peculiarly attractive by many illustrations from designs by the famous artist F. S. Church, and the book will be in every respect a wonder book, sure to be in great demand for a holiday and birthday gift.

Rev. S. E. Herrick, D. D.

CONTENTS: Tauler and the Mystics; Wicklif; John Hus; Savonarola; Latimer; Cranmer; Melancthon; Knox; Calvin; Coligny; William Brewster; John Wesley.

Last winter Dr. Herrick delivered in Boston a course of lectures on some of the great religious reformers from the fourteenth century to the nineteenth. Taking them in chronological order, he described the men, their characters, their opinions, and their work in connection with the social and religious life of their times. Thus the lectures form a connected history of the leading modes and changes of theological and religious thought for over four centuries. The treatment is scholarly yet popular, and the book contains in compact and attractive form just the information about great religious leaders and their times, which multitudes of thoughtful readers desire.

Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Illustrated Poems of Oliver Wendell Holmes. With Designs by Frederic Crowninshield, Frances Houston, Frances C. Jones, H. Bolton Jones, John F. Murphy, Howard Pyle, Louis Ritter, Ross Turner, William T. Smedley, Sidney Lawton Smith, Frederic P. Vinton, and others; engraved by Andrew, Atwood, Baker, Closson, Cowee, French, Marsh, Miss Powell, Sylvester, and other well-known engravers. A beautiful volume, octavo, printed with the greatest care and tastefully bound.

The poems selected for illustration were chosen by Dr. Holmes himself, who has written an introductory poem specially for this book. Admirers of Dr. Holmes's poetry will find many of their favorite poems in the volume, printed in a sumptuous style, and made additionally attractive by designs which embellish as well as illustrate. The book will be produced in very tasteful style, and cannot fail to be a most acceptable Holiday volume.

RALPH WALDO EMERSON. In the series of American Men of Letters. By Oliver Wendell Holmes. With a Steel Portrait of Mr. Emerson. 1 vol. 16mo, gilt top. $1.25.

One of the most conspicuous characteristics of Dr. Holmes's writings is the exquisite fitness of style and treatment. Treating Emerson in this manner, how rare and delightful a book is assured! Holmes Calendar for 1885. With Selections for each Day of the Year, from the Writings of Oliver Wendell Holmes. Mounted on a beautiful decorated card, after a design by Miss Dora Wheeler, representing the Nine Muses crowning Dr. Holmes with garlands. Printed in Colors, with a fine Portrait of Dr. Holmes. $1.00.

Augustus Hoppin.

Two Compton Boys. By Augustus Hoppin, author of "Recollections of Auton House," "A Fashionable Sufferer," etc. Fully illustrated by the author. Square 16mo.

This story is of the same general character as Mr. Hoppin's "Recollections of Auton House," one of the most engaging American books for children. The author draws freely on the experiences of his boyhood and the observations of his manhood for the numerous incidents that make up the story of "Two Compton Boys," and his cunning pencil contributes a multitude of pictures to render the story more effective.

Samuel Johnson.

ORIENTAL RELIGIONS, and their Relation to Universal Religion.
Persia. By Samuel Johnson. With an Introduction by O.
B. Frothingham. 1 vol. 8vo, $5.00.

This volume completes the great work to which Mr. Johnson devoted himself with singular patience and energy. His plan contemplated a careful and sympathetic survey of the great religious systems of the East, — of India, China, and Persia. The first two volumes have been before the public for several years, and have won, from those critics most competent justly to estimate their merits, very hearty commendation for the thoroughness and accuracy with which they treated all topics that could elucidate their central theme. Mr. Johnson died before finishing the third volume, on Persia; but as it lacked hardly more than the verification of references and some comparatively unimportant additions, these have been very carefully attended to, and Rev. O. B. Frothingham prefaces the volume with an Introduction. This, like the two other volumes, is a most valuable contribution to the study of Comparative Religion, and is a work of surpassing interest.

Florence Kelley.

TWENTY LETTERS FROM ENGLAND, concerning the Life of English Workers, and the Laws under which they Work. By FLORENCE KELLEY. 1 vol. 16mo.

Miss Kelley unites in these Letters some of the characteristics of the better books of travel with a careful study of certain features of English life which are of special interest to women and to students of social science. She describes the College for Working Women, English Industrial Art Education, The Education of the Deaf, Newnham College, and the Condition of Women at Cambridge University. Other chapters are devoted to Oxford, Birmingham, Manchester, Bradford and Saltaire, Kent in Midsummer, English Parks and Commons, etc. It is interesting as a book of travel, but has a philanthropic character which lends to it a peculiar value.

Lucy Larcom.

POEMS. By Lucy Larcom. Household Edition. Uniform in binding with the new Household Edition of Longfellow, Whittier, Holmes, Lowell, etc. 1 vol. 12mo, $2.00; half calf, $4.00; morocco, or tree calf, $5.00.

This is an entirely new edition of Miss Larcom's Poetical Works, from handsome new plates, and contains not only her poems previously published, but many pieces not included in her other volumes. In this compact and inexpensive form, it is believed that Miss Larcom's poems will reach multitudes who have not read her several volumes, but who cannot fail to have seen many single pieces of hers, and to have recognized them as exceptionally noble in spirit, sincere, and full of high cheer.

Charles Godfrey Leland.

THE ALGONQUIN LEGENDS OF NEW ENGLAND. Myths and Folk-Lore of the Micmac, Passamaquoddy, and Penobscot Tribes. By Charles G. Leland, author of "The Gypsies," etc. With Illustrations from Designs scraped upon birch bark by an Indian. I vol. 12mo.

Mr. Leland has succeeded in procuring directly from the Indians of Maine, and from other sources, a large number of legends common to the several branches of the Algonquin Tribes. The more striking of these will appear in a book with the above title, and will go far to justify Mr. Leland in his claim that these legends form, or may be regarded as portions of, an Edda which has been handed down in the traditions of the Indians for many centuries. They are exceedingly interesting, and some of them are illustrated by quaint designs originally scraped by a skillful Indian on birch bark.

Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

Longfellow Calendar for 1885. With Selections for Every Day of the Year chosen from the Writings of Henry W. Longfellow. Mounted on an attractive decorated card, designed by Mr. Frederic Crowninshield, printed in colors, and containing a Portrait of Mr. Longfellow. $1.00.

The design of the Longfellow Calendar for 1885 is entirely different from that used in the Calendars for 1883 and 1884, and the selections from Mr. Longfellow's writings are largely different.

George W. Melville.

IN THE LENA DELTA. A Retrospect and Prospect. By George W. Melville, Chief Engineer U. S. N. Edited by Melville Phillips. With Illustrations. 1 vol. 16mo.

The noble and tragic story of the Voyage of the Jeannette has been read with intense emotion by nearly all English-speaking people. The story of the search for Captain De Long and the sharers of his fate is told in the book above named with remarkable force and great narrative skill by Chief Engineer Melville, who led the expedition to its successful end. Although the public attention has recently been fixed quite frequently and with painful interest upon Arctic adventures and experiences, Mr. Melville's book tells one distinct chapter of these adventures so graphically that readers will follow it eagerly.

Dr. S. Weir Mitchell.

IN WAR TIME. By S. WEIR MITCHELL, author of "The Hill of Stones," etc. 1 vol. 16mo.

The time of this noteworthy novel is during the War for the Union, and the incidents and events of the story are largely determined by the varying conditions of that supreme conflict. The story is exceedingly interesting on this side, and also has features of great value and attractiveness in the development of the leading characters, who seem drawn from the life. Altogether, "In War Time" has elements of power and reality which make it one of the most remarkable novels of the year.

George H. Palmer.

*THE ODYSSEY OF HOMER. Books I.—XII. The Text, and an English Version in Rhythmic Prose. By George Herbert Palmer, Professor of Philosophy in Harvard University. 1 vol. 8vo, $2.50.

This book contains the translation of the first twelve books of the Odyssey, which for several years Professor Palmer has read to his classes, reproducing it in rhythmic prose, which seemed to him to keep "something of the swiftness of the ancient hexameter, its variety, its capacity of quickly taking on the color of the thought conveyed, while still retaining that power which prose alone seems to possess, — the power of impressing on us its statements of facts* This translation is peculiarly vigorous and flexible, and general readers will hardly be less charmed by it than students, — "lawyers, physicians, ministers, business men, who have not quite forgotten the Greek of their college days, and to whom the Odyssey then read is still a delightful remembrance." The Greek is given on the left-hand page and the translation on the right. is one of the best specimens of book-making yet produced at the Riverside Press, and is a noteworthy achievement of America scholarship.

James Parton.

Captains of Industry; or, Men of Business who did somethin besides Making Money. A Book for Young Americans. James Parton, author of Lives of Franklin, Jackson, Jefferst Voltaire, etc. With several portraits. 1 vol. 16mo.

Contents: David Maydole, Hammer-Maker; Ichabod Wasburn, Wire-Maker; Elihu Burritt, the Learned Blacksmith; Machael Reynolds, Engine-Driver; Major Robert Pike, Farmer George Graham, Clock-Maker; John Harrison, Exquisite Watch Maker; Peter Faneuil, and the Great Hall he Built; Chauncey Jerome, Yankee Clock-Maker; Captain Pierre Laclede Liguest, Pierre Israel Putnam, Farmer; George Flower, Pioneer; Edwar Coles, Noblest of the Pioneers, and his Great Speech; Peter Burnett, Banker; Gerrit Smith; Peter Force, Printer; John Brotheld, Merchant; Frederick Tudor, Ice Exporter; Myron Holle, Market-Gardener; The Founders of Lowell; Robert Owen, Con-Manufacturer; John Smedley, Stocking-Manufacturer; Rich Cobden, Calico Printer; Henry Bessemer; John Bright, Manufacturer; Thomas Edward, Cobbler and Naturalist; Robert Disaber and Naturalist; John Duncan, Weaver and Botanist; Jan

Lackington, Second-Hand Bookseller; Horace Greeley's Start; James Gordon Bennett, and how he founded his "Herald;" Three John Walters, and their Newspaper; George Hope; Sir Henry Cole; Charles Summers; William B. Astor, House-Owner; Peter Cooper; Paris-Duverney, French Financier; Sir Rowland Hill; Marie-Antoine Carème, French Cook; Wonderful Walker, Parson of all Work; Sir Christopher Wren; Sir John Rennie, Engineer; Sir Moses Montefiore; Marquis of Worcester, Inventor of the Steam-Engine; An Old Merchant's Recollections.

The title of Mr. Parton's book and the table of contents indicate very clearly the scope of the work and its equal attraction and value for young Americans.

Elizabeth Stuart Phelps.

Songs of the Silent Land. Poems, by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, author of "The Gates Ajar," "Beyond the Gates," "Men, Women, and Ghosts," etc. 1 vol. 16mo.

The title Miss Phelps has chosen for her new book of poems fill suggest, especially to readers of her notable book "The Gates ljar," and of the still more remarkable book "Beyond the Gates," ome hint of their subject and character. They invite the reader realms of thought and imagination not often attempted by poets, ut with a reverence so profound, a hope so exalted, and a faith so rong that one is lifted into a nobler appreciation of life and a lore vivid anticipation of the larger life which shall succeed this.

duard Reuss.

HISTORY OF THE SACRED SCRIPTURES OF THE NEW TESTAMENT. By EDUARD (WILHELM EUGEN) REUSS, Professor Ordinarius in the Evangelical Theological Faculty of the Emperor William's University, Strassburg, Germany. Translated from the Fifth Revised and Enlarged German Edition, with numerous Bibliographical Additions, by EDWARD L. HOUGHTON, A. M. 2 vols. 8vo, $5.00.

The clergy of America and all students of theology and biblical iticism will welcome this translation of a work which has become standard in Germany. It treats, with the thoroughness characristic of the great German scholars, of (1) The Origin and Develoment of a Sacred Literature of the New Testament; (2) Collecton of Sacred Books of the Christians into a whole for use in the hurches; (3) Preservation of their original form; (4) Dissemination of the collection among Christian peoples; (5) Use made of them in Theology.

Reporter Digest.

*A DIGEST OF THE REPORTER, Vols. I. to XVII. THE REPORTER includes (1) Full Reports of Important Cases in the Supreme and Circuit Courts of the United States, in the State Courts of Last Resort, and in the English and Irish Courts; (2) Condensed Reports of Cases; (3) Notes of Cases; (4) Arguments of Counsel. 1 vol. 8vo, $5.00.

This carefully-prepared Digest of Cases, with an Index to the Notes and Arguments, will put the mass of important matter contained in these seventeen volumes at the ready service of judges and lawyers, who have frequent occasion to consult them; it will also furnish an Index to the more important current decisions in the United States and Great Britain during the years covered by these volumes.

*Riverside Literature Series.

The twelve numbers already issued in this series comprise Poems and Prose Sketches by some of the most eminent American writers, — Longfellow's Evangeline, Courtship of Miles Standish and a collection of short poems; Whittier's Snow-Bound, and collection of shorter pieces; Dr. Holmes's Grandmother's Story Bunker Hill, etc.; Hawthorne's Grandfather's Chair, and Biographical Stories. To these will soon be added, —

THE SONG OF HIAWATHA. By H. W. Longfellow. Will Notes. In Two Parts. 15 cents each.

Under the Elm, and Other Poems. By James Russell Low Ell. 15 cents.

Other numbers in Preparation.

The books of this series are so excellent and so inexpensive that they are rapidly finding their way into schools, for which they are admirably adapted.

Robinson's Greek Harmony.

*A HARMONY OF THE FOUR GOSPELS IN GREEK. By EDWAR ROBINSON, D. D. New and Revised Edition, edited by Pa fessor M. B. RIDDLE, of the Hartford Theological Institute I vol. 8vo.

The admirable work of Dr. Robinson is retained in this needition, and to it Professor Riddle has added the results gained the best scholarship since Dr. Robinson prepared his volume.

Horace E. Scudder.

THE VIKING BODLEYS. By Horace E. Scudder, author of the previous Bodley Books. Fully illustrated, with an ornamental cover. 4to, $1.50.

This charming new Bodley Book describes the travels of the Bodley family in Norway. They go as far north as anybody can go, endeavoring to find their Viking ancestors among the fjords of that country. Thence they go to Denmark and visit the haunts of Hans Christian Andersen, and then return to America. The delightful story is illustrated by many pictures, and is one of the freshest and most interesting of all the fascinating Bodley Books.

A. P. Sinnett.

ESOTERIC BUDDHISM. By A. P. SINNETT, author of "The Occult World." New Edition. With an Introduction prepared expressly for the American edition, by the author. 1 vol. 16mo.

This work has created a great sensation in England, both as revealing the essential significance of the system of Buddhism, and as appealing with peculiar force to a more or less numerous class of English readers. The limited edition offered in this country some months since rather sharpened than appeared the demand for the book, which will be met by this new edition.

Edmund Clarence Stedman.

POETICAL WORKS OF EDMUND CLARENCE STEDMAN. New Household Edition, uniformly bound with the new style of the Household Longfellow, Whittier, Holmes, Lowell, etc. With a Portrait of Mr. Stedman. 1 vol. 12mo, $2.00; half calf, $4.00; morocco, or tree calf, $5.00.

Mr. Stedman's poetry is manifestly entitled to a place in any edition of the best American poetry. The poems which have hereto-fore appeared in the Farringford Edition, also those included in the volume entitled "Hawthorne and Other Poems," together with several other pieces not before collected, are embraced in a new edition, which will be brought out in uniform style with the popular Household Longfellow, Whittier, Holmes, etc.

Bayard Taylor.

Melodies of Verse. Lyrics selected from the Poetical Works of Bayard Taylor. 1 vol. 18mo, vellum, $1.00.

Many of the lyrics scattered through Bayard Taylor's poetical works are delightfully musical. A selection of these is printed in very tasteful style in a little volume bound uniform with Mr. Aldrich's "Friar Jerome," forming a beautiful gift-book.

Marie Hansen-Taylor and H. E. Scudder.

LIFE AND LETTERS OF BAYARD TAYLOR. By MARIE HANSEN-TAYLOR and HORACE E. SCUDDER. With three Portraits of Mr. Taylor, and other Illustrations. 2 vols. crown 8vo, $4.00; half calf, $8.00.

The career of Bayard Taylor is one of the most remarkable in American history. A very famous traveler and writer of books of travel, a successful novelist, a critic of unusual ability and discrimination, a poet whose great and varied achievements the world does not even yet justly appreciate, and a diplomatist, — the story of his life as told in these volumes is of singular interest. Mr. Taylor's letters furnish largely the materials for the work, and generous selections from them are incorporated in the narrative

Joseph P. Thompson.

AMERICAN COMMENTS ON EUROPEAN QUESTIONS, INTERNATIONAL AND RELIGIOUS. By JOSEPH P.: THOMPSON, D. D., author of "The United States as a Nation," etc. 1 vol. 8vo.

CONTENTS: The Drift of Europe, Christian and Social; Paparchy and Nationality; The Armament of Germany; The Intercourse of Christian with non-Christian Peoples; Concerning Treaties as Matter of the Law of Nations; On International Copyright; The Right of War Indemnity; Shall England side with Russia? What is Science? What is Religion? Christ, the Church, and the Creed; Lucretius or Paul; Final Cause, — a Critique of the Failure of Paley and the Fallacy of Hume.

Dr. Thompson was a man of so much wisdom and breadth of view that his discussion of any theme was sure to be noble and suggestive. This volume, though miscellaneous in contents, is a positive contribution to political and religious literature.

Elihu Vedder.

RUBAIYAT OF OMAR KHAYYAM. With 58 illustrations (114 by 94) inches), by Elihu Vedder. With ornamental title-page and cover designed by Mr. Vedder. 1 vol. 4to.

This is unquestionably the most original and striking illustrated book ever produced in America. For many years the wonderful verses of the Persian poet have haunted Mr. Vedder, and pictured themselves in his imagination; and now he has caught and reproduced the pictures in this volume. There are fifty full-page illustrations, largely figure-pieces, drawn with a force and grace altogether unusual. There is not a commonplace or petty picture in the book, but all have an originality of conception and a masterly sweep of execution which are in the highest degree impressive.

The binding of the book is admirably in harmony with the artist's designs, and the whole forms a gift-book of unsurpassed attractiveness.

John G. Whittier.

WHITTIER CALENDAR FOR 1885. With Selections from Mr. Whittier's Writings for Every Day of the Year. Mounted on a beautiful decorated card, designed by T. DE THULSTRUP, with ideal pictures of Maud Muller and Mabel Martin, and a Portrait of Mr. Whittier. $1.00.

The design for the Whittier Calendar for 1885 is entirely unlike that for 1884, and cannot fail to please the host of Mr. Whittier's admirers. The Selections from Mr. Whittier's Writings were chosen by Miss Lucy Larcom.

TEXT AND VERSE. Selections from the Bible and from the Writings of John G. Whittier, chosen by Gertrude W. Cartland. In dainty binding. 1 vol. 18mo.

A book of helpful passages for every day of the year. A verse from the Bible and a stanza of similar character from Mr. Whittier's Works are arranged together for each day. The spirit of Mr. Whittier's poetry renders this association altogether harmonious, and the little book furnishes a series of stimulating and consoling thoughts for the whole course of the year.

TWO NOTABLE NOVELS.

- WHERE THE BATTLE WAS FOUGHT. A Novel. By Charles Egbert Craddock, author of "In the Tennessee Mountains." 1 vol. 12mo....
 - Mr. Craddock's sketches of Southern life and character have won universal praise by their originality and freshness; and this larger work will be found to contain all their good qualities with the addition of an interesting and well-sustained plot.

A fascinating and popular work, by the author of "A Gentleman of Leisure"

- THE ADVENTURES OF A WIDOW. A Novel. By Edgar Fawcett, author of "Tinkling Cymbals," &c. 1 vol. 12mo......
- PROTECTION AND FREE TRADE TO-DAY; AT HOME AND ABROAD, IN FIELD AND WORKSHOP. By Robert P. Porter. Paper covers.....
 - Mr. Porter graphically presents what voters in both political parties want to know, the facts showing how free trade and protection works at home and abroad, in the field and the workshop. He shows how agriculture, commerce, and manufacturing in the United States, Great Britain, Germany, and Holland, have been affected by these two economic policies. Mr. Porter's work will be appreciated by business men, farmers, and artisans who have no time to read a volume on the subject, but who want a clear exposition of the condition of labor here and in European countries.

FOR THE AUTUMN OF 1884

1. A Young Girl's Wooing. By E. P. Roe.

This story, announced by Mr. Roe in 1882, was then postponed, but has now been completed and will be published in September. 12mo, uniform with his other novels, $1.50.

2. Pepys's Diary.

Samuel Pepys, as is well known, was Secretary to the Admiralty in the reigns of Charles II. and James II. He was a musician, a connoisseur in painting, architecture, and early English poetry, and of such repute for his interest in scientific investigations that he held the office of President of the Royal Society. His diary, written in cipher, was commenced in 1650, and was continued for nine years, until the defective eyesight of its author compelled its abandonness. It gives, with almost the accuracy of a photograph, a picture of the court and times of Charles II., and from the fact that it was written in cipher, it presents the events, characters, follies, goes sip, and peculiarities of the age in a fashion absolutely without restraint.

The text chosen is the rendering of Rev. Mynors Bright, M.A., President and Senior Fellow of Magdalene College, Cambridge, who in 1875 made an entirely new translation, containing about one third more matter than any edition before published. To the valuable notes contribute by Mr. Bright have been added a life and voluminous notes by Richard Lord Braybrooks, a carlier translator and annotator.

The edition of Rev. Mynors Bright was exhausted almost immediately, and has for some time been scarce.

Our edition will be in ten volumes, 16mo, substantially uniform in size and type with the NEwersley-Kingsley. In cloth, $15.00.

3. Poetical Works of Mrs. Browning.

FROM NEW ELECTROTYPE PLATES.

It is well known that there is now no edition, either English or American, worthy of the favorite author. The plates of this one have been made by Messrs. T. L. De Vinne & Co., whom it will also be printed. Paper and binding will be of the best. 5 vols., 16mo, cloth, $7.5

4. Church's Stories from the Classics.

Two New Volumes: { Stories of the Persian War. Roman Life in Days of Cicero.

Each with 16 illustrations in colors, 12mo, $1.50. Uniform with previous volumes by author, viz: "Stories from Homer," "Stories from Virgil," "Stories from Greek Tragedissis 'Stories from Livy," "Stories from Herodotus."

5. Main's C. C. C. Sonnets.

Limited, large paper edition.

Chosen and Edited with a few Notes by DAVID M. MAIN, Editor of "A Treasury of English Sonnets." Post 8vo, paper covers, $11.00. Edinburgh, 1884.

It is sufficient recommendation for this book to know that it is compiled by the Editor of "A Treasury of English Sonnets," which is by far the best compilation yet made. This selection is made up from the larger one, and 75 copies have been printed for sale on large paper, uniform in size with the large paper Parchment Series. It is especially adapted for the purpose of extra illustration.

6. French Etchers.

A new volume similar to our very successful "Group of Etchers" and "Score of Etchings." As these gave representations principally of the English school, the new volume illustrates the French school. It embraces specimens by Daubigny, Corot, Jacquemart, Martial, Appian, Gravesande, Cazanova, Lançon, Le Page, Chauvel, Veyrassat, Ballin, and others. Folio, cloth, $15.00.

7. Bryan's Dictionary of Painters and Engraverst

The new edition, now publishing in monthly parts, at $1.75 per part. When completed to be issued in two royal 8vo volumes. Cloth, $24.00.

Since the appearance of the last edition of Bryan's "Dictionary of Painters and Engravers," which was issued in 1849, the publication of many valuable works on art and monographs of ratists, some of them embodying the results of careful researches among city records, guild-books, and church registers, particularly in Italy and in the Netherlands, has furnished many new sources from which material has been derived for the correction and enlargement of this work.

Besides the addition of a large number of names which were not included in the former edition or its supplement, new authority has been given to every one of the old entries by a careful revision, and in most instances by important changes. It is anticipated that the new matter introduced will enlarge the work to double its former size.

8. The very Joyous, Pleasant, and Refreshing History of the Feats, Exploits, Triumphs, and Achievements of the Good Knight, withou. Fear and without Reproach, the Gentle Lord de Bayard.

Set forth in English by EDWARD COCKBURN KINDERSLEY. Uniform in size with "Chronicle of the Cid," published last season. With many illustrations. Cloth ornate, quarto, $3,00.

9. The Merchant Vessel. By Charles Nordhoff.

A record of personal experience at sea by the author. Quarto, with many illustrations. Uniform with "Man-of-War Life," published last year. $1.50.

Stormonth's English Dictionary.

A Dictionary of the Esglish Language, Pronouncing, Etymological and Explanatory, embracing Scientific and other Terms, Numerous Familiar Terms, and a Copious Selection of Old English Words. By the Rev. James Stormonth. The Pronunciation Carefully Revised by the Rev. P. H. Phelp, M.A. (From plates furnished by the British publishers, to be issued in extra weekly numbers in Harper's Franklin Square Library, to be completed in about 23 Numbers, at 25 cents each, and to make, when finished, a handsome imperial octavo volume of over 1200 pages, printed in a new, bold and clear type, specially cast for the purpose. The paper is of superfine quality, and the volume will be of a size and weight convenient for constant use. It will be bound, when completed, in an elegant and substantial style. Muslin covers for binding will be supplied by the publishers on receipt of 50 cents). The first number was published on August 22, 1884.

"It is not too much to say that no existing dictionary is so admirably adapted to the use of all classes of persons, from the most to the least scholarly, and it is, as we have said, a fact to be glad of, that the book is to be published in Franklin Square Library numbers, each costing a mere trifle, and succeeding each other at weekly intervals."—
N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

"When completed, it will be a comprehensive and authoritative work."—British Quarterly Review, London.

"There is no longer any excuse for an American family being without a dictionary.... Messrs. Harper are doing a good deal in putting so valuable a work within the reach of every purse.... It can be recommended as highly for its typographical appearance as it can as an authority on the spelling, definition and pronunciation of the English language."—Critic and Good Literature.

"There can be no question that the work, when completed, will form one of the best and most serviceable works of reference of its class. . . . It is admirably adapted to meet the requirements of every ordinary reader and student, and there are few occasions of special reference to which it will not be found adequate."—Scotsman, Edinburgh.

"The plan of this dictionary is admirable, embracing, as it does, all that modern scholarship has achieved in this direction; and there can be but little doubt that, when completed, the work will be one of the most serviceable and most accurate that English lexicography has yet produced for general use."—Boston Gazette.

"It has the bones and sinews of the grand dictionary of the future. . . . We recommend it as an invaluable library book."—Ecclesiastical Gazette, London.

Friendly Edition of Shakespeare.

"The Friendly Edition" of Shakespeare's Works. Edited by W. J. Rolfe. In 20 volumes. Illustrated. 16mo, cloth. (Just Ready.)

Broad and comprehensive in its plan and eclectic in its methods, Mr. Rolfe's edition of Shakespeare has proved, upon the whole, the most useful edition of the great English dramatist's works accessible to American readers. The school edition being now complete in forty volumes, it has been considered advisable to issue the work in a form adapted to libraries and to the use of general readers and Shakespearian students. Each volume of "The Friendly Edition" contains two plays, with the exception of the last volume, which embraces the Sonnets and the Poems. The order of the plays is in the main chronological, but in some instances a play which may be earlier has been put after one which may be later for convenience of arrangement.

Complete Works of Alfred, Lord Tennyson.

The Complete Poetical Works of Alfred, Lord Tennyson, Poet-Laureate. With an Introductory Sketch by Anne Thackeray Ritchie. With portraits and illustrations. 430 pages. 8vo, cloth. (Just Ready.)

This is the only complete edition issued of Tennyson's poetical works, including his early poems omitted from the present English editions and recent contributions to the periodicals. It contains every poem referred to in the bibliographies of Tennyson, many of which are reprinted in this edition for the first time from annuals or other fugitive volumes found in the British Museum and elsewhere. A complete index gives the date of the several editions in which the poems first appeared.

Outlines of Historic Ornament.

An Elementary Text-Book for Students and Lovers of (Art. Translated from the German. Edited by Gilbert R. Redgrave. With 130 illustrations. 12mo. Cloth, $1.50.

"The author of this little treatise has described the origin of ornament among savage races, and has traced its rise and progress until it reached its prime among the artists of Greece and Rome. Passing on, he has shown how Saracenic art became dominant. The decay of Classic learning and the decadence of Rome gave place to a new era of architecture—the beautiful and purely Christian, Gothic style. He has traced the varieties of Gothic architecture, and lastly, he describes the rise and progress of the arts of the Renaissance. As a text-book for those who are beginning the study of decoration, this work should occupy a vacant place among our elementary art manuals."

HOBACE WALPOLE AND HIS WORLD. Select Passages from his Letters. Edited by L. B. Seeley, M.A. With 8 fine portraits after Sir Joshua Reynolds and Sir Thomas Lawrence. Crown 8vo. Cloth, A few copies on large paper, $5.

. We offer to the general reader some specimens of Walpole's correspondence. Students of history and students of literature are familiar with this great mine of facts and fancies, but it is too extensive to be fully exp'or-d by the general reader, and these selections from letters which Walter Scott pronounced the best in our language, and which Lord Byron declared incomparable, will open to the many a wide field of entertainment and instruction.

DON JOHN OF AUSTRIA; Or, Passages from the History of the Sixteenth Ceutury, 1547-1578. By the late Sir William Strling-Maxwell, Bart., Author of "Annals of the Artists of Spain." etc. With very numerous illustrations engraved on wood, including portraits, drawings of shipping, pieces of armour, weapons of war, costumes, etc., taken from authentic contemporary sources. Library cilition. 2 vols. Royal 8vo. Cloth, 320. $20.

"This is a work of monumental learning and industry, and as such deserves the highest respect. . . It is a fascinating subject for an inquiring mind, and affords scope for much curlosity, and leads into many fields of research. Into all of these Sir William Stirling-Maxwell has gone, and has left nothing untouched by his industry."—Academy.

of James the First to the Outbreak of the Civil War, 1608-1642. By Samuel Rawson Gardiner. LLD., Professor of Modern History in King's College, London. Cabinet edition. 10 vols., crown 8vo. Cloth, $24.

"The work takes at once rank as an authority, and in a sense as a classic. No fairer or more judicious history of the epoch has yet seen the light.—Notes and Queries.

THE LIFE OF LORD LYNDHURST. Three times Lord Chancellor of Rugland. From Letters and Papers in possession of his Family in England and the United States. By Sir Theodore Martin, K.C.B., Author of the "Life of Prince Consort," etc. With portraits and facsimile. 1 vol., large 8vo. Cloth extra, $6.

Of all the men who have attained the highest dignity Of all the men who have attained the highest dignity of their profession, the Life History of John Singleton Copley ennobled as Lord Lyndhurst, must always remain perfectly unparalleled. It is safe to say that no other native of the State of Massachusetts will ever become Lord Chancellor of England. He was purely American in his birth and family connections, his mother being a daughter of the consignee of the historical "Cargoes of Tea." thrown into Boston Harbor at the commencement of the Revolution, and his father the famous painter whose pictures are so valued and cherished within New England homes, and in the National Gallery of London.

The practised and graceful pen of Sir Theodore Martin has found a congenial theme in the various incidents of Lord Lyndhurst's unique career.

ANSWER TO "CHATTERBOX CAUTION."

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

An advertisement having appeared in the Publishers' Weekly under the head of "CHATTER-BOX CAUTION," and several booksellers having written me asking if it affects the books published by me, I answer that it does not; that my books are all original in titles and matter, and it is clear that Messrs. Estes & Lauriat do not intend my books, as they have commenced no proceedings against me, nor have any judgments or decrees been filed, affecting my books, as the certificate of the Clerk of U. S. Circuit Court appended herewith clearly shows. I append also opinions of some of the most eminent lawyers of New York Bar.

R. WORTHINGTON.

United States of America, Southern District of New York,

I, Timothy Griffith, Clerk of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, do hereby certify that after an inspection and examination of the docket on file and remaining of record in my office in the suit of Dana Estes et al., vs. John D. Williams et al., I find no entry thereon of the filing of the decree, nor do I find any such decree among the papers on file in my office.

TIMOTHY GRIFFITH, Clerk.

Dated, New York, September 17th, 1884.

OFFICE OF SCUDDER & CARTER, ATTORNEYS AND COUNSELLORS, 66 WALL STREET, NEW YORK, August 21st, 1884.

R. WORTHINGTON, Esq.

DEAR SIR:—My opinion is asked as to the effect of the recent decision of the U. S. Circuit Court in the case of Estes vs. Williams, involving the reprint of "Chatterbox," upon the books published by you under the titles of "Chatterbox Junior," "Little Chatterbox," "Chatterbox Picture Book," "Chatterbox Quartette," "The Sunday Chatterbox," "Natural History Chatterbox," "Young Folks' Chatterbox," "Baby Chatterbox." The publication of the defendants is in the words of the Court "so similar in appearancs and style to those of Johnston as to lead purchasers to think they are the same," and that the defendants "intended to make the books appear to be the same." . . . A casual inspection of your books with the above titles and a comparison with "Chatterbox," shows so many dissimilarities in every respect that it is impossible that the eye of any one could be deceived, and the combinations of words used by you in those titles is sufficiently distinct to apprise all persons that they are really different. . . .

GEO. A. BLACK.

· JAMES R. MARVIN.

LAW OFFICES OF JAMES R. MARVIN, 206 BROADWAY, NEW YORK, Sept. 18th, 1884.

R. WORTHINGTON, Esq.

DEAR SIR:—I am asked for an opinion as to whether the decision in the "Chatterbox" case of Estes vs. Williams, recently tried in the U.S. Circuit Court, can affect the sale of your books, which have as part of their titles the word "Chatterbox," as in the books "American Chatterbox," "Chatterbox Junior," etc.

The decision referred to is based upon the well-established principle of law that no one has a right to so closely imitate the production of another as to deceive the public into the belief that it is the same production. In the case tried, it seems that the publication of the defendant was identical in title, and similar in form and appearance, to that of the plaintiffs. It was held in that case that the adoption of the title and form was calculated to deceive, and did, in fact, deceive the public so far as to induce them to believe that the book published by the defendant was identical with that published by the plaintiffs, therefore the latter were entitled to the protection of the Court.

In the case of your books, the question is whether they so resemble the "Chatterbox" of Estes & Lauriat as to work the same deception. An examination of your books shows that they do not. The titles are not identical, nor is the general appearance of cover or inside pages similar. The use of other words in the title with the word "Chatterbox" tends to show that said other words were used for the purpose of distinguishing your books from that of Estes & Lauriat. Your books in question are made in so many different forms and shapes, and the contents are so varied in character, as well as appearance, that it is impossible to believe that they are intended to imitate a common standard; or that there is, in fact, such an imitation as to deceive. I am clearly of the opinion that the decision in the case cited does not affect any of your publications.

THE AMERICAN SUNDAY-SCHOOL UNION DICTIONARY OF THE BIBLE.

EDITED BY

PHILIP SCHAFF, D.D., LL.D.

Reduced in Price from $2.50 to $2.00

This Dictionary of the Bible includes Biography, Natural History, Geography, Topography, Archæology, and Literature. It has maps and pictures specially prepared for it, tables of Jeul weights and measures, and is replete with Bible references on every subject.

This edition gives effect to the very latest results of Eastern exploration and Oriental sci ship. In this and in all respects it will bear comparison with the most recent edition of Dictionary of the Bible.

It contains nearly 1000 pages, and measures 8 inches by 6 inches by 2 inches.

The press and leading ministers of the gospel of all denominations have, after examination, said of it: "It is cheapest and best book of the kind in the market." "Dr. Schaff has given us a Dictionary of the Bible concise, said able, intelligible, and trustworthy." "No Bible Dictionary with which we are familiar can equal this in accusal statement and freshness of information." "It contains the results of all modern investigation." "There are many to Bible readers, and all have merits. This one covers the whole ground." "I know of no Bible Dictionary we ought to have so wide a circulation."

ALBUM AND BIBLE WAREHOUSE.

BUY OF THE MANUFACTURER,

And Save from 10 to 25 per cent.

We have this year more than doubled our facilities in machinery and space for the production of

and have added to our list many new and desirable styles in plush and leather, thereby rendering our line more complete, varied, and attractive than that of any competing house in America or Europe. Our

in a variety of delicate tints completely eclipses anything else in the Album line. They compare most favorably with the finest imported goods and are sold at much lower rates. We mention a few prominent styles:

No.	142.	Silk plush, cushi	on side,	embossed inside,	rose tint	per doz.,	$25.00
16	142*.	"		"	nile tint	•	25.00
46	142	. "	"	4.4	pearl tint	ed .	25.00
	142R.	"	4.6	"	emb'd rose on cove	r. "	27.00
	143.	Seal grain leather	r "	44	assorted tints	46	24.00

Above are quartos, size 9 x 11, containing spaces for 28 cabinets, 4 panels and 32 cards; or may be had all cabinets.

OUR NEW DOUBLE CABINET ALBUM is a marvel of beauty and cheapness. Size 12½ x 9½ with spaces for 80 cabinet pictures, two on a page. Albums of this kind have hitherto commanded double the price we ask for them; we submit a few quotations:

No.	230.	Silk plush,	word	portraits in	nickel,	gold	bevel	inside,	rose	tin	t	per doz.,	$30.00
	231.	••	"	- "			"		nile	• 6		- 61	30.00
	232.			"	64			44	pear	1 "		64	30.00

We only mention a few of the leading styles and will be pleased to send samples for inspection to any reputable dealer, with privilege of returning same if not as represented. Send for a sample order and you will not regret it.

The attention of the trade is also called to our large and varied line of comprising English and German, Protestant and Catholic Bibles, also Welsh Bibles in native language. Our Bibles are all printed from new electrotype plates, on fine paper, and are elegantly illustrated and bound. Please send for catalogue and terms. Our list of

is also an extensive and attractive one. We claim for these books superiority in matter, design, and manufacture over any others ever offered in this country. They are suited in size, style and extent to all tastes and states of life as well as to all circumstances, varying from the cheapest to the most elaborate.

THE

[Of books in print July 1, 1876. 2 vols., royal 4to, $40.]

SUPPLEMENT

OF BOOKS ISSUED JULY 1, 1876, TO JULY 1, 1884.

The Supplement, which is a complete work in itself, will be issued in the early fall of 1884. It will include titles of over 20,000 books, entered in the first part by title and author, and is the second by subject. The volume will probably be of about the size of the second volume of the Catalogue, exceeding 450 pages; the price will be, to present subscribers, $10; after publication, probably $12 or $15. The edition will be limited to 1250 copies and no plates will be made.

Less than 50 copies remain unsold of the American Catalogue itself, now priced at $42. The price will probably be raised at an early date to $50 or $75 on the few remaining copies.

Five-yearly supplements hereafter will enhance the value of the original work and of the first supplement. Every owner of a private library and book-collector, as well as every book-seller and librarian, should have this invaluable key to American books.

TO THE BOOK TRADE.

The correct title of the book "Beginners' Hand-Boo of Chemistry" is as follows, viz. :

"CHEMISTRY: Developed by Fig. and Principles Drawn Chiefly from the Metals." By JOHN HOWARD APPLANT A.M., Professor of Chemistry in Brown University.

We make this explanation as the book is now in demand for use in the C. S. S. Circles, and has been founded with "The Young Chemist." by the suthor.

ORCHIDS. THE ROYAL FAMILY OF PLANTS.

With illustrations from nature by HARRIET STEWART MINER, comprising twentyfour magnificent specimens in colors, each 10 x 14 inches, reproductions of some of the most celebrated and costly varieties of this peculiar branch of the floral kingdom. The singularity of their shape, the warmth and variety of their color, their delicate perfume, render Orchids particularly attractive. This is the first extensive attempt made to illustrate them. The Orchid is at present the reigning fashion flower. Enormous sums are being paid for single plants. Great attention is given to their cultivation, and "rare exhibitions" of this regal tribe of plants are attended by crowds of admirers. The collections from which these illustrations have been made are among the best in this country. The volume is fourteen inches in length, eleven inches wide, one and one half inches in thickness; gilt edges, corners bevelled, and richly adorned in black and gold, making a beautiful book. Cloth, full gilt, $15.00. Turkey morocco, $25.00.

ONE YEAR'S SKETCH BOOK.

A series of illustrations of the Scenes and Flowers of Spring, Summer, Autumn, and Winter, by IRENE E. JEROME, comprising forty-six full-page pictures 9½ x 14 inches, original drawings, engraved in the best manner by John Andrew & Son.

This novel volume is the year's record of the best efforts of a talented artist, reproduced by the finest work of skilled engravers. No expense has been spared to make this the model gift book of the season. The illustrations are full of life and color. Natural beauties are taken from all the year round. Scenes of Spring, Summer, Autumn and Winter, in landscape and water sketches, by flashes of sunlight and through straggling moonbeams, in every variety of shape, shade, and color, mingle with gems of poetry applicable to the season. The volume is elegantly bound in black and gold. $5.00. Turkey morocco, $10.00.

BABY'S KINGDOM.

Wherein can be chronicled by the loving mother the story of the events, happenings, and cunningness which attend the progress of "My Baby," as a mement for grown-up days. Invented and illustrated by Miss Annie F. Cox. Printed in colors. Bound in elegant style. Cloth and gold, $3.75. Turkey morocco, $7:00.

This is not a book for the particular amusement of the baby while a baby, but is a dainty diary in which the mother records the birth, the weight from time to time, the first step, the first tooth, the gifts, the first attempts at speech, and all the other wonderful events of babyhood, for her own gratification, and the future benefit of the hero or heroine of the pictorial biography. The emblematical illustrations are original, the binding rich and elegant, and the book a novelty that mo nursery basket will be complete without.

THE GUEST BOOK.

In which may be recorded the coming and the going of guests, with pages for autographs, incidents, and sketches pertaining to pleasant visits, social circles and other gatherings.

A companion to "Baby's Kingdom." Invented and illustrated by Miss ANNE F. Cox. Printed in colors. In rich binding. Cloth and gold, $3.75. Turkey morocco, $7.50.

A useful and ornamental household book to be laid upon the table to "welcome the coming, speed the going guest"; in which the guest may himself record his arrival and departure, and all the intervening events which have attracted his attention; in which he leaves his autograph, writes his impressions, and contributes his letters of prose or verse. The illustrations are in keeping with the character of the book, are tasty and rich in design and color, the selections introduced are bright and appropriate, and the whole book has the charm of novelty and exquisite taste.

MY LADY'S CASKET

OF FLOWERS AND JEWELS FOR HER ADORNMENT.

With original designs painted in colors, by ELBANOR W. TALBOT. 4to. Cloth, full gilt, $5.00. Turkey morocco, $10.00.

As a presentation book from the lover to his mistress, as a wedding gift, or as a Christmas gift from friend to friend, nothing equal to this original conception has yet been produced. The illustrations, representing all the virtues of existence and each a work of art, are reproduced in colors and gold. Appropriate selections are introduced. With its companion volumes, "Baby's Kingdom" and "The Guest Book," the publishers believe they have produced novelties that will be very taking.

ILLUSTRATED HYMNS AND BALLADS.

To the beautiful series of Household Favorites in song and story, of which we are the founders, are this year added

THE MOUNTAIN ANTHEM.

The Beatitudes in Rhythmic Echoes, by Wm. C. RICHARDS, author of "The Lord is my Shepherd," with illustrations from designs by Miss L. B. HUMPHREY. Cloth, full gilt, $1.50; golden floral, $1.75.

Prof. Richards in this volume treats the Beatitudes of the Sermon on the Mount in a similar manner to "The Lord is my Shepherd" of last year. The illustrations are in Miss Humphrey's best manner.

FROM GREENLAND'S ICY MOUNTAINS.

Bishop HEBER'S missionary hymn, with full-page illustrations by THOMAS GUIL-FOYE and EDMUND H. GARRETT. Cloth, full gilt, $1.50; golden floral, $1.75.

Comprising -

LIVING THOUGHTS.

WORDS OF HOPE.

Edited by Mrs. CHARLOTTE A. MEANS. Cloth, per vol., $1.00. These two series are bound in new styles, with unique designs.

NEW NOVELS.

JOHN THORN'S FOLKS.

By Angeline Teal. A Western story of remarkable power. Powerful in plot, admirable in description, crisp and bright in dialogue, vivid and natural in character painting, John Thorn's Folks possesses all the elements of a deeply interesting story. The lives and loves of John Thorn and his wife in the divorce bearing State of Indiana open a new vein of deep interest to the novel-reader. 16mo, cloth, $1.00. Uniform with Lee and Shepard's Dollar Novels.

FARNELL'S FOLLY.

By J. T. TROWBRIDGE. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

As a delineator of shrewd Yankee character, as a strong and entertaining storyteller as a writer of unctuous humor, Mr. Trowbridge has no equal. This story is said to be his best. It will be published in the uniform series of Trowbridge's novels.

OUT OF THE WRECK,

THE ORMISTON INHERITANCE.

By Miss Amanda M. Douglas. 12mo, cloth, $1.50. In the uniform series of her works, comprising fourteen volumes.

Miss Douglas's novels are increasing in popularity. The advance orders for each new volume increases with each new issue. Her works are pure, exhilarating, and in the best of style.

THE DEVELOPMENT THEORY.

The Study of Evolution simplified for general Reading. By Prof. J. Y. BERGEN, Jr., and FANNY D. BERGEN. 16mo, cloth, illustrated, $1.25.

The lack of simple and inexpensive illustrated books, which place the outline of the evolution hypothesis clearly before the general reader, has aided in continuing popular ignorance concerning the theory. To assist in supplying this want, as well as to furnish to those who require it an elementary text-book on this subject, is the task which the authors of the present work have set for themselves.

EVOLUTION AND CHRISTIANITY.

An Answer to the Development Infidelity of Modern Times. By BENJ. F. TEFT, D. D., LL. D., Ex-President of Genesee College, New York, with an Introductory Letter by Bishop Simpson.

VOCAL AND ACTION-LANGUAGE CULTURE AND EXPRESSION.

In 1883, under command of Lieut. SCHWATKA. Illustrated. Uniform with twenty-four volumes already issued in this popular series.

OLD ROBINSON CRUSOR OUTDONE.

PERSEVERANCE ISLAND,

Or the Robinson Crusoe of the 19th Century, by Douglas Frazar. 12mo, cloth. Illustrated, $1.50.

In all works of the Robinson Crusoe type, the wreck is always near at hand, the powder dry and preserved, and the days for rafting the same ashore calm and pleasant. This unfortunate had no such accessaries, and his story proves the limitless ingenuity and invention of man, and portrays the works and achievements of a castaway, who, thrown ashore almost literally naked upon a desert isle, is able, by the use of his brains, the skill of his hands, and a practical knowledge of the common arts and sciences, to far surpass the achievements of all his predecessors, and to surround himself with implements of power and science utterly beyond the reach of his prototype, who had his wreck as a reservoir from which to draw his munitions.

OLIVER OPTIC'S NEW BOOK.

SQUARE AND COMPASSES,

Or Building the Boathouse. Cloth, $1.25. Being the third volume of THE BOATBUILDERS' SERIES, to be completed in six volumes, of which

ALL ADRIFT, SNUG HARBOR, SQUARE AND COMPASSES, are now ready. In this series Oliver Optic has taken a new departure, and is giving his readers lessons in mechanics, from practice in his own workshop, that are both entertaining and instructive, while the adventurous spirit in his books is allowed the same liberty as before.

Bibliographical Publications.

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY.

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, established in 1872, with which was incorporated the American Literary Gazette and Publishers' Circular (established in 1852), by purchase from Mr. George W. Childs, is recognized as the independent representative of the publishing and bookselling interests in the United States.

The central feature of the paper, that makes it an indispensable aid to the trade, to libraries, and to literary people, is its Bibliographical Department. Every possible facility of reference is afforted by a combination of methods which records the books, by the week, the month, the season, and the year, under the author, the publisher, the title, the subject, and the class. It is acknowledged that no other journal, at home or abroad, supplies as practical and satisfactory a record of the publications of its country.

The bibliographical department includes:

- 1. A "Weekly Record" of all new American publications and reprints, giving their full titles (according to the rules of American Library Association), with place and date of publication, publisher's name, size, number of pages, and price; and also descriptive notes of books received. This first and practically the official record is arranged alphabetically by the authors or titles, and for ready reference is placed in the same accessible position in each number.
- 2. A weekly "Order List," being brief-title entries, with prices, of the "Weekly Record," arranged alphabetically by the publishers. The object of this list is to present at a glance the simultaneous issues of certain publishers, and to save time in the making up of orders,
- 3. A monthly "Index to the Weekly Record," being short-title entries, with the publisher's name and the size and price, arranged alphabetically by the authors, with references from the titles or catchwords, and from the subjects. With each entry is given also the number of the "Weekly Record" containing the full-title entry and note.
- 4. A monthly "Class Synopsis," grouping the works of the month under such heads as Biography, Description, Education, Fiction, Fine Arts, History, Law, Literature, Medical Science, Physical and Mathematical Science, Poetry and the Drama, Political and Social Science, Theology and Religion, etc.
- 5. A semi-annual classified list of Forthcoming Publications, given in the Spring and Fall Announcement numbers, in which also the announced books are more fully described under the name of the publishers, arranged alphabetically.
- 6. An annual Index to the books of the year, advertised by the more prominent publishers in the so-called Annual Summary Number, which generally is published in the last week of January. In this number is also given a classified summary of the more prominent publications of the year.
- 7. Regular Lists of the Srason, published as follows: A complete priced catalogue of Educational Books, in July: a priced list of the Holiday Books and prominent Juvenile Books of the year, in Nevember; a supplementary list of new Educational Books, February; a list of Guide and Summer Books, in May.
- 8. Quarterly lists of the Publications of the U. S. Government.
- 9. Semi-monthly lists of the more prominent New English Books.
- 10. Special Bibliographies. The timely bibliography, now in course of publication, is "Literary Property: a catalogue of books and authors relating to literary property (copyright, international copyright, and kindred subjects), by Thorvald Solberg.

The Literary Department includes comprehensive intelligence as to books forthcoming and publishing movements, at home and abroad, gathered with the aid of representatives in other cities; editorial discussions on book and trade subjects, as copyright, postal questions, book production and manufacture, etc.; original contributions and representative extracts on like topics; topical "cues" or references to bibliographical sources or courses of reading and study; journalistic notes; business notes; literary and trade notes, etc. $3.20 per year, 10 cents per number.

THE LITERARY NEWS.

An Eclectic Review of Current Literature. Pallished monthly, and containing the fresheat news concerning books and authors; lists of new publications; reviews and critical comments; characteristic extracts; sketches an anecdotes of authors; courses of reading; bibliographical references; prominent topics of the magazines; prize questions on choice books and other literary subjects, etc., etc.

The Literary News, since its establishment and der the name of The Literary Bulletin, in 1864, has passed through many transformations in appearance and method before acquiring the distinctive features which have given it a character of its own, and which have become so familiate to thousands of readers. In substance it is been the same since its inception—"a monitare record of current literature;" but while primare fulfilling its mission in the interests of the boot trade, it has since the establishment of the Pulishers' Weekly, which now so thoroughly covers that ground, aimed more directly to meet a wants of readers and students.

Its plan is to present each month a full surv of current literature, by means of brief review and notices, sketches of authors, lists of box of the month, etc. The reviews and book-notic are confined to the best books of the day, a are quoted only from recognized literary journal Their selection is made with an aim not mere to guide by a praise of books, but to awaken interest in subjects worth studying and auth worth knowing, by giving what throws most lig both on authors and books in their relation to and literature. The entertaining elements chiefly the Prize Questions, of which two or the are given almost every month, and the "Liter Miscellany." Of special interest to the stude are the "Cues," which give (I) references t sources of reading on topics of the day; (2) classification of the magazine contents; (3) ref erences to the latest authority, as soon as reco nized, on any subject of general interest; references to bibliographies of subjects of general ral interest, to approved reading-courses, and anything written in the interest of reading study.

A complete index, by authors, titles, or species, makes the annual volumes accessible for permanent reference. It per year.

THE LIBRARY JOURNAL,

ficial Organ of the American Library Association. Edited by CHARLES A. CUTTER, Librarian Boston Athenæum.

The Library Journal was established in 1876 the co-operative efforts of the leading libraas on both sides of the Atlantic. Its chief ject is to be a practical help to the every-day ministration of both large and small libraries, d to effect a saving by enabling library work be done in the best way, at the lowest cost, e Journal especially meets the needs of the aller libraries, offering them the costly expence and practical advice of the largest. In mining from doing imperfectly what is done well by the several journals specially devoted intiquarian or purely historical interests, the rary Journal is enabled to give its chief attion to modern bibliography and current litture, as represented particularly in its departats of "Bibliography" (proper), "Library momy and History," and "Anonyms and adonyms." Published monthly, $4 per year; tents per number.

INDEX TO PERIODICALS,

Operative Index to Current Numbers of eading Periodicals. Edited by W. I. FLET-HER. Supplement to the Library Journal.

he suggestions for the co-operative indexing current periodicals, submitted by Mr. Poole Mr. Fletcher, and also by Mr. Stetson, in the uary (1883) number of the Library Journal, e met with such prompt action on the part of rested librarians, that Mr. Stetson's monthly 1 has already gone into operation, and in 1 a manner as to prepare the way for Mr. ke's annual and quinquennial continuations. 18 and 19 announced that both plans will horoughly tested. It has been decided that, n experiment, the references shall be printed the Library Journal.

ONTHLY REFERENCE LISTS.

uide for the reader and student to trustworthy nurces of information on current topics, preured by WILLIAM E. FOSTER, Librarian rovidence Public Library. $1 per year, 10 ats per number.

The two volumes 1881-82, of the Providence Library's this Reference Lists... are a welcome addition to addess variety of indexes. They can be used in conion with any good public or private library."—The Na-January 18, 1883.

INDEX MEDICUS,

nonthly classified record of the current medial literature of the world; compiled under the apervision of Dr. John S. Billings, Sureon U.S.A., and Dr. Robert Fletcher, I.R.C.S., England.

the Index Medicus, established in 1879, redecided to prepare the titles of all new publications in Mediwork down to 1884.

cine, Surgery, and the collateral branches, received during the preceding month. These are classed under subject headings and followed by the titles of valuable original articles upon the same subject, found, during the like period, in medical journals and transactions of medical societies. The periodicals thus indexed comprise all current medical journals and transactions of value, so far as they can be obtained.

The Index Medicus is published monthly at $10 per annum, and supplements all the leading medical journals (American and foreign) as a current guide and general index to all.

THE AMERICAN CATALOGUE.

The American Catalogue compiled by F. Leypoldt and Lynds E. Jones, aims to present, for the first time, all the bibliographical features of the books in the American market, arranged in the first volume alphabetically by both authors and titles, and in the second volume alphabetically by subjects. Over nine hundred publishers are represented, among whom is a great number of the smaller publishers and publication societies, of whose books it has hitherto been almost impossible to keep track; and the two volumes aggregate 1490 large quarto double-column pages containing over 125,000 entries. As it was impracticable to bring the body of the work down to a later date than July, 1876, without further delaying its appearance, an appendix has been added to the first volume, containing the publications of most of the leading houses issued subsequently to that date, and an index to this appendix is given in each volume. As a further aid, a list of bibliographies is prefixed to the second volume to assist the student in prosecuting his researches beyond the province of the catalogue proper. These two lists serve to bridge over the interval elapsing during the compilation and publication of the work, and thus practically remedy a defect inherent in all such publications.

The catalogue thus forms the only approximately complete guide in existence to the American books of the day, so arranged as to make reference easy from whatever direction the inquiry may come, whether from that of the author, or the title, or the subject. It not only furnishes the desired information about any particular book of which the consulter is in search, but shows what others there are by the same author, or on the same subject in which he is interested. To the bookseller, therefore, it is valuable both in filling orders and in stimulating business; to the librarian, in supplying gaps and proportioning his collection; and to all who are practically concerned with books, in furnishing information which nowhere else is obtainable by so convenient a method, if obtainable at all. Two volumes, unbound (folded), $40; half mo-

It is with a view to securing a new and increased value to the "American Catalogue," and also with the hope that by meeting an immediate want an opportunity may be given the publisher to retrieve his losses, that it has been decided to prepare a supplement bringing the work down to 1884.

SUPPLEMENT TO THE AMERICAN CATALOGUE.

The plan will follow that of the AMERICAN CATALOGUE, giving the author and title-entries and the subject-entries in separate alphabets, but the two alphabets will be included in one volume. It is probable that the SUPPLEMENT, which will cover all books recorded between July 1st, 1876, and July 1st, 1884, will include titles of over 20,000 books, and its practical value as an every-day working tool will almost exceed that of the CATALOGUE itself. It will be delivered to subscribers either in two parts, the first including author and title-entries, the second, subject-entries, or complete, as may seem expedient. If delivered in two parts, it will probably be practicable to deliver the first before October 1st, and the second during that month. The edition will be limited to 1250 copies and no plates will be made.

Price to subscribers, $10; after publication day, probably $12 or $15.

THE PUBLISHERS' TRADE-LIST ANNUAL

This volume is indispensable to any one that has any interest in the purchase or sale of books. It contains:

- I. THE PUBLISHERS' TRADE-LISTS.—These are the latest catalogues of American publishers, arranged alphabetically by the names of the publishers.
- 2. THE EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE. (For description see below.)
- 3. Annotated List of the Books of the YEAR .- A complete reprint of the Publishers' WEEKLY full title Records (inclusive of all the descriptive notes) from July 2, 1881, to June 30, 1882
- 4. Complete Index to the Books of the YEAR.—In order to facilitate reference to the above list, it is accompanied by a full index by which every book on record can be found, whether it is looked for under author, title, or Numerous cross references are also subject. added to facilitate the finding of books on similar subjects.

Large octavo. Price, $1.50; postpaid, $2. With "Duplex Index," 50 cents extra.

THE AMERICAN

EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE.

The Educational Catalogue, established in 1870, is published annually in the Educational Number of the Publishers' Weekly, and subsequently in "The Publishers' Trade-List Annual." It includes a price-list of all the text-books in use in the United States, arranged alphabetically by author's or editor's name, and a detailed subject-index, referring from each specific subject to authors of books on that subject, so that the advantages of both a finding list for the trade and a class catalogue for the use of schools are combined. Price, separately, 25 cents.

NOTES IN SEASON.

FUNK & WAGNALLS announce as just ready "The Mentor: A Little Book for the Guidance of such Men and Boys as would Appear to Advantage in the Society of Persons of the Better Sort," by Alfred Ayres, author of the "Orthoëpist," etc.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS publish to-day "Fifty Years' Observation of Men and Events, Civil and Military," by Gen. E. D. Keyes, at one time aide-de-camp of General Scott; "The Reality of Faith," a new volume of sermons by Rev. Newman Smyth; "The Ancient Empires of the East," by A. H. Sayce; "The Common-Sense Household Calendar for 1885," by Marion Harland; and The Boys' Library of Legend and Chivalry, all of which have been fully noticed in our last issue.

ROBERTS BROS. have just ready "Tip Cat," a story by the author of "Miss Toosey's Mission," and "Laddie," another welcome, unassuming tale, full of genuine humor, pathos, and observation of human and especially children's nature, told in a delightful and entertaining manner; "Suwanee River Tales," by Sherwood Bonner, with a memorial sketch of the late author, by Sophia Kirk, and illustrations by Frank P. Merrill; "A Sea Change," by Flora L. Shaw, an admirable story by the author of "Castle Blair," etc.: "Jack Archer," a tale of the Crimean War, by G. A. Henty, author of the "Boy Knight;" and "The Hunter Cats of Connorloa," by Helen Jackson (H. H.), another famous cat story, uniform with the author's other popular books on the Grimalkin family.

A. C. Armstrong & Son have just ready their handsome edition of Poe's Works, with a memoir and new introduction by Richard Henry Stoddard. It is in six twelvemo volumes, carefully printed on fine paper, and illustrated with etchings and fac-similes. It will certainly be the standard edition of Poe's works for years to come. They have also issued in their Clerical Library "Anecdotes Illustrative of New Testament Texts;" a useful book for clergymen, entitled "A Manual of Preaching," by Rev. Dr. Franklin W. Fisk; "Talks with Young Men," by Rev. Dr. J. T. Davidson, which has been warmly indorsed by Mr. Spurgeon; a biography of Archbishop Leighton, by Dr. Wm. Blair; "Wild Adventures Round the Pole," being the further adventures of the "Snow-Bird Crew." by the author of, and uniform with, the "Cruise of the Snow-Bird," published last year; "A New Robinson Crusoe—The Crusoe of Guiana," a book of thrilling adventure, similar in style to the history of the justly celebrated hero of our young days; "The Children's Forget me-not," a new and beautiful color-book; a new edition of Brace's "Gesta Christi;" and a new Library edition, in three volumes, of the works of Jo-

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. publish to-day the "Algonquin Legends of New England," Charles G. Leland, a book uniform in style with Leland's Gypsies, and containing a host of interesting stories gathered from the Indians of Maine, some of them illustrated with curious designs from an Indian hand. They have also just ready Dr. Herrick's lectures on "Some Heretics of Yesterday," a series of biographical sketches of some of the great religious reformers from the fourteenth century to the nineteenth, with an account of the opinions they held and the influence they exerted upon the theological thought of their times; a little book of great interest, by John Fiske, on "The Des-tiny of Man," not exactly a chart of immortality, but containing numerous suggestions and considerations with regard to this life and the future life, which cannot fail to be read with marked attention by all thoughtful readers-and Mr. Fiske's wonderfully clear style will make the reading a delight to all who can appreciate the charm of this quality; "The Viking Bodleys," possibly the last of the series of Bodley books, with which Mr. Scudder has interested American boys and girls for several years past. This book relates to Norway and Denmark, and inasmuch as it is largely colored by a visit made two or three years since by Mr. Scudder, it has a peculiar interest. A new and cheaper edition of the novels of Björnstjerne Björnson will appear at the same time, in three duodecimo volumes, which ought to have a host of readers,

The aim of this work is, as its title indicates, mainly practical. Although chiefly designed for theological students and young ministers, it is believed the treatise will be of service to older pastors. The method followed is, first, to take a sermon in pieces and in-pect its principal parts, and then to show how to gather materials and form a sermon. In treating of the means of attaining skill in homiletics, reference is made to works of contemporaneous writers in this department. Gustafson, Axel. The foundation of death: a study of the drink-question. Bost., Ginn, Heath & Co., 1884. 3-31+582 p. D. cl.,

Purports to be a résumé of almost everything by any writer of importance that has been said on the side of total writer of importance that has been said on the side of total abstinence from liquor, and against the evil effects of drinking. Mr. Gustafson gives a startling array of facts, showing that there can be no such thing as moderate drinking and that liquor is an evil even as a therapeutical agent. The headings to the chapters will give some idea of the exhaustive nature of the work: Drinking among the ancients; History of the discovery of distillation; Preliminaries to the study of modern drinking; Adulterations; Physiological results; Pathological results; Morat results; Heredity; Therapeutics; Social results; Origin and causes of alcoholism; Specious reasonings concerning the use of alcohol; What can be done? Printed with numerous valuable foot-notes and marginal annotations. The appendix goes deeply into the rights and means of legal suppression of the liquor traffic, and gives an abstract from the last report of the British Commissioners of Lunacy. A bibliography of the subject covers 65 pages; it includes the works of all nations, arranged by countries and chronologically. An index to the bibliography, and a full subject index to the volume. Mr. Gustafson is a Swede by birth and a graduate of Harvard University.

Porter, D: D. Allan Dare and Robert Le Diable: a romance. In 9 pts. pt. 1. N. Y., Appleton, 1884. 96 p. il. O. pap., 25 c.

The opening chapters are very promising; the first scene is laid in Manchester, Mass., almost a hundred years ago, and the reader is treated to an old-fashioned double wedding, a race on the seas from China to America of two merchant ships, a scene in a detective's bureau in New York at the beginning of this century, and a ball at a where a true beginning of this century, and a ball at a millionaire's house, where a number of the guests are robbed of their diamonds. Apparently there is to be plenty of romance and adventure, and told in an old-fashioned, leisurely style. The novel will be in nine parts, one part being issued every other week, till completed; each part to be illustrated with one cut by Alfred Fredericks.

Irs. Taylor's work is equally distinguished by fervor, ration, ta-te, and judgment. It very properly avoids mucism of Bayard Taylor's literary achievements, set forth with great clearness and acumen his literary see and ideals, and the changes which these undering the course of his mental devolopment: and in this tit has high value as a literary study. But naturally helf charm is the exhibition of Taylor's engaging easilty. This is accomplished in the simplest and satisfactory way, by the publication of his private. From the mass of his correspondence Mrs. Taylor experienced and judicious colaborer have made a and comprehensive selection, covering every period of rive life and all his important enterprises, and showlisides of him—the courageous and aspiring youth, mader son, the affectionate brother, the ardent lover, n. omparable friend, the conscientious journalist and fetters, the scholar, the poet, the critic, the travelle patriot—always the frank, generous, high-minded, htdorward man, with his heart full of sunshine."—

I have endeavored also to arrange the experiments so that there may be a logical connection between them. I have early in the treatise directed the mind of the student toward the doctrine of the conservation of energy, and to the observation of the truth that our knowledge is relative, and that there are not different kinds of forces. Thus I have endeavored to give a clear conception of what may be termed the new physics, so that even the general reader, in glancing over the character and mutual relation of the experiments, can see the tendency of physical science toexperiments, can see the tendency of physical science to-day."—Author's Preface.

The methods employed by the author of the "Wide, wide world" in evolving this story are not dissimilar to those used in any of her later books. There is a very good and interesting little heroine introduced at the early age of and interesting little heroine introduced at the early age of twelve, and a rich and good-looking hero of eighteen, who has all the virtues and wisdom of mature manhood; their courtship begins over Latin, botany, and numismatics, the two latter subjects being entered into sufficiently to afford the reader some useful information. The few other characters introduced are only foils to the leading ones, whose young lives come to a happy conclusion, in spite of many adverse circumstances and a strong denominational prejudice with which the families of each is imbued, and which is a leading cause of dissension thoroughout.

PLUCK AND PUSH.

GREAT deal is to be done in the book busii, as everywhere else, by push and pluck. have heard many lamentations of late s about the condition of our trade, and with i reason; nevertheless, that is not the only of the case. Despite under-cutting, and m libraries, and other ills the trade is heir to, ks are sold in this country, and in increasing stities. People read more, not less, as edum penetrates the land, and there are more He each year to read. We are now a peoof nearly 55,000,000; this fact alone tells the y. If booksellers would do their very best seet the wants of the enormous number of ers and bookbuyers represented in this agpate, there would be less cause of com-

'eare moved to these remarks by a letter from we house recently started in a Western city th, in sending an order and some good words the WEEKLY, adds:

Since our opening, our most sanguine exations have been fully realized; trade has a most satisfactory and prospects very tering. Bookbuyers appreciate our envors to keep a bookstore in fact, and not use name bookstore to give tone to a toy and lon stock, as is generally the case. Our tion is that if booksellers would pay more atton to books, and keep bookstores worthy he name, they would have little cause for the splaints that seem so general among the le. If the bookseller will not keep what his tomers want, it is right for the publisher tell them; but if he takes care of his customers he should, he need not fear competition from hishers."

It is within our own experience, and an incident many times repeated, that even the large city bookstores answer an inquiry as to a standard book, "Not in stock, but we'll get it for you!" This is absolutely destructive of retail trade. A bookbuyer wants a book when he asks for it—not to-morrow or next week. The rule seems to be that ephemeral books, which soon deteriorate, are kept in stock, while the standards, which preserve their value, are not to be found. What success would there be in a dry-goods store run on this principle?

A well-selected stock, a pleasant store, adequate knowledge of book and careful attention to customers will do much to make a real bookstore successful, even in dull times. Is not that so, gentlemen of the trade?

We heartily second the protest uttered by the Catholic Mirror against the method, too much in vogue in more than one quarter, of raising prices for the sake of increasing discounts. Within the trade, it is simply self-deceit; as regards the public, either it has no influence except demoralization, or it cheats one man at the expense of another. It is impossible to give any justification, except the most short-sighted policy, in behalf of such a step.

HENRY GEORGE BOHN.

THE British and Colonial Stationer, in its issue for August 30, gives some interesting gossip concerning the late Mr. Bohn, from which we quote the following:

Few, indeed, in any way interested in "the world of letters"—as book-writers, book-lovers, or booksellers—can have failed to hear of Henry George Bohn. In his later years he came to be called "Old Bone"—not contemptuously, but familiarly, for there was no department of book commerce with which, during much more than half a century, his name is not inseparably connected. Mr. Bohn died on Friday. 24th inst., at his residence, North End House, Twickenham, at the advanced age of 88.

Apart from being a singularly astute, foreseeing, and enterprising man of business, as a bookseller and publisher, Mr. Bohn was to a certain extent a bibliographer, an author, and a translator. No one, probably, can tell how many of the books that bear his name were actually the products of his pen. People in his line of business employ many hands, some of them exceedingly deft, and the instruments of acute, trained, learned brains. These "hands, whether as compilers or cataloguers, write much, and what they do is usually attributed to their masters. If Mr. Bohn had written all the pages that bear his name he must have lived from his infancy with a pen in his hand. As, however, we know that he enjoyed the usual intervals for necessary rest and refreshment, and beyond that found time to carry on a large trade, and even to read, write letters, and travel, we might catalogue many books as "after" or as belonging to "the school" of H. G. Bohn, as they do in regard to engravers and painters.

As his name implies, he was of German extraction, and was the son of a London book-seller. He was born January 4, 1796, and after completing his education entered his father's business, where he soon acquired a knowledge of books, which made him one of the best, if not the foremost bibliographer of the age. In 1831 he commenced business on his own account, and it is impossible to esti-mate too highly the services he rendered to the more intelligent portion of the community by republishing, at a cheap rate, a vast number of the most valuable works in literature, science, philosophy, history, biography, topography, archæology, theology, natural history, poetry, art, fiction, etc.

THE GUINEA CATALOGUE.

About the year 1840 Mr. Bohn was the greatest-that is, the most extensive-bookseller in Great Britain. In 1841 he published his "Guinea Catalogue," which was, up to that time, the biggest advertisement ever put forth by a bookseller for the sale of his stock. It has since been exceeded enormously by the mammoth catalogues of Mr. Quaritch.

The name reminds us that, in 1842, when Bernard Quaritch left the Fatherland and came to London, he found employment in a subordinate capacity—that of a mere porter—with Henry G. Bohn. He remained two years in this establishment-years to which in some degree may be traced the origin of the remarkable fund of book lore which he subsequently amassed. Mr. Quaritch adds to his many other sterling qualities that of indomitable determination. He has often told his friends how, when handing round the books at one of Bohn's sales, he made up his mind that some day or other he would eclipse his present master, and be "the biggest bookseller in Europe," a position which he has undoubtedly since achieved. He left Mr. Bohn, but returned after awhile, and was employed by him between 1845 and 1847, during which time he compiled the only printed volume of Bohn's 1847 Classified Catalogue, which was in general arrangement as well as in regard to accuracy a far more creditable performance than the celebrated Guinea Catalogue, notwithstanding the lavish praises that have been bestowed on that compilation.

About 1840 Mr. Bohn began a series of cheap classics, and is said to have translated several of Schiller's, Goethe's, and Humboldt's works. He also obtained some distinction as the editor of the "Bibliotheca Parriana" of Addison's works, and of a new and enlarged edition of Lowndes's "Bibliographer's Manual." He was also the compiler of a "Polygot of Foreign Proverbs," a "Hand-Book of Proverbs," an "Illustrated Hand-Book of Geography," and a "Hand-Book of Pottery and Porcelain and other Objects of Virtu," with an introductory letter on pottery and porcelain and an engraved list of all known marks and monograms; and the editor of a "Hand-Book of Games of Chance, Skill, and Manual Dexterity.'

THE PAPER DUTY.

"It may appear strange," says a morning journal, "to add that Mr. Bohn, one of the pioneers of cheap literature and a very triton among minnows in those waters, was in 1866 strongly opposed to the proposed repeal of the paper duty, and that he published a pamphic, in which he asserted that the repeal of the duty would not be of any real advantage to the public or the trade, while it would entail a loss of two millions per annum to the imperial revesse. Fortunately for Mr. Bohn and the public, he stood almost alone as opposing the change ima a literary point of view." The repeal of the paper duty, however, which pressed upon paper manufacturers with a grievous weight wholly unparalleled in modern days, was opposed by not a few tradesmen, such as publishers at printers, who, having risen to eminence in the days of dear books and large profits, foresaw, with fear, the competition and the new condition of business which the abolition of the tax world inevitably create.

Mr. Bohn, who married the only daughter de the late Mr. Simpkin, was, it will have been in ferred from the foregoing, an antiquary and a Fellow of the Antiquaries and of many scientific and learned societies, including the Phila biblion Society, to which he contributed a hied Shakespeare and an extensive Dictionary These book English Poetical Quotations. were printed for private circulation only, b have, on more than one occasion, fallen to t auctioneer's hammer in the sales of large colle tions, when they have realized good prices. retired from business some years since, wh the whole of his immense s ock passed into the hands of Messrs George Bell & Sons.

THE BOOKSELLER AND THE BIBLIOPHILE

"It might naturally be expected," says a 🗷 temporary, "that Mr. Bohn's reminiscent were of the most extensive and pleasant kin This was undoubtedly so, and no pleasanter hor could be passed than in listening to his talk men and books, when, as he expressed it, gout allowed him to indulge in a little h work without the two disagreeing. But, 1 haps, that which gave him most pleasure the pleasant recollections he cherished of connection with the Hamilton Palace Libra now, alas! dispersed. All the books supplied that library since 1831, when Mr. Bohn co menced business, were supplied exclusively him, partly to the then Duke of Hamilton a partly to Mr. Beckford. "They used." said, "at first to come together at an appoin time, and usually selected somewhat lang from the literary and artistic treasures which had recently accumulated during a long opportune tour on the Continent.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO TYPOGRAPHICAL LITERATE

Comparatively few are aware that Mr. B has added considerably to the literature printing. In 1857 he wrote a lecture on " Origin and Progress of Printing," and delige it at Twickenham and at Richmond. It afterward privately printed, and subseque formed a portion of Vol. IV. of the "Mi lanies" of the Philobiblion Society. From fact of its appearance among the records of society so "learned" as this, and the enloging of the many "learned men" that it receives might be thought to be a "learned" product As a matter of fact it is altogether worth notwithstanding the vast opportunities of compiler. Blades says that it is "weak, full of borrowed suppositions."

He disposed of it, and away with the proceeds of the sale. Timley, heartbroken with misfortune, had to take tuation as a bookseller's hack. The pur-ser of the sheets, "at an old song," it is statwas Henry G. Bohn, who forthwith proceedto furbish them up and bring them into the tket. Accordingly he rechristened the book, ing it the "Encyclopædia of Literary and regraphical Anecdote," with a most volumistitle-page. Although it was not reprinted, as called a " second edition." Twelve pages, ever, were added at the end, giving some gre particulars of printers and booksellers 1839 to 1842. The stock of another book ten by Timperley, "The Printer's Manual," also bought up, and it was actually interpo-I bodily between pages 32 and 33.

he value of this book to every one who has slightest pretence to be regarded as a literworkman is too well known to need a word The struggles and the misfortunes of its or are, however, not so well known. The right came into the hands of Mr. Bohn, and imployed the author as a "cataloguer." A edition was issued, "enlarged by H. EXTORTIONATE PRICES.

From the Catholic Mirror, Sept. 27.

The Catholic World, in its Literary Bulletin Cotober number, has the following:
GO PRICES.—Another Catholic publishing has advanced the retail price of its books twenty-five to fifty per cent. This is adding the avengeance. Who is next? We shall something to say about all this kind of as soon as we can find time. At present re too busy to look into it. We give this note of warning.

is simply means that certain Catholic pubs have advanced their catalogue-price of s in order that they may take off very large unts under a pretence that they are selling ); whereas they are really getting a higher from the dealer and charging the public a that is entirely beyond value received.
result of this is to so entirely demoralize atholic book trade that Catholic books no fixed price in the market. To make atalogue retail price, so that the publishers take off 60 to 75 per cent discount, is all g, and leads to deception and imposition on the public, because the price is a fictitious one. Publishers should issue their publications at a reasonable price above cost, and then give a discount of not over one third or 40 per cent, at most, from their catalogue price. A dealer who gets 33½ per cent discount makes 50 per cent profit if he retails at the catalogue price. In these days of cheap transportation this is amply sufficient, and anything beyond it is extortion. We would be pleased to see the question fully discussed. It would eventually lead to the benefit of publisher, dealer, and retail purchaser.

THE COPYRIGHT CONGRESS.

THE following is the substance of a despatch to the N. Y. Herald, dated Berne, September 27: The Copyright Congress has resolved that authors belonging to the union shall enjoy equal rights with the natives of all the contractcountries, subject to the laws of the country where the work originated, or, in the case of unpublished manuscript, to the laws of the author's. country. These rules are to apply to authors publishing their works in a country belonging to the union, of which they are not natives. Authors are to enjoy ten years' exclusive right to a translation in all countries belonging to the union. The publication of extracts or entire pieces of scientific works or works of instruction will be permitted provided the author's name is given. The musical works to be protected include arrangements or compositions based on themes from original works. permanent international protection bureau has been established at Berne. Mr. Bernaert, whoopened the Congress, stated that he would introduce a bill at the next session favorable toauthors' rights.

OBITUARY.

JAMES FITZGERALD.

James Fitzgerald, the well-known bookseller and newsdealer, of Holyoke, Mass., died of consumption, Saturday night, September 27. He had been in broken health for more than two years, and has of late declined rapidly. He began business in July, 1872, in the basement of Orrell's building, afterward removing to Hutchins's Block, where he was burned out in 1876. He returned to Orrell's Block, and his business grew so that when John Cleary put up his High Street building Fitzgerald leased the south store, where he had the best trade of the kind in the city. Owing to illhealth he was obliged to give up trade two years ago, being succeeded by his brother. He won many friends, but his fidelity to business, was in part responsible for his failing health.

JAMES CAMPBELL.

James Campbell, formerly a well-known-bookseller, and publisher of medical books in Boston, died Saturday, September 27, at his-residence at Winter Hill, Boston, at the age of seventy-two years. For twenty years he was located on Cornhill, and for ten years more under the Boston Museum. He was known throughout the country also as a prominent participant in the abolition movement. Since retiring as a publisher Mr. Campbell has done a large importing business in books.

odd, Mead & Co., have issued "A Catae of an Exceptionally Fine Collection of and Choice Books, mainly from a library, terly the property of a well-known booker of New York City." The books desed in this catalogue are, almost without exion the best editions of the authors represed, and are bound by the best binder, or have the distinguishing feature to attract buyers of books. Turner's Liber Studiorum, a Kil-wack Burns, and a second folio Shakespeare are among the items of interest in this catalogue (61 p. sq. 16mo.)

JOHN L. BOLAND, St. Louis, has sent us his trade catalogue (for the fall and holiday season, 1884–1885,) of miscellaneous publications, juvenile books, Bibles, Testaments, albums, and stationers' fancy goods. The catalogue, in the matter of paper, print and neat get-up is irreproachable. The cover, especially, which, by the way, bears the imprint of our old friends the Milton Bradley Co. of Springfield, is chaste and artistic in design, and a masterpiece of monotint printing. (112 p. 8vo.)

P. BLAKISTON, SON & Co., 1012 Walnut St., Philadelphia, send out Catalogue No. 1, September, 1884, of their Medical, Dental, Pharmaceutical and Scientific Publications. The arrangement is under authors, and notices of the books are given occasionally. (48 p. 8vo.)

THE PILGER-BUCHHANDLUNG, Reading, Pa., has just ready the second issue of the second volume of their "Litteratur Blatt für Pastoren, Lehrer und das Christliche Volk," which contains a sketch of Adrian Ludwig Richter, a celebrated German painter and etcher, a number of book reviews, and a catalogue of the books published by the Pilger-Buchhandlung. (64 p. 12mo.)

ELIOT STOCK, London, has issued in a neat handy little pamphlet a reprint from the Bibliographer of "An essay Toward a Bibliography of Marlowe's 'Tragical History of Faustus.'" compiled by William Heinemann. The author's purpose has been simply to afford those interested in the subject a survey of all that is of bibliographical value concerning Marlowe's play. The essay is perhaps as complete as anything of this kind can be made.

WILL PUBLISH SATURDAY, OCT. 4:

SOME HERETICS OF YESTERDAY.

S. E. HERRICK, D. D. I vol., crown 8vo, $1.40.

CONTENTS: Tauler and the Mystics; Wicklif; John Hus; Savonarola; Latimer; Cranmer; Mancthon; Knox; Calvin; Coligny; William Brewster; John Wesley.

Taking these religious reformers in chronological order, Dr. Herrick describes the men, their characters, their opin-, and their work in connection with the social and religious life of their times. Thus the book is a connected history the leading modes and changes of theological and religious thought for over four centuries, and contains in compact attractive form just the information which multitudes of thoughtful readers desire.

THE ALGONQUIN LEGENDS OF NEW ENGLAND.

ths and Folk-Lore of the Micmac, Passamaquoddy, and Penobscot Tribes. By CHARLES G. LELAND, author of "The Gypsies," etc. With Illustrations from Designs scraped upon birch bark by an Indian. 1 vol., 12mo, $2.

Mr. Leland has succeeded in procuring directly from the Indians of Maine, and from other sources, a large number wends common to the several branches of the Algonquin Tribes. They are exceedingly interesting, and some of lare illustrated by quaint designs originally scraped by a skilful Indian on birch bark.

THE DESTINY OF MAN, VIEWED IN THE LIGHT OF HIS ORIGIN.

JOHN FISKE, author of "Outlines of Cosmic Philosophy," "The Unseen World," "Excursions of an Evolutionist," etc. 16mo, $1.

This little volume treats a great theme in a noble and adequate manner. The reverent spirit of the book, the wide of illustration, the remarkably lucidity of thought and style, and the noble eloquence that characterizes it, give it is value and interest.

THE VIKING BODLEYS.

HORACE E. SCUDDER, author of the previous "Bodley Books." Fully illustrated, with an ormamental cover, $1.50.

This charming new Bodley Book describes the 'travels of the Bodley family in Norway. They go as far North as edy can go, endeavoring to find their Viking ancestors among the fjords of that country. Thence they go to sark and visit the haunts of Hans Christian Andersen, and then return to America. The delightful story is illustiby many pictures, and is one of the freshest and most interesting of all the fascinating Bodley Books.

D. APPLETON & CO.

HAVE JUST PUBLISHED:

I.

Allan Dare and Robert le Diable.

A ROMANCE. By Admiral Porter. To be published in Nine Fortnightly Parts, access, each part with an Illustration by Alfred Fredericks. Part one now ready; Part two many October 11th. Price, 25 cents for each Part.

The 'unusual length of this romance, which is remarkable for its variety of incident and adventure, has been mined its issue in parts. The romantic character of the story recalls (Sue's, "Mysteries of Paris," and Duna "Monte Cristo," but it bears no special resemblance to those books.

II.

A Naturalist's Rambles about Home.

Stories in Rhyme for Holiday Time.

By Edward Jewitt Wheeler. Profusely illustrated by Walter Satterles. Price, $1.75.

Especially designed for young people from eight to twenty years of age. No pains have been spared to make the most attractive book of the season. The author has been for some time a contributor to such publications as Nicholas, Wide Awake, the Independent, etc. The artist is well known throughout the country as unsurpassed in a line of work. The illustrations, so in number, are most of them full-page, and invariably striking and spirited. Is stories, while abounding in frolicsome fancy and catching melody, are remarkable for their elevated tone and purity style.

'READY OCTOBER 20:

Popular Biography of John Wycliffe.

By John Laird Wilson. In Commemoration of the 500th Anniversary Wycliffe's Death, December 31st, 1384. 12mo. Price, in paper, 25 cents cloth, $1.00.

This work, which has been for some time in preparation, will treat of Wycliffe as the student, the schelar, statesman, the teacher, and the reformer. It will give the points of special interest in the latest books by British at Continental scholars concerning the times in which Wycliffe lived; as, also, his prominent characteristics and the chi events of his career. It is written in a racy and entertaining, yet scholarly style, and will undoubtedly prove the he popular life of this reformer yet written. While it will give some features in Wycliffe's career in a new light, it will all dicate him from several charges long and unjustly preferred against him.

ISSUED BY

[ALL ENTERPRISING BOOKSELLERS.]

The subscription edition of the Illustrated Christmas Number of The Publishers' Weekly will be issued as early in November as possible, to give time for the imprint editions to reach all dealers three weeks before Christmas at the latest.

The Number will as usual present the finest specimen illustrations from the New Holday Books, with special articles on the leading works, a full descriptive summary of books and stationery novelties, reference price-lists covering the Illustrated Works, Books for the Young, and other Choice Books published during 1884, etc., etc. Every endeavor be made to surpass the issues of previous years, pronounced in 1880, by the N. Y. Tribes one of the most tasteful and attractive catalogues, surpassing even the achievements of the English the same line; and even at an earlier date, by the German "Book Trade Magazine" "the most attractive publication of the kind issued in the book-producing countries."

The imprint edition (intended for distribution by dealers with their sole imprint) will be printed immediately after the issue of the Trade edition, under the title of "CHRISTMAS CATALOGUE," as given above.

The local bookseller can add half as much again to his holiday trade by properly calling the attention of the public to his goods. For this purpose, the best means is the circulation of this handsome, interesting, and comprehensive Christmas Catalogue, which is received will pleasure by those to whom it is given or sent, as itself a picture-book of no little value; as its descriptions of and illustrations from books, at once arouse the desire to purchase the books themselves.

No better investment can be made by the bookseller who wants to make the most of his balls wade.

Orders filled in the order of size of edition, largest first, and then of receipt. As the paper is specially made for this issue, orders should be received at once, as the falling of bedemands cannot be guaranteed.

Orders should be sent in at once, and in order to avoid delay, it is absolutely necessary to copy for imprint, together with full directions for forwarding, should accompany the remitted All packages sent by express unpaid, unless other shipping directions are given.

NOTES IN SEASON.

'ORDS, HOWARD & HULBERT issue this week lge Tourgée's new book, "An Appeal to sar," which deals with an American question prave import, and which, it is promised, will be some astounding revelations.

D. APPLETON & Co. publish to-day "The ree Prophets: Chinese Gordon, Mohammedmed, Arabi Pasha," by Col. Chaillé Long, e author was General Gordon's chief of staff the Soudan, and while acting as consular at at Alexandria be witnessed the massacres i the bombardment of that city. His long idence in Egypt and the extraordinary facilible had for observing events make him a competent authority, and we think that expectation of an interesting volume will be faced. They have also ready the second part Allan Dare."

P. Roe's new novel, "A Young Girl's Wood of which the first edition will be 25,000 form.

There could be no better evidence of chell.

the continued popularity of this author than the fact that 152,000 copies of the pamphlet editions of "Barriers Burned Away" and "Opening of a Chestnut Burr" were sold on railways and news-stands without lessening, in the least, the demand for the regular editions. They announce that they will publish in November as "History of the Huguenot Emigration to the American Colonies in the Seventeenth and Eighteenth Centuries," by Charles W. Baird, D.D.—a work based upon extensive research and upon a movement hitherto little understood, and that will fill an important gap in our historical literature.

JAMES R. OSGOOD & Co. have now ready "Marmion," by Sir Walter Scott, printed from new plates and containing more than one hundred exquisite illustrations by leading American artists, engraved under the skilful supervision of Mr. A. V. S. Anthony. In its whole get up it is uniform with "The Lady of the Lake," issued by this house a couple of years ago. They have also just ready, in one volume entitled "Favorite Authors," the three popular volumes "Favorite Authors," "Household Friends," and "Good Company;" a new issue of "Our Poetical Favorites," also three volumes in one; and "A History of Presidential Elections," by Edward Stanwood, a vade mecum of American political history, containing all the platforms of all the Presidential campaigns, the history of the elections, and the growth of the political issues upon which they were decided, and other information indispensable to the understanding of the politics of the present and past.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S Sons will publish at once "Carlyle in London," by James Anthony Froude, being a concluding portion of "Thomas Carlyle: a History of his Life." These two final volumes, in which Mr. Froude's own narrative will occupy a large proportion of the space, are likely to increase the interest taken in this work still further, for they concern the period of Mr. Carlyle's greatest literary activity and the time when his association with some of the most prominent men of his time gave greater variety to his every-day life. They will publish on the 18th inst., "Stuff and Nonsense," a series of comicalities with pen and pencil, by Mr. Frost, which reveal the power of provoking merriment absolutely without sting. that is the inimitable art of the born humorist; "The Snake-Dance of the Moqins of Arizona," by John G. Bourke, Captain Third U.S. Cavalry, in which he gives a narrative of a journey from Santa Fé, New Mexico, to the villages of the Moqin Indians, with a description of the manners and customs of this peculiar people, and especially of the revolting snake-dance which they practice as a religious rite, illustrated by thirty plates, many of them beautifully colored; "The Silver Canyon," a tale of the Western plains, by G. Manville Fenn, for which the Great West, with its sublime scenery, vast mineral wealth, gigantic forests, and wild men and beasts, furnishes the material; and the seventh volume in the Stories by American Authors. They will also have ready new editions of "The Merry Adventures of Robin Hood," illustrated by Howard Pyle; and of "My Farm at Edgewood," which will be issued in the new uniform edition of the writings of Donald G. Mit-

Tells of the work and pleasures of some boys from Louisiana and Mississippi, who were obliged to spend their vacation at a boarding-school in Virginia, owing to the ravages of yellow fever in their section of the country. They choose a leader, and do out-of-door work four hours a day. Every Sunday they read a sermon, left by the principal of the school for that purpose. Several of these are given, and are of a kind to interest the most boyish boys.

3-392 p. S. (No name [third] ser.) cl., $1.

The plot here turns upon the fact that a marriage made by a French subject under twenty-five, without the consent of his parents, is illegal in France, though perfectly legal in England, where it was made. Maxence, Duke de Wardes, is sent to England to get him away from a degrading entanglement; he meets and loves Leila Cavendish, a beautiful English girl of good birth; he marries her in apptte of the refusal of his parents, and lives happily with her for three years. His father's illness brings him back to France, where he is in law a single man; weakly yielding to his mother's desires he repudiates his English wife and marries a French heiress. The novel, as may be imagined, has many sad scenes in it. has many sad scenes in it.

Art year-book, 1884: American art. Bost., Mass., prepared and published by the New England Institute, 1884. 150 p. il. Q. bds.,

A. a outgrowth of the annual illustrated catalogue of the Fine Arts Department of the New England Institute. Its chief aim is to represent, by means of suitable graphic arts, the highest American art products of the year, the book, as a whole, representing American brains, labor, and material, with the exception of the Chinese, Japanese, and India papers used in the limited edition. The work is an exquisite specimen of book-making, and is from the Art Age Press of Mr. A. B. Turnure. Every page is differently designed, and is a fine study for the book-maker and artist; the text, which includes notes and a history of the Institute, is printed upon fine hand-made paper, and the illustrations which follow, and which represent eleven full-page examples of various graphic processes and a number of artists autographic drawings, are upon high-finished paper. There are also some examples of applied art. The catalogue of the art-exhibit of the Institute completes the work. The binding is in stiff boards, covered with white parchment paper, upon which is a Japanese design by Mr. Turner, printed in five colors, red, blue, and silver being the next prominent.

The Countess of Albany. Bost., Roberts ser.) cl., $1.

Louise, Princess of Stolberg-Gedern, became "Countess of Albany" through her marriage with Charles Edward Stuart, known to history as the younger Pretender, and to society in the later part of the eighteenth century as the Count of Albany. Her life was spent in Italy, where she gathered around her the finest intellects of the day. Victorio Alfieri, the great Italian poet and dramatist, was her intimate friend. After the death of her dissolute husband, she united her fortunes with Alfieri's, and lived with him till his death. Vernon Lee tells the Countess story in a graphic style, and with, perhaps, what the critics might call too much charity. The volume presents a remarkable picture of the life and morals of Italy of that period, and of the character of Alfieri.

Mr. Stanwood says "this history of presidential elections professes to be little more than a record of the circumstances of such elections, and of whatever has an appreciable influ-ence upon the result of each election." But as in this cate-gory is comprehended almost every important incident of the domestic and foreign relations of the United States, the book will be found to contain references, with or without comment, to most of the events in American political history. The material has been gathered from the newspapers, political almanacs, Greeley's "Political text-book," and McPherson's "Political hand-books."

"Tip Cat" is the nickname his native county has gi Tipton Cathcart, a cynic of secluded habits, who, by a dent, meets the children of his fars love, finds them as tual want, and protects them and provides for them is tenderest, most delicate manner. Although dealing at wholly with the lives of children, this graceful tale of a duty will not be appreciated at its full value by the yu. The struggles of an elder brother to support two small ters can only be understood by those who know the a and temptations of the situation, presented so logically with such rare touches of humor and pathos.

THE AMERICAN EXHIBITION IN LONDON.

THE American Exhibition, which it is proposed hold in London in 1886, and in which Gen. ss. B. Norton, one of the veterans of the *k-trade, is a leading spirit, may be made of y great commercial value to this country. r English cousins have of late years been ming their eyes wide to the fact that Jonan has a good deal to show to John Bull in ny other fields besides that of feeding the rld, and the increasing number of English rellers who come to this country are becoming loud of witnesses of our practical progress. t there is still much to teach, and doubtless amercial intercourse can be greatly increased he profit of American producers. American f and Waterbury watches are not the only us we can show.

f only for the sentimental satisfaction of ing a final answer to "Who reads an Ameribook?" our own trade should be adequately resented at such an exhibition, if it promises really representative. We are glad to note t Mr. Jas. R. Osgood, of our trade, is one the managers, and though on the prospectus re are some names which are not in themres a guarantee of success, and it is in general ched in unnecessarily grandiloquent periods, h an exhibition ought to be and can be made entire success. In our own trade, the Amera magazines have earned for American literae and illustrative art a very wide reputation I market, yet English publishers still are apt avoid, when they buy editions of books, any lication of their American origin. This ought to be, and an adequate representation of the American book-trade at this exhibition ought to correct this state of things.

It is proposed that the exhibition shall be opened in London on May 1st, 1886, and continue about six months. We shall inform our readers of the further progress of the plans, and we hope some action will be taken by which a plan of co-operation can be secured that will enable America to make such an exhibit of books and bindings as will fairly show the standard of excellence reached by our trade. We are informed that several firms have already applied for space. An organized movement, leading to an exact idea of the space needed by the booktrade, and an application for it at an early date, would make it possible to plan, classify, and place the book-trade exhibition in an advantageous and tasteful way. Details of the exhibition can be learned by application to Charles B. Norton, Secretary of the American Exhibition, 7 Poultry, London, England.

THE FALL TRADE SALE.

THE Fall Trade Sale came to an end on Saturday, Oct. 11. Although, as already noted, the attendance did not at any time come up to that of previous years, bidding was tolerably lively, and the prices on the better line of books were satisfactory. The poor "plugs, as usual, were mercilessly slaughtered. But, then, no one is ever sorry for those, not even the consignee, who often seems to look relieved at being well rid of rubbish.

At the sale of the stereotype plates the plates of Cameron and Ferguson, of Glasgow, were withdrawn, and a number of those put up by the other consignees were either not put up or "bought in." The following is a list of those sold and the names of the parties purchasing them:

INVOICE OF S. E. CASSINO & CO.

WORKS OF FREDERICK SCHILLER, 8 vols., il. 12°, to J. D. Williams, N. Y.

WORKS OF W. V. GOETHE, 5 vols., il. 12°, to J. D. Williams, N. Y.

RAWLINSON, G., History of Ancient Egypt, 3 vols., 8°, to Dodd, Mead & Co.

GRANVILLE, J. Mortimer, works on mental and physical hygiene, comprising: Common Mind Troubles; How to Make the Best of Life; Sleep and Sleeplessness; The Secret of a Clear Head; The Secret of a Good Memory, 5 vols., 16°, to D. Lethrop & Co.

PARLEY, PETER, Cottage Library, 12 vols., 18°, to J. D.

INVOICE OF LOCKWOOD, BROOKS & CO.

BARTLETT, MARY C., Little Figures, and other Stories, 16°, to R. Worthington.

Burr, Rev. E. F., Toward the Straight Gate, 12°, to N. Tibbals & Son.

The "History of the Battle of Bunker's Hill," by Rev. Dr. G. E. Ellis; "Thoughts Fit Bread for Children," by Rev. Horace Bushnell; and "The Ponca Chiefs," by Zylyff, with introduction by Bright Eyes, and a dedication by Wendell Phillips, were bought by a gentleman who does not wish to disclose his name at present.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION AS TO SUB-SCRIPTION ORDERS.

In the Philadelphia Court of Common Pleas an injunction asked for by Carson, Stewart & Co. against the J. M. Stoddart Company, Limited, was refused. Messrs. Carson, Stewart & Co., subscription agents, desired an injunction to restrain the defendant from delivering the volumes of the Encyclopædia Britannica, American reprint, to certain subscribers whom Carson, Stewart & Co. had heretofore been delivering. The limited company had given notice to Carson, Stewart & Co., who were the company's agents, that hereafter their services would be dispensed with, and that the company would deliver all volumes to the subscribers direct. To prevent the company from doing so, Carson, Stewart & Co. filed a bill in equity, claiming that they had a right under their contract with the limited company to make the deliveries of volumes to all subscribers which had been obtained by them until the completion of the work in twenty-one or more volumes, only seventeen of which have now been published, and moved for an injunction to protect such right. The court, in refusing the injunction, decide in effect that the limited company is the owner of the orders of subscription, and may deliver all the volumes thereon to subscribers.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE Philadelphia North American is one hundred years old.

BEGINNING with January, 1885, the Congregational S. S. and Pub. Soc. of Boston will issue a new monthly magazine entitled The Pilgrim Teacher, which will be devoted to the interests of Congregational Sunday-schools, containing editorials and contributed articles on practical topics, expositions of the International Lessons, news of Sunday-schools, etc.

THE Christian at Work announces in its issue of this week that the subscription list and goodwill of the weekly Continent, conducted since the commencement by Judge Albion W. Tourges, has been transferred to it. All subscribers of the Continent will have their subscription year filled out with a copy of the Christian at Work. Judge Tourgee will contribute to that pape, furnishing, in addition to other matter, his department of Migma, which was a feature of the Continent.—Sic transit gloria mundi.

The Index, established two years ago as a journal of education, literature, criticism, as news, and published in Ann Arbor, the educational centre of the tract, has absorbed the Michigan Educational News, and possesses we usual facilities for reflecting the maturest though on the questions within its scope. The editoral management of the Index will remain in the same competent hands that shaped its succes thus far. Prof. Alexander Winchell will will principally on matters of science and art; Pre-Charles R. Adams will write on themes the bear on matters of present political and soci importance; Prof. Wm. H. Payne will discu the art of teaching from the practical, scientific and historic standpoints; and Charies H. Douglas will take general cognizance of t management and policy of the paper, and g his chief attention to the department of "Ne and Notes" from other sources.

PHILADELPHIA. -Bradley, Garretson & Co., iblishers, Philadelphia, are at present embarssed. The firm's liabilities are about $185,o, with assets about $55,000. With reference the firm, the causes of its embarrassment and e character of the assets, it seems that five or t years ago William Garretson, who was doing siness under the firm name of William Garison & Co., secured as a partner Arthur Bradt, whose father was one of the most widely own publishers of his day. The firm then beme Bradley, Garretson & Co.; but in a little iile Mr. Bradley withdrew, and now carries business with J. N. Eisenbrey & Co. At request of Mr. Garretson, he was permitted Mr. Bradley to continue the business under old title of Bradley, Garretson & Co. The siness was extended, and agencies were or-nized throughout the United States and Can-2. Besides the Philadelphia house there are rlve agencies in the United States and Can-L Some $8000 to $10,000 was expended in vertising in newspapers, and $36,000 in cirar advertising. Their agents number from to 7000. The assets are comparatively all as compared with the liabilities. But the be of the assets of such a business lie's largely the ownership or mastery of the machinery. e agencies established are only valuable to se controlling them, and are the means of iving a valuable revenue from the stock of blications on hand. Bradley & Co. are likeme embarrassed, they being creditors of Brad-Garretson & Co. to the amount of about 3,000, with assets estimated at $40,000. It is sected both firms will be allowed to go on, arrangements are now being made with the ditors to that effect.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

D. APPLETON & Co. are to publish Mr. Julian withorne's new novel, "Noble Blood," ich appeared as a serial in the New York ibune.

The popularity in Canada of "The Orthoëpist" if "The Verbalist," by Alfred Ayres, has inced two publishers there to issue pirated edius of these manuals.

JOHN C. WARD, of Chicago, have issued a wedition of their useful book entitled "Comrative Weights of Standard Papers," a work use to all who handle paper.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will publish at once, in e Leisure Hour and Leisure Moment series, a tume entitled "My Friends and I," a novel sich Julian Sturgis claims to have simply sted.

T. Y. CROWELL & Co. announce that they we made arrangements with Houghton, iffin & Co. to issue the early poems of ongfellow and Whittier in their Red-line series poets.

H. B. GARNER, Philadelphia, will publish on 20th inst. a volume entitled "Our Blessed lope; or, Select Tracts on the Advent," by various authors, with an introduction by Dr. Joseph A. Seiss.

W. B. SIZER, of Dearborn St., Chicago, we learn from the Chicago Telegram, has received a handsome watch, suitably inscribed, from a grateful customer, for whom he had hunted and found a scarce book.

GINN, HEATH & Co. have ready, a "Gymnastic Manual," by Dr. Edward Hitchcock, Professor of Gymnastics at Amherst College Gymnasium, a thoroughly practical work by a practical teacher; "Choice Readings for the Use of Schools and Elocution Classes," by Professors Fulton and Trueblood; and a "Handbook of Latin Synonyms," by Edgar S. Shumway, Professor of Latin in Rutgers College.

HARPER & BROS., we learn from the N. Y. Times, have been incorrectly announced as the publishers of Benson J. Lossing's forthcoming elaborate "History of New York City," the true owner and publisher of the work being Mr. George E. Perine, of No. 121 Nassau Street. The work will be published by subscription only, and will comprise two volumes of about 450 pages each. Both volumes will appear at the same time.

WILLIAM CUSHING, 18 Wendell St., Cambridge, Mass., announces a "Dictionary of Initials and Pseudonyms." It will contain more than 8000 pseudonyms, with an index to all the real names accessible. The book will extend to more than 400 pages; and the subscription price will be $5. Mr, Cushing was for a long time connected with the library of Harvard College, and is the compiler of the Index to the North American Review, etc.

D. VAN NOSTRAND has issued the first volume of a work on "Magneto-Electric and Dynamo-Electric Machines," by Dr. H. Schellen, describing their construction and practical application to electric lighting and the transmission of power, translated from the third German edition by Nathaniel S. Keith and Percy Neymann. The work has been made especially attractive to American readers by the very large additions and notes relating to American machines by Nathaniel S. Keith.

JAMES J. CHAPMAN, Washington, D. C., has just ready a revised edition of Col. J. C. Tidball's "Manual of Heavy Artillery Service," prepared by the authority of the War Department for the use of the army and militia of the United States. In November he will publish an "Historical Sketch of the Organization, Administration, Matériel and Tactics of the Artillery, United States Army, from 1775 to the Present Time," by William E. Birkhimer, First Lieutenant, Third Regiment, U. S. Artillery.

HARPER & BROS. have issued in a neat volume "Some Literary Recollections," by James Payn, forming a most entertaining collection of anecdotes of the prominent literary men of our day; two editions of William Black's new novel, "Judith Shakespeare," one in cloth, uniform with their library issue of Mr. Black's novels, and one in the Franklin Square Library; "Love and Mirage; or, The Waiting on an Island: an Out-of-door Romance," by Miss Betham-Edwards; and "Country Cousins," a delightful series of studies in natural history, written for young people by Ernest Ingersoll.

MACMILLAN & Co. have ready the bound volume of the English Illustrated Magazine for

As a whole-both in its literary and artistic departments—the result of its first year's work is most satisfactory. Its literature throughout is light, but in the main of admirable quality, while it has sufficient variety not to lose attraction. Its illustrations, in drawing and engraving, display an originality which makes for the magazine a place, and that a high one, in illustrated magazine literature. In its artistic and unique binding it makes a most desirable addition to the library of an artist and lover of fine art work.

L. PRANG & Co. have been fortunate enough to secure permission from John Robie, one of the foremost flower painters, to publish one of his masterpieces as a satin print. The picture selected is of medium size, and includes roses of various kinds, intermixed with spiræa, and arranged in a deep blue vase, which contrasts charmingly with a crystal bowl in the foreground, which reflects, as it seems, every ray of light. The copy is absolutely faithful to the original, and is the most ambitious publication of the kind ever attempted. The handful of specimens just sent out by this house seem to us to excel in rickness of color and artistic merit any of their former productions in the line of the smaller cards.

D. LOTHROP & Co. have published a new and handsome edition of "America: Our National " by Rev. S. Hymn, and Other Patriotic Songs,' F. Smith, D.D., lavishly illustrated by famous artists; "It is the Christmas Time," twelve Christmas hymns by favorite authors, hand-somely illustrated; "How They Went to Eu-rope," by Margaret Sidney, a charming narra-tive in the author's usual happy vein, for the entertainment of young people, stimulating them to study and research; "Dean Stanley with the Children," by Mrs. Frances A. Humphrey, containing the Dean's most famous Christmas sermons to children, with an account of his own life as a boy, fully illustrated; and " Plucky Boys," volume in the Business Boys' Library, compris-ing narratives of boys who have met and conquered obstacles in business or dangerous positions, and left an honored name behind them.

J. W. Bouton desires to inform the trade that, inasmuch as certain parties have reprinted Sterne's "Sentimental Journey," as illustrated by Maurice Leloir, regardless of the fact that he was the joint-projector and the owner of the sole right for the English and American market, he has determined to meet the pirated and, as he claims, inferior edition, by reducing the price of his own to one half its subscription price-viz., $12.50. As has already been noted in the WEEKLY, this edition is a sumptuous one in every respect, printed from the type on heavy vellum paper, with portrait of Sterne and twelve full-page plates in photogravure by Gourd Co., after the original drawings of the artist in colors; also a large number of designs scattered through the book. The work is bound in paper, stitched, with an ornamental cover, printed a colors, and is inclosed in a neat box.

JANSEN, McClurg & Co. will publish this tall "The Life of Abraham Lincoln," by the inc Isaac N. Arnold. Mr. Arnold was closely exgaged upon this task for several years, finis it but a few weeks before his death in May last. His early acquaintance with Lincoln in Illian and intimacy with him in public life, together with the thoroughness with which he has conlected and studied his material, are expected give the work a high permanent value. In same firm will issue also, this fall, "The Boat Lover," a small volume containing selection from the best short sayings about books, in spersed with practical suggestions on the use books, the formation of libraries, courses reading, etc. The author is Prof. James Ba win, author of "The Story of Siegfried" There v several works on English literature. be, besides the regular edition of the book limited one on large paper.

THE question of copyright deposit is again. citing attention in France. M. Raunié prop that both the printer and the publisher t deposit separately two copies apiece, the lisher's two copies to go to be the spoil of Bibl thèque Nationale and some other public libra the two copies of the printer to go to provide libraries, to their great gain, especially in b ing up collections of local history.

REGARDING P. G. Hamerton's book on I scape, just announced, the London Academy ports that it will be illustrated with some to illustrations, of which one half are etchings engravings on copper. The original etching include "The Port of Blanzy," by Mr. Hat ton himself; "Le Bas Mendon" and "Nor sur-Marne," by M. Lalanne; "Lobster E. ers," by Mr. Colin Hunter; and "A Stage Tree," by Mr. Heywood Hardy. M. A. net-Debaines has also specially etched for work Turner's "Totnes" and Mr. C. O. I ray has etched Landseer's "Eagle Nest." book will be supplied in this country by M millan & Co.

WILL PUBLISH OCT. 18:

Stuff and Nonsense.

A SERIES OF COMICALITIES WITH PEN AND PENCIL. Small 4to, $1.50.

These whimsical pictures by Mr. Frost reveal the unconscious art of the born humorist and a rare power of provoking boisterous merriment, absolutely without sting, by means of a series of comical drawings of ludicross situations and grotesquely funny accidents. The cover of the book is an admirable design of the author's, and there are numerous original embellishments in accurate keeping with the spirit of fun that prevails throughout. The happy possessor of the volume will recur again and again to its pages to dwell on some bit of joility that has particularly struck his fancy, for the humor of the work does not exhaust itself easily.

The Snake Dance of the Moqins of Arizona.

Being a Narrative of a Journey from Santa Fé, New Mexico, to the villages of the Moqia Indians of Arizona, with a Description of the Manners and Customs of this Peculiar People, and especially of the Revolting Religious Rite—the Snake Dance; to which is added a brief dissertation upon Serpent Worship in General, with an account of the Tablet Dance of the Pueblo of Santo Domingo New Mexico, etc. By John G. Bourke, Captain Third U. S. Cavalry. I vol., crown 8vo, with more than thirty plates, many of them beautifully colored, $5.

No more important and original contribution has been made to the history of any of the aboriginal inhabitants of the United States than is furnished in this elegant volume. Public attention was attracted a year or two ago to the Zunis of New Mexico by the reports of Mr. Frank Cushing, of the Smithsonian Institution. This work gives a description of a kindred race, The Moqins of Arizona, who, inhabiting a number of pueblos near the boundary line between New Mexico and Arizona, and hitherto almost unknown to white mem, have preserved many of the religious ideas and rites derived from the old Artec and Toltec races of Mexico and Central America. The text is accompanied by a series of beautiful colored plates, the work of Sergmant A. F. Harmer.

NEW EDITION AT A LOWER PRICE.

The Merry Adventures of Robin Hood of Great Renown in Nottinghamshire.

WRITTEN AND ILLUSTRATED BY HOWARD PYLE. One volume, quarto, cloth. Price reduced to $3.00.

The book stands at the head of the class to which it belongs, being as excellent in its quaint and delightful style as it is in an artistic sense.

WILL PUBLISH AT ONCE

Carlyle in London.

By JAMES ANTHONY FROUDE.

THE CONCLUDING PORTION OF

THOMAS CARLYLE: A History of His Life.

Two Vols., Library Edition, $4.00. Cheap Edition, One Vol., $1.50.

Public interest in the life and literary achievements of Mr. Carlyle has kept pace with the successive volumes of Mr. Froude's remarkable biography, and the volumes of reminiscences and letters which have had an immense circulation.

The two final volumes of the Life now about to be published are likely to increase this interest still further, for they concern the period of Mr. Carlyle's greatest literary activity and the time when his association with some of the most prominent men of his time gave greater variety and importance to his every-day life.

In these volumes, also, Mr. Froude's own narrative occupies a large proportion of the space, there being fewer quotations from the letters and journals of the Carlyles and more description and incident.

EARLY ORDERS ARE SOLICITED.

A Card.

TO THE TRADE AND PUBLIC.

The subscriber begs to inform the public that regardless of the fact that he was the joint projector and owner of the sole right for the English and American market of the magnificent edition of Sterne's Sentimental Journey, illustrated by Maurice Leloir, just published by him in conjunction with Mr. H. Launette, of Paris, and totally ignoring that unwritten law and common courtesy which have always governed the trade in matters of this kind, certain unscrupulous parties wishing to reap where they have not sown, have reprinted his edition of this book, reproducing the designs of Mr. Leloir by cheap and inferior process work, with the intention of placing it on the market at a much lower price than the genuine edition could be profitably sold for, and thus ruining the sale of his book which has been published by subscription at $25.

The subscriber hereby announces that in order that the public may not be imposed upon by a garbled and indifferently printed pirated edition of this truly artistic work, and regardless of the loss accruing to himself, he has resolved to make a great sacrifice and to sell the remainder of the edition at one-half its subscription price, to wit, $12.5a.

As this book is entirely new, and unquestionably one of the handsomest editions of an English classic ever issued in any country, while the pirated edition is inferior to it in every respect, he trusts that the public will hasten to avail themselves of this unprecedented opportunity to secure a copy of the genuine issue at a merely nominal price.

ROBERTS BROTHERS, Boston, Mass.

NOW READY.

A TRUMPET BLAST!

The Author of "A Fool's Errand" tells another and far more startling story to the American people. He calls it

An Appeal to Cæsar.

It is an amazing book,—a book of hard facts, sturdy logic, and astounding conclusions. It treats of the swift strides of the Black race to numerical preponderance in the South, with tabutreats of the swift strides of the Black race to numerical preponderance in the South, with tabulated statistics, revealing a state of things undreamed of on this Continent. It shows an immiment and unsuspected national peril. It contains words of warning from a political philosopher. It is an appeal to the American People to BE WISE IN TIME.

Vivid as an electric light; interesting as a novel; filled with newly-found facts and arguments of irresistible force, it opens with a delightful sketch of President Garfield, showing his intense interest in the subject, and the pledge which he exacted from the Author, in fulfilment of which the book has been written.

Biography, history, political science, and the art of good government are here combined in an absorbingly interesting work.

Its warnings will cause the most reckless to stop and think.

All booksellers and publishers are cautioned against publishing or selling any but bearing the title "CHATTERBOX," either by itself or in connection with other weak, which is not issued or authorized by us, as all infringers of our trade-mark will be promptly proceeded against. The following is an extract from the

FINAL DECREE FOR PERPETUAL INJUNCTION:

DANA ESTES AND CHAS. F. LAURIAT, v.

JOHN D. WILLIAMS AND JOHN W. LOVELL.

This cause came to be heard at the February Term, 1884, of said Court, and was are by Counsel for the respective parties, and thereupon, and upon consideration thereof, it hereby ordered, adjudged, and decreed as follows, viz.:

That the name or word "Chatterbox," as applied to and used with books of a juval character by James Johnston,

IS A 600D AND VALID TRADE-MARK, and that the title thereto for such use in the United States of America is vested in the Oplainants, and that the Defendants have infringed upon the exclusive rights of the Compliants in and to the same.

And it is further ordered, adjudged, and decreed that the Complainants do recover to the Defendants the profits, gains, and advantages which the said Defendants have received made or which have arisen or accrued to them by reason of any infringement by the said fendants of the said trade-mark "Chatterbox" since the first day of January, 1880.

And it is further ordered, adjudged, and decreed that the said Complainants do record the Defendants their costs and charges and disbursements in this suit to be taxed.

And it is further ordered, adjudged, and decreed that a

PERPETUAL INJUNCTION BE ISSUED

in this suit against the said defendants according to the prayer of the bill enjoining and restring them and each of them, and their and each of their attorneys, agents, workmen and vants from directly or indirectly printing, stamping, marking, attaching or affixing said to or word "Chatterbox," or any name or word substantially the same, or essentially idea therewith, in or upon any books of a juvenile character, of the class, style and character of Complainants' said books mentioned and described in the bill of complaint filed in this said from selling, offering for sale, or in any manner dealing in such books, except those or printed and published by the complainants under their license and authority.

HOYT H. WHEELE

U. S. Circuit Court, filed Oct. 8, 1884.
TIMOTHY GRIFFITH, Clerk.

In accordance with our former notice of caution, suits have been commenced as Frank Leslie, Belford, Clarke & Co., and Richard Worthington to restrain them from publication and sale of any and all books bearing the name "Chatterbox" upon them, all others publishing or selling any "Chatterbox" not published by us will be proceed promptly against. We shall esteem it a favor if all booksellers will notify us of any perhaps whom they know to be selling Chatterboxes not issued by us.

NOTES IN SEASON.

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish next week "At the World's Mercy," a new novel by the author of "The House on the Marsh;" "Noble Blood," a new novel by Julian Hawthorne; and the third part of "Allan Dare and Robert le Diable."

J. B. LIPPINCOTT & Co. have now ready "Doris," a new novel by the "Duchess." The name of the authoress guarantees a readable work, and we understand that this volume displays more than her usual power. In the course of the story the land troubles which have recently agitated Ireland are touched upon, and some new ideas of the condition of the country are given.

S. C. GRIGGS & Co. will publish on the 25th inst. the third volume in their series of German Philosophical Classics, edited by Professor George S. Morris. This work will be a critical exposition of "Fichte's Science of Knowledge," by Dr. C. C. Everett, of Harvard, and will contain a careful and scholarly analysis of Fichte's philosophy and methods of thought. Probably no man in this country has given to the works of Fichte so thorough and intelligent study as Dr. Everett.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. will publish next week Mr. Parkman's new work, "Montcalm and Wolfe." It will be Part VII. of the series of historical narratives, "France and England in North America." The period covered by the narrative is 1748 to 1763. In addition to fine maps, specially engraved for the work, it will contain a portrait of Montcalm from a photograph of the original picture in the possession of the Marquis de Montcalm, and a portrait of Wolfe from a photograph of the original picture in possession of Admiral Ward.

James R. Osgood & Co. have ready this week the "History of the Andover Theological Seminary," by Rev. Leonard Woods, an exhaustive history of the foundation and progress of this great theological school; Henry James's "Tales of Three Cities;" "Select Poems of Tenuyson," fifty of the most prominent poems, with notes and introduction by W. J. Rolfe; "Homes and All About Them," by E. C. Gardner, three volumes in one, a reissue of these popular treatises on home building and furnishing, in cheaper form, revised and corrected; and a cheap edition of the American Actor Series, in three volumes, which will be sold only in sets.

ROBERTS BROTHERS have just ready Philip Gilbert Hamerton's new volume on "Human Intercourse," which deals, in the humorously philosophic style familiar to readers of his "Intellectual Life," with a series of problems that encounter us every day in our relations with our fellow-men-such as independence, companionship in marriage, family ties, fathers and sons, differences of rank and wealth, priests and women, letters, and the like. The book is ap-They have also just ready "The Loving Ballad of Lord Bateman," an epic poem, with illustrations by George Cruickshank; "Hours in a Garden," by E. V. B., (Mrs. Boyle,) essays written in an English garden, with a charming and attractive style of expression and graceful manner, illustrated with a number of vignettes; "Daily Strength for Daily Needs," selected by the editor of "Quiet Hours," containing brief selections in prose and verse, and texts of Scripture, and intended as a daily companion and counsellor; "Festival Poems," a collection for Christmas, New Year, and Easter; also new issues of the illustrated 12mo editions of "Gray's Elegy in a Country Churchyard," "Lead, Kindly Light," and "Songs of Seven," handsomely bound in alligator leather for the holiday trade.

On a far-off northern island two brothers, young Englishman, and two sisters, charming German girls, meet at a stable d'hôte, and quickly become acquainted; the elder of the two brothers is in search of an emotion, the elder of the sisters is flying from a sorrow; mutual confidences and mutual sympathy beget love, or the semblance of it, in both couples; the story throughout is quite unconventional, taking place almost entirely out of doors; there is a tragical element introduced into it about half way through, which is novel in treatment and in denondment. Published annonymously, but the Athensum gives Miss Betham-Edwards's name as that of the author.

Mr. Fortune, who is editor of The New York Globs, the organ of the colored race, says in his preface that "the primal purpose in publishing this work is to show that the social problems in the South are, in the main, the same as those which afflict every civilized country on the globe; and that the future conflict in that section will not be racial or political in character, but between capital on the one hand and labor on the other, with the odds largely in favor of non-productive wealth, because of the undue advantage given the latter by the pernicious monopoly in land which limits production and forces population disastrously upon subsistence."

I motive of Mr. Roe's latest story is quite novel: a gandebeautiful girl deliberately sets about winning the of her choice; her "wooing" is told in such a tender, the way, that the reader feels it is all justified, and rein her final success. When the story begins, Madge is an almost hopeless invalid; she resides in her seria-law's house, and is thrown into daily contact his brother, Graydon Muir. She suddenly awakens to the fact that she loves him, and determines to win from him something more than a brother's affection. A couple of years' sojourn in California gives her health and radiant beauty, armed with which she returns to the contest the book describes.

Adopting these democratic theories as their guide, the colony settled first in Texas in 1848, and after a brief but not successful experience moved to Nauvoo, the old Mormon town of Illinois. The community was named "Icaria," and earnestly strove to carry out all its professions of justice, equality, and morality. It met with indifferent success, but a small number of representatives still existing in California. A chapter is devoted to "Some kindred social experiments."

To give the reader "a better understanding of the national life and force which were behind the great leader who achieved so much for the renown of his people, and left so permanent an impression on the Europe of the seventeenth century." Mr. Stevens begins his work with a brief sketch of Sweden from the earliest times, presenting the more salient and important events and incidents of her history; succeeding is an account of the causes and be-ginnings of the War of Thirty Years, and sketches of some of the chief men with whom Gustavus Adolphus' career was identified. For the preparation of this historical ac-count of this most illustrious hero, whose life is as fas-cinating as a romance, and embraces one of the most important periods in Swedish history, the author carefully read and considered the best Swedish, German, French, and English writers on the subject, and had many valuable conversations with Swedish scholars and statesmen, in his recent capacity of United States Minister at Stockholm.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BISMARCK, DAKOTA.--J. W. Clarke, of Ingham, Clarke & Co., Cleveland, O., has established a first-class bookstore at this place, and should be glad to get publishers' fall lists and announcements.

CINCINNATI, O .- H. W. Derby & Co., who three years ago established at this city a depot for Harper & Bros. publications, have retired from business, and are succeeded by J. F. Shumate & Co. The new firm is composed of Messrs. J. F. Shumate. Isaac and Russell Frrett, H. McDiarmid, and John P. Kline, and in addition to the depot of Harper & Bros.' publications will carry a full line of other books and stationery, and will do a general business as engravers, printers, and binders. Mr. Derby will devote his time for the present to real-estate, in which direction, we understand, he has already done considerable and creditable work.

CINCINNATI, O .- Peter G. Thomson's large manufactory of toy books and games, one of the largest establishments of its kind in the United States, was destroyed by fire on Mon-day, October 13th. Mr. Thomson occupied a five-story building on the north-east corner of Baymiller and Everett streets, with a front of forty-seven feet and a depth of eighty-seven. The first floor was occupied as a packing-room for finished stock; on the second were five presses; the bindery, etc., occupied the third floor; the fourth was devoted to the artist and engraving departments; and the fifth contained the wood-working department and the place for storing old rags. Mr. Thomson estimates his loss at about $75,000. Only the day before the fire a large stock of paper was received at the manufactory. On an average one hundred hands were employed, who are temporarily thrown out of work.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

OCTOBER 18, 1884.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

The trade are invited to send "Communications" to the editor on any topic of interest to the trade, and as to which an interchange of opinion is desirable. Also, matter for "Notes and Queries" thankfully received.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

INTRICACIES OF COPYRIGHT.

IT seems extraordinary indeed that no civilized nation has yet been able to produce a satisfactory copyright law. In this country, our domestic law is very imperfect and confusing, and an international system seems to be developing, like Topsy, in a most unnatural manner. The "Chatterbox Caution, No. 2," issued by Estes & Lauriat in our last number, too late for editorial discussion, is an illustration of that worst of business conditions—the uncertainty of ill-defined legal basis. Nothing can be more unfortunate to healthful business than that the merchant should be uncertain as to his legal rights. Of course, Messrs. Estes & Lauriat mean to protect their purchases to the full extent of the law, and Messrs. Worthington and others do not mean to be prevented from issuing their lines unless the law compels them. The retail dealers, in the mean time, are between the upper and the nether mill-stone, and we can only urge in their behalf that a test suit should at once be carried through to decide whether such issues as "Chatterbox Junior," using the name Chatterbox as part only of their title, and containing other than the Johnston matter, are really enjoined under the trade-mark decision.

ANOTHER curious case comes to us from across the water. Some conscienceless speculator in book-titles has quietly entered in Stationers' Hall the title announced by Field & Tuer as that of Max O'Rell's forthcoming volume—viz., "The Daughters of John Bull' — and by this device blocked their use of it by its proper owners, without "backsheesh" to this literary highway man. Consequently, Mr. Tuer has been compelled to resort to the ingenious device of protecting another title—"John Bull's Womanhood"—by putting it on a little brochure of protest, priced at "one farthing." This is, indeed, a curious anomaly.

THE "Congress" which sat recently at Bene has set all these things beautifully right—on paper; but practically the development of copyright law waits definite action by this countrie the matter of international copyright. It is matter of regret that the author of the Dosheimer bill has not been renominated for election to Congress; but he still has another session to serve, and we trust that, with or without he aid, "a long pull, a strong pull, and a pall all together" will give us some legislation in the desired direction. Before the opening of the next Congressional session, we shall invite the co-operation of our own trade in some moderate, practical steps to this end.

THOSE subscribers to the AMERICAN CATA LOGUE who have directed us to send their cop in instalments should by this time have receive Part I., and we trust their satisfaction with will result in an endeavor to obtain for the one or two subscribers each among their or rades of the trade or among book-loving o tomers. The great labor and expense involve can only be compensated by the best support trade can give the enterprise, and we can to say that no bibliography of its size and imp tance has ever been issued so promptly and so low a price. We repeat also the request t publishers will take pains to see if there are omissions in this first part of the alphabet, a report data to us at once.

The new edition of "Books for the Young revised by Miss Hewins up to this fall is at ready, and ought to commend itself to be sellers and to librarians, both as a tradetool at as a means of increasing and bettering children reading. Booksellers should show it to parent and do themselves and their customers an exservice.

MODERN BOOKBINDING.

BY J. W. ZABHNSDORF.

From British and Colonial Printer and Stations BOOKBINDING has certainly very much also since the days of Grolier and his contemporad Could he but see some of the clothwork the now in the market, he would, there is no de be astonished. Seeing that there are compatively few books bound now but in cloth, it hooves us to ask, Is not clothwork modern be binding?

On some of the clothwork there is don'el good taste shown in the selection of color a general get-up of the book; but on how fet the book itself studied that the binding she be in keeping with its contents! Compare volumes of Keepsake and other table books were issued some few years ago bound in sill in stamped velvet to the books now case!

audy cloth. Of the thousand and one publishd, how many books are issued in a properly ound form? For one must make a distinction etween a cased book and one bound in boards. cased book, or, in plainer words, a cloth cover, , after all that can be said in its favor, only a aperior kind of wrapping; at the first fall or rugh usage the book parts from its jacket, and ie cover then offers but little protection to its intents. True, there are a few books to be had hich are placed in a better sort of binding; at as the leather used and the binding altoether is scarcely better than a fraud, it takes a ace but very little higher than clothwork, and the two, one would almost prefer the clothsed copy, because one knows what to expect the book be used much, and the cost is very uch less. Again, how many are there who iderstand or even know a properly bound book? much of this cheap work has been done at it is almost a rarity to have a well-bound ok in one's hands.

Is the binder to be blamed for this deterioran of solid work? One can hardly censure m, for he, being under the direction of the iblisher, has to do as ordered; or, if the work estimated for, the publisher accepts, in almost ery case, the lowest tender, and the binder s, very often, to scamp the work to make it y, and does not care how it is executed, so ag as his work be accepted. This, then, inlpates the publisher, for one cannot blame public, who are attracted by anything that is eap and of a gaudy character. No doubt the blic require retraining as to the choice of oks and bindings. An attempt was made in s direction some three or four years ago by enterprising publisher, who certainly did at a very choice book, and who promised its becribers the book in a properly bound form. that everything should be correct, a firstas binder was consulted, who finally took : order to get up two copies in different styles, th copy consisting of a few sheets of letterss, but filled up to proper thickness with ak paper, so that the travellers could show style of printing, woodcuts, thickness of ok, and, lastly, the beautiful binding, perhaps o quoting the binder's name as a further in-ment for orders. The binder having promof such an unusual order—viz., some hundreds copies in fancy vellum, took great trouble, i his men working during holiday time, and ned out two very fine samples of binding just time for the travellers. The books were wa and admired, but when the time arrived them to be bound, instead of the original ider reaping the benefit of his brains, the two oks were taken to a cloth binder, the sides re electroed, the books cased, and issued to subscribers, very few of them knowing the ad practised. This is quoted as one instance R few of the public-ay, and very few booklers, really know a properly bound book en they see one.

Inother example happened in which the writer a silent spectator. A gentleman came to a der of good repute; he wanted a book very ely bound, and, after having a number of the shown him bound in various styles, from in russia to daintily inlaid morocco, at last acted a superb Grolier for pattern; the color next selected, then the price was asked; a thest sum was named. "What!" exclaimed customer, "I don't want to pay more than

28. or 28. 6d." A plain green cloth binding, lettered on the back, with sprinkled edges, was afterward chosen, and the gentleman expressed himself quite as well satisfied as with the morocco conv.

Here was a man, evidently moving in good society, who, taking quite one hour of a tradesman's time, expected a rich Grolier in morocco, with gilt edges, for 2s. 6d.

These facts are mentioned to show the necessity of retraining, if one may so use the term; and such work lies more in the hands of the publishers and booksellers than with the binder.

It has been said over and over again that a properly-bound book should open easily and remain open at any page. Now, if a book is printed on very heavy or stout paper to make it appear bulky, as is sometimes done for want of matter, is it possible for the binder to make such a book open easily and remain so without putting each leaf on a guard, and thus making it a guardbook? Books printed three hundred years ago had good paper; their bindings are in many instances in fair preservation, and in all cases these books were bound with tight backs, a thing perfectly impossible to do with the present class of paper. The very fact of them having tight backs tended to their good condition; the paper allowed of such treatment—it was good, thin, and pliable. As the paper altered in the manufacture and became adulterated, so the binder had to meet the requirements such paper demanded, and the hollow back was introduced to enable the book to open more easily. There is a great deal of difference between a tight back as above and a flexible back. The former had paper glued upon paper until the back was as hard as iron. In many cases these layers were quite one sixteenth of an inch thick; in the latter the leather is almost fastened direct upon the sections, thus permitting the book to open perfectly flat. But this method is not suitable for all bindings of the present day. It has been asked, Why cannot one get a book bound now equal to those of two hundred and fifty years ago? This is answered, that one can get better binding and more accurately done by going to a binder of good standing, for books are quite as elaborately decorated now as in former years; but modern books are of less money value, therefore have cheaper bindings. But when a book has over fourteen days spent on its decoration, one must be prepared for the charge of time expended on it. When Channing said, "God be thanked for books," he ought to have added "and good bookbinders.

France is producing some very fine books, the paper made purposely for the work, the type all that can be desired, illustrations perfect. Let our publishers follow the example and produce some works worthy of the name of books, and our bookbinders will, it is quite certain, put a jacket around them equal to the printer's efforts.

COMMUNICATION. A WORD TO THE WISE.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: Pardon me if I make a suggestion to you to impress upon the publishers the wisdom of sending in their lists very EARLY for your Christmas catalogue. I have great faith in your beautiful Christmas issue, but only fear it does not get out in time. Yours, truly,

ROBERT BEALL.

WASHINGTON, D. C., 1884.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

Harper's Young People is hereafter to be published in England as well as in this country. The first number of the English edition will be brought out next month.

Among the papers left by Mr. Henry James, sr., was one entitled "Immortal Life; illustrated in a brief autobiographic sketch of the late Stephen Dewhurst." Under the disguise of a fictitious autobiography Mr. James began a sketch of the growth of his mind, upon a background of personal history. The greater part of this curious paper will be published in the November Atlantic.

THE edition of the November Century will be the largest ever printed of that magazine. Besides the first chapters of Mr. Howells's new novel, "The Rise of Silas Lapham," the story of an American business man, its fiction will include "A Tale of Negative Gravity," by Frank R. Stockton; "Free Joe and the Rest of the World," an illustrated story by Joel Chandler Harris; and "The Lost Mine," by Thomas A. Janvier, with a full-page picture by Mary Hallock Foote. Mr. George Ticknor Curtis also contributes a paper on "How Shall we Elect our Presidents?"

The Critic will publish, under the general title of "Authors at Home," a series of personal and critical sketches of the best-known living American writers. Many hands will assist in the preparation of this series, and no one will be written of whose consent has not been obtained. Mr. Lowell will be treated by Thomas Hughes—author of "Tom Brown's School-Days," and one of the American Minister's most intimate friends. Mr. Whittier will be written of by Harriet Prescott Spofford, and Mr. Curtis by Alice Wellington George Parsons Lathrop. Rollins will tell how Mrs. Jackson ("H. H. lives at Colorado Springs, and Roger Riordan will write of Mr. Burroughs at Esopus. Other sketches will be announced from time to time. The first of the series will be published in November.

Wide Awake, the coming year, will be strong in the element of romantic adventure demanded by the healthy American boy. Charles Egbert Craddock, who is announced to furnish the leading serial for the Atlantic Monthly, furnishes also the leading Wide Awake serial. It is entitled "Down the Ravine," and is a powerful story of life among the young Tennessee mountaineers. The serials by Elbridge S. Brooks, "In Leisler's Times" and its sequel, "The Governor's Daughter," are a true tale of exciting events in the early history of New York City, in which participated more than one brave Knickerbocker boy, along with Battery bears, wolves and Colonial guns. There is "A Group of Four True Western Stories," "A Group of Four True New England stories," and Group of Four True Plantation Stories" (the last by Mrs. Jessie Benton Frémont), each of stirring adventure. There are also a Hawaiian Island adventure, "How the Boojums went down the Crater," written by the ten Boojums, and "A Buffalo Hunt," by Licutenant Wood, and "A Dahabeih Wreck," by Julian Arnold, and many other true records of adventure. Christmas Wide Awake will have a superb frontispiece in eighteen colors, reproduced from a water-color by F. H. Lungren, by Louis Prang & Co.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE correct title of Captain J. G. Bourte's book, to be published by Charles Scribner's Some to-day, is "The Snake Dance of the Moquis of Arizona."

CASSELL & Co. will publish shortly a volume by F. Whymper, entitled "Fisheries of the World," to be illustrated with a number of fine engravings.

LIEUTENANT GREELY proposes paying a visit to England as soon as his health is restored, to arrange for the simultaneous publication there and in America of his work on Arctic exploration.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS announce an American edition of the "Weird Tales of E. T. W., (or, rather, as he chose to call himself, A.) Hoffmann." Hoffmann was baptized Wilhelm, but in homage to Mozart he substituted for a Amadeus.

JOHN EDMANDS, of the Philadelphia Mercantile Library, has collected a great amount of material for a bibliography of the "Dies Ira." which is to be printed in the October number of the Bulletin, now in press.

Bangs & Co. will sell on the 27th inst. the library of Col. Edward C. James, of Ogdensburg, N. Y., which is particularly rich in handsome bindings and choice editions. On November to they will sell the extensive collection of Hon. James Maurice, of Maspeth, L. I.

WHITTET & SHEPPERSON, Richmond, Va. have just issued the first volume of "The Let ters and Times of the Tylers." The word covers the period from the Revolution to the war between the States in 1861, and contain many valuable letters and other original matter.

CUPPLES, UPHAM & Co. have just issued a political anti-Blaine pamphlet, entitled "To Proudest Chapter in his Life," giving an account of Mr. Blaine's administration of State Department and his conduct of South American Affairs, by Thomas H. Talbot, Boston.

STAN V. HENKELS & Co., Philadelphia, a nounce the sale of a fine collection of books take place on the 28th and 29th inst. On We member 11 and the following days they will as a British consignment of copyright and be editions. We refer to their advertisement this issue for further particulars.

JAMES H. EARLE, Boston, has just publish in handsome cloth binding. "Poems of He and Country," by Prof. James A. Marthsometimes known as the "California poems. Some of his poems, particularly his "Losd Bridge," have been pronounced "modern d sics," and together with his "Translations in Homer" have been well received. The ume contains a sketch of the author's and is illustrated.

J. S. OGILVIE & Co. have just issued Net of Ogilvie's Popular Reading, which contain "Wife in Name Only," by Bertha M. Che author of "Dora Thorne;" "First Love Best," by the author of "Edith's Sweetheast" Little Sweetheast," by a popular auth "Bimbi," by Ouida; "The Knightsboff Mystery," by Charles Reade; "The Shouse," by a popular author; and "No Calo Cake," by Julia McNair Wright. (Price)

THE INTERNATIONAL NEWS Co. announces or the coming holiday season a Moving Picture series, by L. Meggendorfer, in three olumes, entitled respectively "Live Animals," 'More Living Animals," and "Moving Animal 'ictures." The pictures are colored, and the roups are partly cut out, and so mounted that y moving a strip projecting from the bottom f the page the groups or parts of them go brough a series of antics, illustrating, in a most riking manner, the text on the pages facing iem. The work of mounting the illustrations is one most ingeniously and in a thoroughly ristic manner. The series will undoubtedly scome a great favorite.

P. Blakiston, Son & Co. have nearly ready A Manual of Human Physiology," including stology and microscopical anatomy, with reference to practical medicine, by Dr. L. Landois, the University of Greifswald, translated from e fourth German edition by William Stirling, D. It will be in two volumes, fully illusted. They have also in press a work on Mammalian Descent," being the Hunterian extures for 1884; "Surgical Handicraft," a anual of surgical dressing and minor surgery r the use of students and surgeons, by Dr. alter Pye, assisted by several specialists; a w book on the "Diseases of the Rectum," by the Harrison Cripps; and the sixth edition of Valentine's Qualitative Analysis."

WILLIAM R. JENKINS has now ready the st part of Dr. George Fleming's long-expected rk, "Operative Veterinary Surgery." He s also published Adolphe Belot's very clever medy of "Le Testament de Cesar Girodot." iich concludes the first series of Théâtre Consporain, comprising twelve numbers. He has press for immediate publication a collection of ench dialogues and selections for recitation mpiled by Prof. E. Jeanrenaud, a well-known wher in this city; also Edmond About's wel of "Le Roi des Montagnes," which will No. 4 of Roman Choisis. Mr. Jenkins

No. 4 of Roman Choisis. Mr. Jenkins Il shortly issue the first of a series of modern anish comedies similar in scope to the kéátre Contemporain, the first one being La Independencia," by Manuel Breton de los erreros, which will be annotated by Prof. 12pp of Yale College.

MERRILL, MEIGS & Co., Indianapolis, Ind., we published a capital aid to the Sunday-school retary and statistician in "The International bbath-school Record," prepared by Mr. C. D. sigs, one of the members of their firm, and to is greatly interested in the methods of Suny-school work. This Record was contrived iefly to fill the want for a book that would mform to the form of statistical blanks that has en adopted by the International Sabbath-school ssociation, and is now in use nearly every-here in America and the Canadas. Many bools keep so imperfect and brief a record, for ant of a suitable book, that when statistics are ked for the request is ignored entirely, for the mentable reason that the information desired By the use of this anot be furnished. ok such a record is kept as will enable the cretary of a school to easily and quickly supy all the statistical information asked for under e form of International Blanks now in use. It III also aid the different religious denominawas to gather full statistics. In addition to the ionthly Record of Attendance by Classes, the book contains space for a complete Roll of Officers, Teachers, and Scholars; several blank pages for Minutes of Business Meetings; a monthly "Cash Account;" four "Quarterly Reports," and one "Annual Report," in full. As a specially good and new feature there are three pages in the back of the book for the "Annual Statistical Report to the County and State S. S. Unions," two of which are perforated, so as to be easily removed and forwarded, one to the county secretary and one to the statistician of the religious denomination. The book is made to last one year—can begin any month—contains eighty-eight pages, is $8\frac{1}{2} \times 9\frac{1}{2}$ inches in size, printed on good heavy paper, substantially bound in cloth, and sells for one dollar.

AMONG the latest American additions to the Tauchnitz collection are "Dr. Breen's Practice," "A Roman Singer," "On the Frontier," and "Portraits of Places."

THE great work on "British Fossil Reptiles," upon which Sir R. Owen has been engaged for the last forty years, is now complete. Only 170 copies have been printed, and the plates destroyed.

THE "Letters of Jane Austen," to which we referred some time ago, will be published in London this month. Mr. Rice, of Bramber, has allowed a portrait of Jane Austen, painted when she was about seventeen, to be autotyped for this work.

Longmans, Green & Co., London, announce the publication, in two octavo volumes, of "A System of Psychology," by Daniel Greenleaf Thompson, (of New York City), which aims to present psychology as a science, not as a body of metaphysical doctrines.

THE first three volumes of Captain Burton's translation of the "Arabian Nights" will be delivered to subscribers next March. The ten volumes—at a guinea each—will be issued within eighteen months. Only this one edition of 1000 copies will be printed. He has kept the long, unbroken sentences of the original; and the peculiar passages which he faithfully retains will not, he thinks, "commonly be found more objectionable than some which are in Shakespeare and in Shakespeare's contemporaries."

MACMILLAN & Co. will publish at once Mr. Ainger's edition of Lamb's "Miscellaneous Essays and Poems." This, with the previously published "Essays of Elia," contains all of Lamb's miscellaneous writings that he had himself selected for preservation in a permanent form. Mr. Ainger has had the privilege of examining Lamb's Ms. annotations in an interleaved copy of Wither, now in Mr. Swinburne's possession, besides having permission to quote from unpublished letters in the hands of Mr. W. S. Ayrton and others.

The third volume of the "Gentleman's Magazine Library," to be published in this country by Houghton, Mifflin & Co., is devoted entirely to superstitions. There will be three divisions—namely, "Days and Seasons," "Superstitious Customs and Beliefs," and "Witchcraft." Although Sir Henry Ellis used the magazine for his edition of Brand, there is a great deal of entirely new matter brought together in Mr. Gomme's volume. A curious and exceedingly rare tract of 1592 on witchcraft, relating to the celebrated case of Dr. Fian, and entitled "News from Scotland," is printed in full.

THE

Part I. Author-and-Title Alphabet: A-Irving.

The new volume of the AMERICAN CATALOGUE covers the period July 1st, 1876, to June 30k, 1884. The two alphabets (1. Author-and-Title; 2. Subject) will make over 600 pages, including entries of over 20,000 books. The edition is limited to 1250 copies, of which one-half have been already subscribed for. No plates are made.

The first instalment, 200 pages, A-Irving, is now ready. The subscription price of the tire work is $10, which will presently be raised. The remainder of the Author-and-Title Alphabet will be completed in November.

Less than 50 copies remain unsold of the original AMERICAN CATALOGUE, (books in print 1876,) now priced at $40. The price will probably be raised at an early date to $50 on the intermaining copies.

Five-yearly supplements hereafter will enhance the value of the original work and of the first supplement. Every owner of a private library, and book-collector, as well as every book seller and librarian, should have this invaluable key to American books.

THE

OF THE

Literary News. 1884.

NOTICE TO BOOKSELLERS.

THE LITERARY News for Christmas, 1884, will embrace thirty-two pages of reading matter and illustrations, and we intend to make it of the highest interest and artistic attractiveness, and to issue it promptly.

Its sole aim and object is to increase the sale of books, and every bookseller who distributes it may be sure of being benefited thereby.

The chief attraction of the forthcoming issue will be the numerous specimen illustrations from the most prominent and popular new holiday books.

The most valuable feature, besides the Literary Notes, will be a special price-list of the Books of the Season, in all the departments of Holiday Literature.

To those who desire to reach a wider public than they feel they can afford to seek through the more expensive Christmas Number of the Publishers' Weekly, the Christmas Number of the Literary News is recommended as the best possible medium to cultivate a holiday trade.

NOTES IN SEASON.

B. Peterson & Bros. have published, in covers, a translation of Zola's "Mysteries rseilles."

NRY HOLT & Co. will issue at once an atreedition of Heine's "Book of Songs," at w price of 75 cents.

t Fowler & Wells Co. have just ready Faithfull's volume, entitled "Three Visits serica," an interesting and attractive description of our country, our people, institutions, etc., by a keen critical observer.

IGNATZ KÖHLER, Philadelphia, announces a new illustrated edition of Heinrich Heine's works, which, it is claimed, will unite all the qualities to be most desired in such a book, whether for the library or for the parlor table.

D. APPLETON & Co. issue to-day "Lectures on the Principles of Surgery," delivered at Bellevue Hospital Medical College, by the late Dr. W. H. Van Buren, edited by Dr. Lewis A. Stimson; "Bell's Electric-Speaking Telephone," its invention, construction, application, modification, and history, by George B. Prescott; "How we Live, or the human body, and how to take care of it," an elementary course in anatomy, physiology, and hygiene, by James Johonnot and Eugene Bouton; "At the World's Mercy," a new novel by the author of "The House on the Marsh;" the third part of Admiral Porter's novel, "Allan Dare;" "Book of Cats and Dogs and Other Friends for Little Folks," by James Johonnot; a new volume in their series of Instructive Reading-Books; and "A Compend Geology," by Joseph Le Conte, the third volume in their new series of Science Text-Books.

LITTLE, Brown & Co. have now ready the first volume of "Montcalm and Wolfe, by Francis Parkman, a work which forms the seventh part of the series of Historical Narratives, "France and England in North America." The period covered is that between 1748 and 1763, and a large amount of unpublished ma-terial has been used in its preparation, chiefly from the archives and libraries of France and England. Portraits of Montcalm and Wolfe, and nine maps, specially engraved for the work, enhance its value. The second volume will be published next month. They have also just ready the second and concluding volume of "The Water Birds of North America," by Spencer F. Baird, T. M. Brewer, and R. Ridgway; "Studies in Wordsworth, Culture and Aquirement, Ethics of Tragedy, and Other Papers," by Henry N. Hudson, the well-known Shakespearian scholar and critic; and a fine edition of Bacon's "Essays and Wisdom of the Ancients," printed from pica type, on clear white paper, and handsomely bound.

A. C. Armstrong & Son will publish next month, by arrangement with Mr. Unwin, of London, a unique book of interest to bibliographers in the shape of a small "Biblia Pauperum," with thirty-eight woodcuts produced from mediæval blocks, purchased about seventy years since in Nuremberg. These blocks are not recognized as having been used for any known book, and probably the volume for which they were prepared was never issued; but it is curious that a block-book of the fourteenth or fifteenth century should make its first appearance in the nineteenth. They will also issue next month, by arrangement with Macmillan & Co., Mr. Ainger's edition of Charles Lamb's "Plays and Miscellaneous Essays and Poems." This volume will contain all of Lamb's miscellaneous writings that he had himself selected for preservation in a permanent form, and whatever else in the shape of new materials Mr. Ainger has derived from Lamb's annotations to George Wither, his interleaved copy of which is now in the possession of Mr. Swinburne. This edition will also contain quotations from several unpublished letters of Adams, W. H. Davenport. The land of the Incas and the city of the sun: the story of Francisco Pizarro and the conquest of Peru. Bost., Estes & Lauriat, 1885 [1884]. 3-256 p.

Bost., Estes & Lauriat, 1005 [2004]. 3 = 3 = 1 i. O. cl., $1.50.

The author of "Page, squire and knight," though he acknowledges having made use of the best sources and authorities for information, claims that in some respects his book will be found a new and independent narrative; he presents an entirely new view of the character of Pizarro, of whom he says he "can find no proof of the ferocity and treachery of which he has so freely been accused." The story of the conquest of Peru has many romantic and picturesque points, to which the author has done full justice. The style is simple and popular, and the text fully illustrated with page pictures. A good addition toghe library, and a book that young people can understand and enjoy.

Alger, Horatio, jr. Do and boy's fight for fortune. Do and dare; or, a brave Phil., Porter &

Coates, [1884]. 303 p. il. S. cl., $1.25.

Boys may learn a lesson from the brave struggles of Herbert Carr to support his widowed mother, and find amusement in his numerous ups and downs, and strange adventures before fortune smiles on him. He begins business life in a village store, meets a warm friend in a rich young man in ill health who needs a companion, and goes with him to Colorado. Herbert makes enemies as well as friends, but overcomes all obstacles in a brave, manly way that is very pleasant to read about. very pleasant to read about.

Robert Browning's "The ring and the book" seems to have been the source of the author's inspiration; he quotes have been the source of the author's inspiration; he quotes from it, and makes it his text throughout, every chapter being headed with a verse from the poem. The story is one of mystery that remains unsolved; it takes place in a little willage on Long Island, and covers the last forty years. "John Wallace" comes there unknown, and the reader is led to suppose his name is assumed, and that he is the hero of a sad and tragical domestic story. A "ring" and a "book" play a part in his history, and form part of the decoration of the binding.

Sketches of the many missionary societies that are at present grappling with the evils of "outcast London;" their various forms and the various directious in which they work are ably set forth, while a sad and terrible picture is presented of the dreadful scenes and characters they encounter. The causes of the vice and distress are entered into, and the encouraging results of the mission work stated.

Fiske, J: The destiny of man viewed in the light of his origin. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1884. 119 p. S. cl., $1.

An address delivered before the Concord School of Philosophy this summer; it embodies an epitome of the au-thor's original contributions to the doctrine of evolution, and his reasons for believing in the immortality of the soul.

Frost, A. B. Stuff and nonsense. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1884. 4-92 p. il. Q. bds., $1.50.

A series of most comical pictures with most absurd text; there is a hearty laugh in every page, absolutely free from any sting or bitterness. Many jolly moments may be derived from its contents. In a characteristic cover.

Froude, Ja. Anthony. Thomas Carlyle: a history of his life in London, 1834-1881. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1884. 7+392+7-

417 p. D. cl., $1.50.

This volume, which embraces the two volumes of the London edition, carries the reader down to Carlyle's death in 188t, and abounds in caustic pen portraits of his contemporaries, and details of his life in London, from the time he began to write his "History of the French Revolution." The work does not lend any additional lustre to Carlyle's character as a man, but emphasizes his intense selfishness, vanity, and bitterness. Mr. Froude in an "introductory" defends himself against the criticisms made upon his manner of discharging the functions of a literary executor. He reiterates Carlyle's own wishes with regard to him writing his life, and narrates in a couple of chapters in the body of the book the incidents in connection with Carlyle's delivery to him of Mrs. Carlyle's "Letters and memorials." Index.

A popular biography of Simon Peter, "the disciple of the Lord," as recorded in the Gospeis. The scheme of the work is found in the following paragraph: "To understa the outward life of Simon Peter it is necessary to be something of his early training, the state of the country which he dwelt, the civil and religious institutions of the times, the people with whom he came in contact, and other times, the people with whom he came in costact, and one kindred subjects; while to understand his inner left, and watch his spiritual growth and development, it is necessary to trace it through the stages of home education, the di-cipline of school and daily life, the influence of friends and companions, the discipleship of John the Baptist, and the discipleship of Christ."

Cecile and Maurice D'Albert are the orphan children of French father and Spanish mother; on the death of the hildren's mother D'Albert brings his children to England, here he meets and marries the second Mrs. D'Albert. Two ears after this second marriage he died; his second wife did not survive him very long, but before her death she imcess upon Cecile the task of finding her own long-lost aughter; this brave child had a great many hardships to attle with, and she and Maurice had a long, weary pilnimage, but she finally accomplished her object, finding se lost Lovedy, and gaining a happy home in a quiet little formandy farm. The story demonstrates how much we in accomplish if we believe in the guidance of a higher ower.

Young, Alex. History of the Netherlands (Holland and Belgium). Bost., Estes & Lauriat, 1884. 2+672 p. il. O. cl., $3.

Although the heroic period of Netherland history has been brilliantly illustrated by Mr. Motley, yet the researches of Dutch and Belgian scholars have brought to light important facts which present some of the prominent personages and events of that period in a new aspect. This book, which is designed for mature as well as young readers, gives an independent view of these and of later annals, with the aids which European and American scholarship has furnished for their elucidation. While availing himself of the researches of Mouley and Prescott, of Davies and Grattan, the author's judgments of men and measures are mainly derived from a study of original authorities. New light is thrown especially upon the character and career of William the Silent. Illustrated with many full-page pictures. A good index. ures. A good index.

THE PROHIBITION OF RAGS.

In the 30th of August last, the Government k the extreme step of prohibiting, for three aths from September 1, the importation of s. The purpose was to guard against inion from cholera, then raging in Italy and the south of France. The English Governat had caused an examination to be made as he danger of infection, and Sir Charles Dilke reported to the House of Commons that in : of evidence that there were no cases of the and of cholera by the importation of rags, he not felt justified in ordering a prohibition rench rags in general, though he had denied ission to cargoes from the vicinity of Toulon Marseilles. Our Government was not so ious and wise, but prohibited all importation. from such remote points as Russia. The It is that the holders of rags have been ing the most of their opportunity, to the iment of printers and publishers at large. usiness men would not question a sacrifice kir own interests in the face of great public ger. They would even support a stretch of ority in behalf of public safety, though it ked sad havoc to themselves. But no ority of law in justification of fact appears his extreme action of the acting Secretary of Freasury. It is a most dangerous precedent, t from its immediate consequences. We our protest, in the name of the publishing t, to the several which have already been e against the Government's ill-considered n. A common-sense regulation ought to aforced against rags from infected localities, the prohibiting order ought to be revoked. ace the above was put in type, the Governt has taken the action desired, limiting the ision to infected (i.e. Mediterranean) ports. to be hoped the general protest will nevers prove useful as a bar to repetition of Miginal mistake.

HE paper-makers have meanwhile held a ting to discuss this subject, and, in addition rotesting to the Government, have passed a sation to curtail production as well. This, I our present lights, seems to be open to same objection as the course of the Governst—it is too sweeping. We are unable to why there should be a "shut-down" on er, for instance, that contains no rags, and regret to see a movement which seems to advantage of one wrong to make another.

Our columns this week present another illustration of the need of international copyright. The "courtesy of the trade" has not usually, as we understand it, been held to cover importations, and yet when a work is produced by international arrangement, there is much to be said on both sides. It is certainly a good rule to seek—as it is stated was done in the instance in point—an understanding between the importers and American reprinter in cases like this; but there must always be misunderstandings and recriminations until a definite legal basis is reached.

THE PAPERMAKERS IN COUNCIL.

ABOUT 150 papermakers, representing the Eastern division of the American Papermakers' Association, met in the Metropolitan Hotel, in N. Y. City on the 23d inst., and protested against the three months' Government embargo on the importation of rags. The meeting was called to see if the members of the association favored "any action which will be of benefit to the trade in the present unsettled state of the rag and paper market, caused by a sharp advance in stock and a small proportionate advance in paper."

William H. Parsons, of N. Y. City, President of the Association, said that the action of the Treasury Department had increased the price of rags from 30 to 50 per cent. He had written personally to Acting Secretary Coon, and had been unable to get even an opinion as to whether the prohibition would continue longer than Dec. I next or not. It had not yet been shown, he claimed, that cholera or other contagious diseases had ever been spread by imported rags. Augustine Smith, of New York, said that the prohibitory order of the Treasury Department had been a great injury to the papermakers and publishers in this country. When the order was issued he wrote to the Treasury Department for its authority, and had received in reply a copy of a letter sent to the department by Collector Robertson, and he had shown the answer he received to the lawyer of the association and to other legal men, and had been informed that it was no answer at all, and that there was no authority conveyed in it to prohibit the importation of rags or any other article. People have been led to believe, Mr. Smith argued, that there was absolute danger in importing foreign rags, while as a matter of fact there is no danger at all. When the cholera was in this country rags collected and taken to the mills had not spread the disease. Eminent European physicians had given assurance that there was no danger from this source. Sir Charles Dilke, in England, had recognized this fact, and refused to prohibit the importation of foreign rags.

Mr. Wellington Smith said that the Treasury Department had acted without informing itself. The question now was not simply one of raising the price of paper, but of wholly shutting down trade until the embargo was removed.

W. R. Sheffield, a manufacturer in Saugerties, N. Y., offered a resolution that the manufacturers curtail their production to fifty per cent of their output, and that the details be sent to the different divisions for arrangement. This met with some opposition, as it would injure manufacturers who did not use rags at all in making their paper. It was explained that the resolution was not authoritative, but simply voiced the sentiments of the meeting with regard to manufacturers using rags. The resolution was carried, and the special meeting adjourned to await the action of the committee.

REMOVAL OF THE PROHIBITION ON RAGS.

A DESPATCH dated Washington, Oct. 23, states that the customs division of the Treasury Department on that day issued a circular modifying the circular of August 30 concerning the importation of rags so as to limit it to infected ports only, and all Mediterranean ports are deemed infided ports within the meaning of this order. It is provided, however, that no old rags shall be landed at any port of the United States except on a certificate of the United States Consular officer at the point of departure that such rags were not gathered or baled at or shipped from any infected place or any region contiguous thereto.

INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE COURTE-SIES.

From the Philadelphia Press.

WHILE Harper's and the Century Company are filling England with their magazines, it is no more than fair that England should send some of her representative periodicals to this country, and it is only a part of the game of turn-about that Cassell & Co., Limited, should publish two of their magazines with a special eye to the American market. The Magasine of Art has been published here for some years past, so that it is looked upon almost as an American periodical. The American edition has an American editor, who gives full American notes at the end of the magazine, and the body articles are international in their interest, and during the coming year they will be even more so. Quite recently Cassell's Family Magazine has been introduced to American readers, and has found almost instant favor. This magazine is sold for the absurdly low subscription price of one dollar and a half a year, which is so little for what is given in it that I don't see where the publishers get their money back, but I believe they are perfectly satisfied. It does not appeal to the same audiences as Harper's and the Century, but to a larger one, and I should not be at all surprised if it got as big a circulation here in time as it has in England, where I believe it outstrips all rivals in this matter. Cassell & Co. have another set of periodicals, which they have not introduced in America as yet; one of them, the Quiver, is the most successful semi-religious magazine in the world. It is an illustrated magazine "for Sunday and general reading," and its contributors are some of the best-known theologians of England; but it has stories and general articles as well, and I do not see why it should not find a big sale in this country, for it is well known here, and only wants to be introduced to become popular. This idea of an interchange of periodicals seems to me to be a very good one, because it makes the two countries better acquainted with each other.

THE INTERNATIONAL LITERARY ASSOCIATION.

THE following are the principal suggestions his down by this society at its convention last month:

- I. Authors placing themselves within the jurisdiction of the contracting countries will be afforded protection for their works, whether is print or manuscript, and will have all the abvantages of the laws of the different nations; embraced in the Union.
- 2. These privileges will be dependent upon the carrying out of the conditions and formal ties prescribed by the legislation of the author native country, or of the country in which is chooses to first publish his work, such country in the country
- These stipulations apply alike to come and authors of literary works, as well as works of art published or created in any come of the Union.
- 4. Authors within the jurisdiction of the Unwill enjoy in all the countries the exclusive in of translation of their works during a penoten years after publication in any one coun of the Union of an authorized translation.
- 5. It is proposed that it shall be made at to publish extracts from works which have peared in any country of the Union, provided that such publications are adapted for teach or have a scientific character. The recipion publication of books composed of fragment various authors will also be permitted. It be an indispensable condition, however, the source of such extracts shall at all the acknowledged.
- 6. On the other hand, it will be unlawfe publish, without special permission of the so of the copyright, any piece of music, is collection of music used in musical academic
- 7. The rights of protection accorded to met works will prohibit arrangements of music taining fragments from other composers, at the consent of such composer be first obtain

The head office of the International Lite and Artistic Association will be established Berne, in which town another Congress assemble next year.

Sterne's "Sentimental Journey.

THE edition of Sterne's "Sentimental Journey" announced by us has been reprinted from the standard English editions, great care being taken, in view of the discrepancies between them, ◆o secure the most correct and authentic text. The illustrations have been reproduced from those of a French translation published in Paris. An English edition with the same illustrations baving been printed abroad, the importer of a certain number of copies, styling himself "the joint protector and owner of the sole right for the English and American market," has thought fit to denounce our edition as "pirated."

We have imported numerous editions of foreign works, but have never imagined that this gave us any exclusive right of publication, and we have made no complaint when any of these works were reprinted by other publishers. Even under an international copyright treaty no such claim would be recognized as tenable. Our edition of the "Sentimental Journey" was printed before any announcement had been made that an English edition with the French illustrations was in contemplation, and in complete ignorance of the fact. On being informed of it, we offered to dispose of our edition—but this arrangement was declined by the "joint projector of the sole right," who has preferred to rely upon his grievance and an appeal to the sympathies of the public. The foregoing statement will suffice to show the baselessness of this appeal, and we enced only add that but for our edition the opportunity of obtaining the work would have been limited to those who were able and disposed to purchase it at an exorbitant price.

ISSUED BY

[ALL ENTERPRISING BOOKSELLERS.]

The subscription edition of the ILLUSTRATED CHRISTMAS NUMBER of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY will be issued as early in November as possible, to give time for the imprint editions to each all dealers three weeks before Christmas at the latest.

The Number will as usual present the finest specimen illustrations from the New Holi-MAY Books, with special articles on the leading works, a full descriptive summary of books and stationery novelties, reference price-lists covering the Illustrated Works, Books for the Young, and other Choice Books published during 1884, etc., etc. Every endeavor will be made to surpass the issues of previous years, pronounced in 1880, by the N. Y. Tribune, the nost tasteful and attractive catalogues, surpassing even the achievements of the English in the same line; and even at an earlier date, by the German "Book Trade Magazine" the most atractive publication of the kind issued in the book-producing countries."

The imprint edition (intended for distribution by dealers with their sole imprint) will be rinted immediately after the issue of the Trade edition, under the title of "Christmas Catalogue," as given above.

The local bookseller can add half as much again to his holiday trade by properly calling he attention of the public to his goods. For this purpose, the best means is the circulation of his handsome, interesting, and comprehensive Christmas Catalogue, which is received with cleasure by those to whom it is given or sent, as itself a picture-book of no little value; and ts descriptions of and illustrations from books, at once arouse the desire to purchase the books themselves.

No better investment can be made by the bookseller who wants to make the most of his holiday rade.

Orders filled in the order of size of edition, largest first, and then of receipt. As the saper is specially made for this issue, orders should be received at once, as the filling of later lemands cannot be guaranteed.

The thick paper edition of the CHRISTMAS CATALOGUE will be supplied as follows:

SINGLE COPIES (postpaid), . 35 CTS. | PER 100 COPIES (with imprint), . $20 00

The thin paper edition, with dealers' imprints, will be supplied at the following rates:

Orders should be sent in at once, and in order to avoid delay, it is absolutely necessary that topy for imprint, together with full directions for forwarding, should accompany the remittance. All packages sent by express unpaid, unless other shipping directions are given.

NEW BOOKS JUST PUBLISHED

Perseverance Island:

Or the Robinson Crusoe of the 19th Century, by Douglas Frazar, author of "Practical B Sailing." 12mo, cloth. 16 Illustrations.

It is not often that a book is published that can be said to be more interesting than the sa of "Old Robinson Crusoe." Perseverance Island, however, is just such a book. Its beree almost a naked castaway on a desert island, with no resources left to him save skilful hands brains filled with practical knowledge. Still, he succeeded in getting away from his inhospin situation. The story tells how he did it, and all about the stirring experience which he had forehand. The book is not extravagant, nor sensational.

NOTES IN SEASON.

FEORGE ROUTLEDGE & SONS have just ready new book for boys, entitled "The Sports and stimes of American Boys," a guide and textok of games of the playground, the parlor, of the field, adapted especially for American uth, by Henry Chadwick, author of "American und-book of Games," etc.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish next ek the new Wayside edition of Hawthorne's

Works, in twenty-four volumes, a very desirable library edition; a Household edition of the Poems of Lucy Larcom, in which are included quite a number of poems not contained in any previous volume of hers; a new edition, entirely revised and brought down to date, of Mrs. Botta's excellent "Handbook of Universal Literature;" the holiday volume containing illustrated poems of Oliver Wendell Holmes, which is fully and very attractively illustrated by some of the best American artists, and produced in beautiful style, which cannot fail to make it popular as a holiday volume. "The Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyám," with Mr. Vedder's illustrations, will appear shortly, and the amazement and admiration of those who have seen the drawings before publication indicate that this work is to create a degree of enthusiasm such as has never been created by any other American work of art. The superb character of the illustrations and the wonderful skill shown in them must give the work high rank among the masterpieces of art. The style in which the book is brought out is entirely unique among American publications. It is impossible in the brief space allowed here to give any adequate description of it, but it is safe to promise that in all its external equipments, as well as in its admirable art character, the volume is almost unrivalled among American gift books.

HARPER & Bros. have issued in a handsome volume George H. Boughton's "Sketching Rambles in Holland," beautifully and profusely illustrated with wood-engravings from drawings by the author and Edwin A. Abbey, some of them printed on proof paper and mounted on the pages; "The Complete Poetical Works of Alfred, Lord Tennyson," with an introductory sketch by Anne Thackeray, forming, as it is claimed, "the only complete edition of Tennyson's poetical works;" the first volume of Justin McCarthy's "A History of the Four Georges;" H. D. Traill's monograph on "Coleridge" in the English Men of Letters series; and an "Indian History for Young People," by Francis S. Drake, with colored frontispiece, numerous illustrations, and a map of the United States, showing the locations and relative sizes of the Indian reservations.

FUNK & WAGNALLS have ready the second volume of "Thirty Thousand Thoughts," edited by Canon Spence and Revs. J. S. Exell and Charles Neil. The present volume contains three Mental and Moral sections, with two intervening Biblical sections. The opening and closing sections deal with subjects upon which one has to travel through a wide circle of literature in order to find extracts of point and general utility. They have also ready "An Old Sailor's Yarns—Tales of Many Seas," by Capt. R. F. Coffin, which treat many phases of sea-life, from whaling in the south seas to blockade-running in the late civil war; and also a popular biography of John Wycliffe. "The Mentor," by Alfred Ayres, the author of the "Orthogpist," etc., a little manual that will prove decidedly interesting as well as instructive to all that desire to appear to advantage in good society. The book, though intended specially for men, has much in it that will interest ladies, especially young ladies: what the author has to say about the etiquette of dancing parties and of the art of dancing, for example.

Doris: a novel. Phili., J. B. Lippincott & Co., 1885 [1884]. 3-305 p. D. cl., $1.

Ireland of to-day is the scene of "the Duchess's" new novel; it is, as usual, a love story, orrather several love stories, as there are several heroes and heroines all equally brave and beautiful. "Doris's" story begins with her married life; she is a great heiress of low birth, who exchanges her millions for a title; accepting matrimony with not "a little" but a very great deal of mutual "aversion," the couple seem to illustrate very happily Mrs. Malaprop's famous saying; the dialogue is very amusing, and there are some telling scenes of the landlord-and-tenant disputes and difficulties. difficulties.

Ayres, Alfred, [pseud. for T: E. Osmun.] The mentor: a little book for the guidance of such men and boys as would appear to advantage in the society of persons of the better sort. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls, 1884. 3-207 p. S. cl., $1.

A little book by the author of "The orthoepist" and "The verbalist," giving rules for the conduct of men and boys that desire to appear to advantage in good society. Its chapters treat of personal appearance, behavior at the dianer-table and in public, conversation, calls and cards, odds and ends of good advice, and the last discusses at length "What is a gentleman?" The author has made an excellent selection of telling quotations, with which he opens his useful book.

they became so tired that they were forced to lie down in the open air. In the morning they were found by a laborer. Johnny, the older, had heroically taken of its own clothes and covered his young companion, an act of heroism which cost him his life.

Barham, Rev. R: H., ["Thomas Ingoldsby," pseud.] The lay of St. Aloys: a legend of Blois; with the old letters and new illustrations of Ernest M. Jessop. N. Y., E. & J. B. Young, [1884]. No paging. 33 pl. F. bds., $4.50.

This charmingly amusing edition of one of the fuzzy "Ingold-by legends" will no doubt be very popular. It is given up in the old missal style, uniform with "Ye Jack daw of Rheims." It is printed in red and black, on one side of thick paper; the illustrations, which are exceedingly grotegous, are worsen in with the text of fema ingly grotesque, are woven in with the text, or forms framework around it.

with their sights and scenery, and the odd costumes of unatives. Mr. Boughton's text is as amusing and graphs as his illustrations are artistic; he makes no attempt at an as his illustrations are artistic; he makes no attempt a moriting, nor does he bore the reader with the dry isformation of the guide books; his narrative is extremely assumed and apparently based upon the actual events which happened to two wide-awake, clever, jolly fellows. The illustrations cover full pages, and are woven into the text. They are all characteristic, and offer an excellent idea of the peculiarities of the people and country. Mr. Boughant reputation as an artist gives this volume a special issuers. Dobson, Austin. Thomas Bewick and his pupils. Bost., Ja. R. Osgood & Co., 1884. 16+232 p. por. and il. D. cl., $3.50. For the most part a reprint of two articles on Bewick and his pupils, prepared in 1881-82 for the Century Magasine. When illustrated, they were found too long, and an entire section was consequently omitted and other curtailments made. The portions are all here restored, with many corrections and additions. The volume has a special interest aside from being a biography of Bewick, to whom is accorded the honor of having restored the art of wood-engraving in England one hundred years ago. It gives specimens of his best work, and of that of his pupils, and a history of the school he founded. The illustrations not only show his skill, but give one an idea of his powers as a humorist and a tirist. Handsomely printed on tinted paper, with wide margins.

The thrilling adventures of William Anderson, who was wrecked in the Pacific Ocean, and after drifting about some time was cast upon a reef. His sailor instinct tells him that the reef is only a barrier between the ocean, smooth water, and land; he casts himself into the sea, and lands on a desert island, where he spends ten years. Notwithstanding his limited resources his achievements are wonderful; by the use of his brain, and skill of his hands, and a practical knowledge of the common arts and sciences, he far out-distances all his predecessors in the Robinson Cruwe line. all his predecessors in the Robinson Crusoe line.

New American edition, with a new preface by the author. In the preface to the first edition he than a plains the object of the work: "The teachings enhanced in the present volume let in a flood of light on questions connected with Buddhist doctrine which me deeply perplexed previous writers on that reigion, offer the world for the first time a practical clew to the meaning of almost all ancient religious symbolism. In that, the esoteric doctrine, when properly under stood, will be found to advance an overpowering dain on the attention of earnest thinkers."

Mr. Traill divides his work into three sections, the "Poetical period (1779-1794)," Critical period (1799-1800)," and "Metaphysical and theological period (1816-1818)." Although he believes there is an abundance of unpublished material for a life of Coleridge, he found it difficult in many cases to get, and was forced to leave "several tantalizing gaps, which refuse to be bridged over." Until a complete biography of the poet-philosopher is supplied us, this sketch gives an excellent picture of his life and a critical estimate of his genius.

The story of the authorship of this notorious pamphlet, as given in the Berliner Politische Nachrichten, is as follows: "The original author was the Empress a former French reader, Gérard, who used to write regularly to Gambetta. These letters were found among Gambetta's other papers by his literary executor, editors of the Nonvelle Review. For effect, by the aid of the well-known Mrs. Novikoff ('O. K.'), certain personal sketches made by an Alsatian named Weiss were worked into the original, while the editor, with the aid of a former secretary of legation, Otto von Loë, harmonized the parts, and gave the whole literary finish." Weley, Margaret. Mitchelhurst Place: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1884. 63 p. Q. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., no. 411.) pap., 20 c.

Mitchelhurst Place is the name of a beautiful English country seat, of which the locality is not clearly defined. The story tells of the men and women who formerly owned and lost the place, of its present inhabit ints, their loves, animosities, and heartaches, and ends with a happy marage and the return of the "Place" to the only surviving owner, a beautiful woman with a "history."

Warden, Florence. At the world's mercy. [Anon.] N. Y., Appleton, 1884. 171 p. D.

pap., 25 C. Again, as in "The house on the marsh," by the same Again, as in "The noise on the marsh," by the same author, the party that tells the story is a young governess; she is the inmate of a house in Kent, England, belonging to a wealthy man, who has, with his two young sons, an unfortunate propensity for drinking. The wife is a vain, weak, fashionable beauty, and the children spoilt and rough. Guinevere Verney turns out to be the good angel of the family; her good influence works wonders with all the characters, and she is the centre of a rather sad love story. Introduced, naturally, in the story, is an account of a home for inebriates, that presents a terrible picture of the way in which the inmates are treated.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE MIDDLE MAN.

"THE laborer is worthy of his hire," saith the Scripture. Translated into the vernacular of modern business, this means that the middleman who does service to the community is entitled to pay for that service in the shape of profit. It is undoubtedly true that the tendency of modern business has been to establish, more and more, direct relations between producer and consumer, and to do away with the profit of the middle-man. In the fierce competition of to-day nobody is willing to pay an unnecessary penny-except for taxes. But so far as the middle-man is needed, and does service, he ought to be fairly paid, and it has always been our view that he is an essential factor in the book trade.

The book business does not involve a multiplicity of profits, though it requires several trades to co-operate in the production of its wares. At the most, two men, the jobber and retailer, stand between the maker and the purchaser. The jobber's service is a double onehe masses many accounts of retailers into one for the publisher and he supplies orders in a lump to retailers, when otherwise they must make numberless small purchases. This saves money, saving time and trouble, and the jobber ought to make his margin accordingly. The retailer does a still more evident service. He must supply the dear public-or the cheap publicwith the book wanted, when it is wanted, and without him the public and the publisher would be in bad way. Both these classes ought to make a fair living. Do they?

The responses from the people most concerned show that they do not. We have had several letters from them in recent issues of PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY. In the school-trade, especially, though prices are advertisnet, and are now pretty close to "bed at there is evident a growing tendency to gisome one else than the bookseller what i possibility of margin remains. It is true the tendency is toward direct supply of school States, by school-book makers. But well, even for educational publishers, to from the local trade what small profit remains.

A COPYRIGHT DECISION.

IN June of this year action was comme in the Circuit Court for the Eastern Distri Pennsylvania against Rufus C. Hartranh (I wick & Co.), publisher and bookseller, Phik phia, by James Gopsill, publisher of the "P delphia Business Directory." The action, a forth in plaintiff's bill, was for infringerse copyright and piracy, on the part of the deant, in making and selling a small stree rectory of Philadelphia, plaintiff claiming the matter for which was taken bodily frou publication. Application was made and grafter a preliminary injunction, the plaintiff tering indemnification bond in the sum of to cover cost of suit, etc.

At the trial, October 16th, before Judges Kennan and Butler, it was decreed that t junction was unjust, and should not have granted, and immediate removal be allowed defendant, and he be granted the publication his book as before; and for further testi and evidence the matter go before a master was shown by the defendant that the pl had not substantiated his copyright, and the idea was neither original nor new, the same and order having been used by directory of several other cities, and further, that if fendant in this case had not used plaintiff's or arrangement to any extent whater alleged in the plaintiff's bill. Civil suit commenced on part of defendant to redamages.

COMMUNICATIONS.

"THE SYNDICATE" VS. THE JOBBER

OCTOBER 24, 1 THE position recently taken by the text-book publishers of the country town Massachusetts jobber seems to one of at least, very arbitrary and unjust. The will be not only to close the doors of bookstore, so far as they can accomp but to create a direct and injurious antag between a craft which ought to work in ha and for each other's interest. Heretofore th ber has had an advantage over the consum buying in large quantities he has had the mum discount, and thus has become a dis ing agent in all large centres. To-day, to strange reason, the order is reversed, and trict or a teacher in the most remote han the State can buy ten dollars' worth of bo low and in some cases lower than a jobb buy a thousand dollars' worth. The former addition, permitted to take his own time to ment, can remit in an order on town to which is good only in the town where it ed, while the jobber is compelled to remit in iny days a city draft. In appealing to the blisher for protection, and for rates that will lord a very slight commission, they are met th the cool and contemptuous reply, "Help urselves, gentlemen; we do not need your serces-in fact, prefer to deal direct with schools d teachers. Such language from men who re found real helpers in the trade in past ars, and to whom they are indebted in various lys, is slightly provoking, to say the least! The uniform discount" might as well have en established at one rate as another, and it ald have been made so as to net to the pubher, the same as now, with less annoyance to n and with a commission to the one who adles large quantities. The remedy is still in hands of "the syndicate." At present low es of books, committees are satisfied to buy en at wholesale rates, only they desire uniform ices; and if one party buys one per cent less in another, there's the rub; not that they nd the difference of one or five per cent, but y want to be considered as smart and as arp in trade as their neighbor! Now fix upon ate, gentlemen of the syndicate, which will enle you to make a discount to the jobber at ist to cover freights and pay for handling, d let the book seller retain the trade which turally belongs to him. The school commits will be glad to buy all supplies at a central ce, they will cheerfully pay a little more for : convenience and the saving of freights, the siness of large houses will be simplified, and ace and harmony will again prevail.

If, on the other hand, the publisher continues ignore his old friends and to insult them with h language as we have quoted—and which no fancy sketch-they will find the despised ber a powerful factor against him if our State gislature should present a "bill for making ir own school text-books." It may not be ristian, but it will be human, to work heartily such a bill, on the principle, "You strike me fill strike you!" We could give some points to r friends, the publishers, which would show at booksellers who have been in large educanal centres for many years can use their owledge of men and books to the great adntage or disadvantage of the publisher. atlemen, when you are courteously asked to reus, as in days past, some slight advantage er the small consumer, and which is but a sonable request, meet such a demand, as men to are willing "to live and let live," and not the provoking indifference, for surely such a licy will result in an injurious antagonism.

A MASSACHUSETTS JOBBER.

THE "CHATTERBOX" QUESTION. the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

It is well known that I am one of the defendits. in the Chatterbox suit, but the circumances which led me into that position are not familiar to the general public. During the ar 1880, it occurred to John W. Lovell and yself that a reprint of the English Chatterbox that year would be a remunerative comercial venture. There had been three reprints fore that time-viz., of the editions of 1876, 377, and 1878, without authority from the Engsh publisher and without protest on his part. wo of these reprints were by Messrs. Estes and wriat, the present plaintiffs, and the other was y D. Appleton & Co. In all of these cases the cover was imitated to just the same extent as in the book which is the subject of the present suit, which is yet unsettled. Upon precisely the same statement of facts, Judge Blatchford, then judge in the U.S. Circuit Court in this district, but now sitting in the Supreme Court of the United States, refused to entertain a motion for a preliminary injunction. At this stage, the trial in the U. S. Circuit Court of this district, the plaintiffs have proved successful. Their triumph has been so complete as to be, I verily believe, a surprise even to themselves.

The imitation in our publication of the appearance of the English Chatterbox has confessed-ly been the weak point of our case.

Although such imitation has been a common practice in the book trade in republishing English books, it is difficult to find a legal principle on which to rest the defence of this custom. Undoubtedly such imitation, if applied to other articles of merchandise, would come within the jurisdiction of a court of equity, and recent English decisions are, it is said, in favor of according equal right of suit in this matter to aliens as to natives of their own country. But, while pushing their suit forward, under the guise of the imitation of appearance, which point has, of course, been used in the suit against us for all that it was worth, the right claimed by the plaintiffs is, in reality, something very different, as their suits against Worthington, Belford, Clarke & Co., and Mrs. Frank Leslie show-particularly the last-mentioned case, in which the volume is not only a compilation in every way as good for the young folks of this country as the English Chatterbox is for a similar class in England, but in which the publisher has been at extraordinary pains to make the trade-mark "Frank Leslie" appear bold and conspicuous.

In none of the cases cited above does the imitation in appearance come in, except as a question of legal finesse.

The plaintiffs' claim, if carried to its logical conclusion, is no less than to assert on behalf of one Johnston, an English publisher, resident in London, and his representatives, an absolute and sole right to the word Chatterbox an ordinary dictionary word that must sooner or later have occurred to some publisher or author as the title of a book of juvenile literature, in perpetuity and in all parts of the world, "as applied to all books of the class and character published by the plaintiffs "-which, of course, they construe to mean all works of juvenile literature, the only ones to which such a title would be applicable.

And not alone do the plaintiffs claim the word "Chatterbox" as a title, as applied to works of juvenile literature, if used by itself, but they claim it if used in connection with other words, as for instance Chatterbox Junior, a book designed for younger readers than the regular Chatterbox. Not only do they claim it as a title in connection with one word, but if used with any possible combination of words that the ingenuity of man can invent, and not for this year or the next, but in perpetuity.

Their suit against Worthington establishes

I assert that the plaintiffs' real claim is a bold attempt at interference with the natural rights of American publishers.

At the risk of giving points to the other side I venture to direct the attention of the learned and able counsel for the plaintiffs to the history of the nomenclature of newspapers in this country and in England. To pretend, as Mr. Estes does, that there is the same property in the word Chatterbox AS A TITLE which is capable of being made the trade-mark and exclusive property of one person forever and ever, as there is in Harper's Weekly, is manifestly absurd, for in the latter case Messrs. Harper indicate that the publication is theirs, and make it their property by prefixing their name to it. Does any one suppose that if Messrs. Harper in establishing their weekly publication for children, had emulated the example of Mr. Estes, the present plaintiff, by endeavoring to take by litigation the two words Young People from out of the English language as a title applied to juvenile literature, instead of calling it Harper's Young People, they would have been protected by the courts? No, most emphatically no! For the reason that there are very few words that can be used to distinguish a book or periodical as being a publication designed for children. And if such words as Child, Chatterbox, Baby, Little Ones, Youth, Young People, Boys and Girls, etc., and the combinations of other words with them, for that is what the plaintiffs claim to prevent, can be appropriated as the exclusive property and trade-mark of the first man who grabs them, where are the publishers who subsequently appear on the scene to look for their titles?

I will now take up another of Mr. Estes's illustrations. Let us assume, as a supposititious state of facts, the popular publication, the Youth's Companion, to have been established in Boston only ten years ago, and that twenty years agoi. c., ten years previously, a publication, called Youth, had been started in London and had attained a wide popularity throughout the English-speaking world. We will even grant the London publication to have had some circulation in the United States before the Youth's Companion was projected. Both publications increase in prosperity, that published in England having the largest aggregate circulation, but the Youth's Companion being the more popular in this country. The English publication is fortunate in having as its agent and representative in this country an astute publisher, Mr. Estes for example, to whom one fine morning the bright idea occurs that he can appropriate the circulation of the Youth's Companion, and make it his own by claiming a trade-mark in the word Youth. To effect this, he acquires by purchase from the English publisher the sole right of representing him in the United States and proceeds, after successfully stopping a rival reprint of the English publication on the ground of imitation in appearance, to file a bill in equity, etc., etc., against the Youth's Companion.

Here we have Mr. Estes's Chatterbox claims in a nut-shell, with only the substitution of the word "Youth" for the word "Chatterbox." Was anything like this ever before advanced in a court of equity?

If Mr. Johnston, the English Chatterbox man, called his publication Johnston's Chatterbox, or even a combination of words, as, for example, Chatterbox Journal, there might be some reason or justice in his claim; but I can see none in his claim to the sole proprietorship of the word Chatterbox.

This case has raised an entirely new point, one that has never been raised before in any country as applied to literature. I was from the first apprehensive that the imitation in appearance was fatal to our case; and, moreover, there were certain special features in it which, although innocent enough in themselves, required, in connection with this question of imitation, much explanation. The publishers interested in this question, however, have long known that what the plaintiffs desired was, not to restrain our particular book, which was a relatively immaterial point with them, but to restrain ell books having the word Challerbox as a component part of their title.

Yours truly,
JOHN D. WILLIAMS.

OBITUARY.

FRIEDRICH KAPP, whose death in Berlin was announced by cable on the 27th inst., and will be lamented in two hemispheres, was born in the town of Hamm, on April 13, 1824. We learn from The Evening Post that he had been for three years a Prussian legal functionary when the revolution in Hamburg broke out, in 1348. His participation in this compelled him to forsake his country in the following year, and be chose America as his new home. Becoming & resident of New York, he achieved success #8 lawyer in the face of great discouragements, and turning to literary pursuits for his recreated composed some historical works both in Engli and in German, which will remain an endur monument of his sojourn in this country. Amon these may be named "The Slavery Questice" America" (1854), and a "History of Slavery the United States" (1860): Lives of General Steuben (1858) and Kalb (1862), the latter havi been recently published in English in this city "The Traffic of German Princes in Soldiers America" (1864); a "History of German Engration to America" (1867). The revolution effected in the constitution of the Fatherland the war with France in 1870 recalled him im sistibly to his native country, where he was a once honored with a seat in the Prussian Lowe House and the German Reichstag, and took place among the National Liberals and the friends of Bismarck. His service in the Reid tag ended only with the last session, in the cla ing days of which the Chancetior appeared the floor as his antagonist in the debates on the German colonial policy. Dr. Kapp h already published since his return to Germany work on" Frederick the Great and the United States" (1871); "From and Concerning America (1876); "Justus Ehrich Bollmann" (1880). spite of the infirmity which has no doubt cau his sudden death, he was deeply engrossed wi a new and laborious work on the history of book trade in Germany, which we hope is so f advanced as to be sure of publication.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Homiletic Monthly is to be enlarged with sissue of the January number one half above present size and improved every way, with adding to the price, to such as pay their subiptions before January first. The past of this indical has been marked by steady progress, dist future bids fair to reach a still higher ndard of excellence.

DNE of Turgenieff's most ambitious efforts is w being published as a serial in The Voice, new weekly issued by Funk & Wagnalls. estory is translated directly from the Rusn, by Henry Gersoni. It is a tale of Russian, and is said to be one of the most pathetic a Turgenieff ever penned. The English title en it is "An Unfortunate Woman." It will published in book form, at a later date, by same house.

The Quiver, an illustrated unsectarian magae for Sunday and general reading, will hereer be issued monthly in this country by Casl& Co., beginning with the new volume which ms with the December number. The Quiver: the largest circulation of any magazine of class in England, and numbers among its conmators some of the ablest divines and most valur writers of that country and the United tes. Besides well-considered theological esit contains carefully chosen serial and other stories, and interesting miscellany. The iver is not unknown here, and there is every son to predict as great a popularity for it in country as it has in Great Britain.

The Correspondence University Journal, the an of the Correspondence University of Chipo, is a journal that will deal with the Kinderten, the common school, the high school, and college. Each number will contain articles m the heads of the various departments, givoutlines of the work of the month to be be by the students, or analyses and suggestions using on such work; and the Journal will be pected to be taken, or at least read, by every son connected in any way with the Unisity. Presidents Bascom, McCosh, W. G. iot, G. Anderson and Andrews, Professor G. Bell, W. Harris, and B. A. Hinsdale I be among the contributors.

THE November Magazine of American History stains three admirably illustrated articles of blic interest. The "Unsuccessful Candidates the Presidency of the Nation" (I.) contains portraits of George Clinton, Elbridge Gerry, won Burr, Rufus King, DeWitt Clinton, Willam H. Crawford, William Wirt, Henry Clay, hn C. Calhoun, Lewis Cass, and General Scott, the fine picture of Henry Clay occupies the tice of honor as frontispiece to the magazine, esumably from the fact of his having been three times "unsuccessful" as a Presidential candidate. The concluding paper on this novel subject, to be published in December, will embrace the pictures of the defeated since 1853. The second article of the current number, "An Old Colonial College," is from the able pen of Prof. Charles F. Richardson, of Dartmouth; "Button Gwinnett" is a charming sketch by the eminent Georgia historian, Charles C. Jones, Jr., LL.D.; "California's Golden Prime of Forty-Nine" is profusely illustrated with scenes in camp and views of California towns in that early period, furnished by the author, Charles Howard Shinn; "Historic Homes—Ochre Point," Newport, R. I., contains an excellent picture of the old mansion of William Beach Lawrence at Ochre Point, together with the portrait of this eminent jurist. His daughter, Mrs. Wheeler, who contributes the article, gives some graphic pen-pictures of scenes in the interesting old homestead, and describes its distinguished guests.

"HINDU AND MAHOMEDAN LAWS AND CUS-TOMS" is the title of a bulky volume now in the press, by Mr. Cadwalladar Waddy, barrister-atlaw of the Madras bar.

An authorized German translation of the Memoirs of Bayard Taylor, edited by Miss Koch, who has added her own reminiscences of the late Mr. Taylor, will soon be published by F. A. Perthes, Gotha.

T. FISHER UNWIN, London, will publish at once a translation of a novel of contemporary Indian life, called "The Poison Tree," or in Hindustani "Bisha Briksha," by Mr. Chatterjee. Mr. Edwin Arnold, who has written an introduction, considers that in Chatterjee Bengal has produced a writer of true genius, and praises highly the author's faithful pictures of Hindu life.

ereby notify the public that a recent adverent of a certain Philadelphia publishing e, in relation to the new edition of 'A Sential Journey,' misstates the case in every parir. They sneer ingly style me "the importer ration number of copies." I am the sole sher of the English edition of this book with ir's illustrations, and not a single copy has sold, either in this country or in England, las not been sold by me. They assert that nouncement of this English edition had made. I announced the approaching pubon of the book in the fall of 1883 through medium of the various trade-journals, es advertising it widely as in preparation. say they were in complete ignorance of my m. Yet a well-known representative of the examined the book in my store last spring. fer to purchase my edition was ever made though they graciously offered to sell me reprint on terms profitable to themselves, id-and deliver proposition which I refused tertain. I must furthermore observe that, I regard the expressed desire of these genn to provide the public with cheap literais highly laudable, I decidely disapprove ir doing it at my expense.

WILL PUBLISH SOON:

Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam.

With fifty illustrations, by ELIHU VEDDER. With ornamental title-page and cover designed by Mr. Vedder. 1 vol. 4to, $25.

This is unquestionably the most original and striking illustrated book ever produced in America. There are fifty-six full-page illustrations drawn with a force and grace altogether unusual. There is not a commonplace or petty picture in the book, but all have an originality of conception and a masterly sweep of execution which are in the highest degree impressive.

The binding of the book is admirably in harmony with the artist's designs, and the whole orms a gift-book of unsurpassed attractiveness.

Illustrated Poems of Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Beautifully illustrated, carefully printed, tastefully bound. Quarto, cloth, The poems selected for illustration were chosen by Dr. Holmes himself, who has written introductory poem specially for this book. Admirers of Dr. Holmes's poetry will find many their favorite poems in the volume, printed in a sumptuous style, and made additionally tive by designs which embellish as well as illustrate. The book is produced in very use style, and cannot fail to be a most acceptable Holiday volume.

A. C. ARMSTRONG & SON.

"A Auique Book of Special Luterest."

Biblia Pauperum,

In Black Letter, Square Sbo, bound in Alhite Parchment, with clasps. PRICE, $3.75.

Containing Chirty and Bight full-page Bugrabings, illustrating the Life, Parables, and Miracles of our Blessed Lord and Sabiour Jesus Christ.

With the proper descriptions thereof, extracted from the Original Text of John Wycliffe, with Preface by the late-Dean A. P. Stanley.

In addition to the 38 full-page Engravings, each page of the Text is embellished by Borders and Ornaments, being exact face-similes from a work in the Lambeth Palace Library, used by the kind permission of the late Archbishop. of Canterbury.

The very curious series of Engravings (dated 1540) used to illustrate this volume were purchased about 70 years since, at Nuremberg. They have not been recognized as belonging to any printed book, and the Artist's mark, which appears, is unknown to any bibliographier. It is very probable that the blocks were thrown aside and never used after they had been engraved, till a lapse of nearly four centuries. There are altogether 78 subjects represented on the 38. plates.

THE EBITION OF THIS WORK FOR THE UNITED STATES IS LIMITED TO-375 COPIES.

ALSO JUST READY,

story. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1884. 2+490 p. S. cl., $1.50.
To depict the injustice the Indians suffer at the hands of our government, and the terrible pen-ecutions they encounter from the white race, is the object Mrs. Jackson has had throughout in writing this story. "Ramona" is a beautiful half-breed Indian girl, who has been brought up in a Mexican family in ignorance of her parent ge, and been well educated. She loves an Indian, "Alessandro," a man of superior education and character. Their story is a succession of cruelties and wrongs, ending in the death of Alessandro. The story is graphically told, and abounds in pictures of ranch and Indian life and character sketches of the Catholic missionary fathers. the Catholic missionary fathers.

"There is much good character painting in Beauty and the Beast, 'the natural nobleness of the Beast growing in interest with time. Lady Fermor, the dissolute 12 pagan, has her tender as well as her harsh points, her 'brazen devotion to her church' being less pleasant than her almost motherly affection for 'Thwaite.' Ludovic Acton, the simple seaman, and his more complex counterpart, Marianne Dugdale, are well contrasted. . . . Taken from the "Memories of Bayard," which appeared in France in 1527, three years after the hero's death, and written by le loyal serviteur. He was evidently an eyewitness of most of the scenes he describes, and his narrative possesses all the charm of an artis's sketches from nature. Not only do we find the most interesting picture of the manners and customs—domestic, civil, and military, of the age, but of the personages introduced. Mr. Kindersley has retained something of the quaint simplicity of the old French chronicle. The pictures are numerous, many full page. $1.25.
This story was suggested to the author by the ancient tomb of some Christian martyr in the Catacombs of Rome. On a slab of white marble closing the little crypt is an inscription which read in English, "Here lies Faustina. In peace." "Dorcas" is represented as her daughter, and as having been raised a Christian in the secrecy of the Catacombs. She is unusually cultivated, and is placed at an early age, by Epaphras, an Israelite, in the service of a Roman Vice-Prefect, to act as his secretary. The son falls in love with her, and after a hard struggle is won to Christianity. An excellent description is given of the life and worship of the Christians in the Catacombs, and of the exact doctrines they at that time professed. The Emperor exact doctrines they at that time professed. The Emperor Constantine is introduced toward the end. By the author of "Arius the Libyan."

ling in all countries. N. Y., Fords, Howard & Hulbert, 1884. 4-599 p. D. cl., $2.

Having exhausted the duels by countries, the author takes up classes. And here we find accounts of many modes of fighting—with various weapons, in the air, on the water, in the dark, between clergyman, between women; and divers topics naturally growing out of the subject—bloodless duels, the bravery of duels refused, notable escapes, remorse of duellists, pathos and sentiment of dueling, romantic duels, etc.—in all of which his faculty of enlivening facts by graphic word-painting maintains the reader's interest to the very end. He closes with a couple of anecdotal chapters on "Himors and pleasantries of the field." There is a careful index of some seventeen hundred entires, referring almost exclusively to the names of dred entries, referring almost exclusively to the names of principals in the duels recorded in the work.

"STARVING THE BOOK-TRADE."

A CORRESPONDENT who is a leading bookiler of long experience, and who therefore nows whereof he speaks, writes to ask us to ter protest that the publishers "are starving a book-trade" by withholding the supply of loks. He cites the following paragraph from the Critic, as the text of his own sermon:

"Some weeks ago the Appletons were adsed by their London agent of the appearance a new novel, 'The House on the Marsh, hich was selling as well over there as 'Called He forwarded a copy of it, and the ick.' esses were run night and day to get the book K with as little delay as possible. In the can time Mr. Bunce had gone over lists of all e recent publications of the cheap libraries, and uld find no trace of its having been republished The book was accordingly brought out eat, paper-covered volume. After it had, a neat, paper-covered volume. en on the market a few days Mr. Bunce disvered that it had been published in the Seak Library fourteen months before! He was turally much chagrined, but to his great sur-ise the book 'took hold' at once, and has been great success, selling beyond the most san-Which une expectations of the publishers. ily goes to show that the American novelading public is divided into two distinct classes those who read the Seaside Library, and those ho do not."

Our correspondent adds:

"My point is this—the booksellers don't tep the 'libraries.' They can't—there is no out in them and they spoil on the shelves. herefore, to all the people who frequent books ores the 'libraries' are non-existent. Personally don't know what they contain. A few Frank- Squares I have, but no others, and I sell very w of them, though they are near the door, he people who buy 'libraries' are the people who he in the New York Ledger—utterly unknown book-stores.

"Now for a concrete illustration. We sold a large quantity of 'John Inglesant' at $1. There was a Seaside edition, but we never heard of it until a short time ago. We never had it. The gross return on a hundred copies of 'John Inglesant' in cloth is $100. In the Seaside it would have been $20.

"Harpers, by patting their best books in the Franklin Square Library, are not doing themselves justice, and the trade is starved by the reduction of the volume of business.

"Libraries will never be handled by the booktrade They are sold by people who keep newspapers, and sell apples and other promiscuouseatables to be consumed on the spot. Something is wanted for booksellers to sell."

The writer does not appreciate, we judge, the extent to which the cheap quartos are sold by the regular trade, but we think he is right in claiming that publishers would do better for themselves and the trade if they would put all books not purely ephemeral novels, as well as some of them, in cloth binding, at reasonable prices. The sale of the quartos is by no means what it was, and we believe many people are anxious to buy books in good shape rather than pamphlets in poor shape. Let us have the opinion of other retailers on this subject.

THE issue for Nov. 22 will be our Christmas number. The Presidential election this year has so delayed business that the fall trade is practically compressed within a few weeks, and booksellers need to make the most of this short time. We therefore urge the retail trade to send in their imprint orders early, and any publishers who have not already furnished their advertising "copy" to do so at once.

TITLE-PAGES.

From the Printers' Circular.

THE modern subscription-book has curiously shown the revival of ancient custom in the matter of title-pages. The plausible book-agent who, at the proper point, opens his book at the title, smooths it down with his broad hand, and proceeds to read it, underscoring the lines with his forefinger, knows well the value of a full, descriptive and eloquent title. To be sure, he has committed it to memory, the better to aid his tongue; but he allows his customer to enjoy with him the unctuous feast which the title by foretaste gives. His eye, his finger, and his tongue travel slowly and with due emphasis down the meandering stream, and the book must be a meagre one indeed that cannot thus spread its tempting bill of fare before the reader. Compare with such a title-page any one of the title-pages of modern fashion, and how reserved is the latter. "Verses" it may be at the head of the page, "A. B." in the middle, and the publisher's modest imprint at the foot. Formerly, and now also in the exception named, the contents of the book were more than merely hinted at on the title-page. That was the very advertisement itself of the book, telling what might be found in it, who wrote it, to what learned societies, maybe, he belonged, at how many shops the book might be had, and who printed

The printer who has an eye for typographic display is avid of full title-pages. He delights in those inverted pyramids, hour-glasses, or winged creatures which he can construct by means of skilfully arranged lines of type. He wants abundance of matter, broken up into brief outlines, which he may dispose according to the inherent importance of the several phases. If he is a true master of his aft he does not take refuge in fantastically cut type, or seek variety by the use of many kinds of letter, but depends for the effect he is to produce upon the propor-tions of his page and the proper breaking up of He likes, moreover, to study the his lines. color of his page, and selects his type with reference to its harmony of tone and the gentle emphasis which may now and then be attained by a bolder face. Especially he is glad if the contents of the page warrant the use of a line ofrich Caxton type, shining, so to speak, like a black diamond, lighting the page.

The basis of a good title-page is no doubt in the selection of type and the adjustment of lines, but upon this groundwork may be built very beautiful and ornate effects. The use of red ink is one of the most common and effective appliances, and where the ink is a brilliant carmine there is a boldness and beauty which captivate the eye, if only the ink be properly used. It is not enough that two red lines should avoid proximity; it is important that the type used for taking the red should give a clear, full impression; a block letter does not do this well, and a skeleton letter is apt to look too meagre under it. A red rule about the page is often of value, but generally when there is little other use of red on the page, and indeed little other matter at all. For it may be said of rules about a page, that they are of value in proportion to the scantiness of type matter. Then they inclose the page and make the contracted matter appear more as if adjusted to narrow limits. Another choice means of securing pleasing effect is in the use of a vignette, coat of-srms, or monogram. Of these three, the vignette allies the page most closely to decorative art, and is unquestionably the most attractive. It may be said that with rare exceptions a confined vigiette is better on a title-page than a free use. The use of type above and below necessarily gives the page a geometrical form, and the istroduction of a flowing design in the centre's apt to destroy the harmony. A coat-of-arms or a monogram is the most typographic of onements, and the introduction of either of them calls for less perception of artistic fitness. The ornament helps out the page, but is not likely, as in the case of the vignette, to be the cent of the whole design. A head-piece has some times been well used, especially when the lists beneath form a pendant to it, and some of Whitingham's books, which are notable for the beauty of their title-pages, show a deep arabesque bu-der inclosing the entire page, which is very suitable to books whose general characteristic is quaintness.

The question of pointing title-pages is a grave To our eye, the effect of leaving out poi is undeniably good where the book is one of elegance or severe taste; but we deprecate the too common use of a sign manual of high at in The leaving out of points is printing. effective when the disposition of lines does call for any internal division by marks define the sense; but we hold that the which governs the omission of points at the cal of the line calls for their insertion frequently is the centre of the line. We conceive, me over, that a very artistic effect could be produ ed on a title-page by the employment of the de ranging with the middle of the letters, and d persed over the page in a manner to be gover ed both by the eye and the sense of the matte Inscriptions, it will be noticed, are so arrange

It is obvious that several of these precepts t quite impracticable; at least, if they are intenfor general application. On the whole, it w be said that there would be much better title-page were printers to have more control over two rding contained in them. It is the authority and not usually the printer, who is the cause most of the badly displayed, vulgar-look titles; and very often there is no use in t printer remonstrating. Even the publisher hi self-who has an interest even deeper than printer in securing a good title-page ca induce a stubborn, pedantic author to costo to the ordinary conventional laws of propriet which govern such productions. Whenever glaringly offensive page is encountered, it safe, we believe, to attribute it to the authors not to the printer.

It has been said that as men whom nature in the forefront of all other men are noted an intellectual simplicity of life and manner, the title-page that heralds all the inner pages a book should be printed in a style of elegt severe and unadorned. We must give in a adhesion to the dictum, although it often quires modification. The old style of printi for example, is very agreeably enhanced beauty by the use of a chaste pictorial embeli and do not detract from the elegance of a pe indeed, the tasteful printer can occasionally wonders out of the repertory of rule, built case and ordinary type common to nearly office.

COPYRIGHT IN PRIVATE LETTERS.

From the (London) Law Journal.

THE action brought by Lord Lytton to reain the publication of the late Lord Lytton's ters to his wife seems likely to have several eresting features. The property in the letters, pieces of paper, is vested in Lord Lytton as father's executor. Such property is gener-y vested in the recipients of letters, but at the ie in question a wife was incapable of holdsuch property, and even the letters written ore marriage vested in her husband on the rriage. Since the Married Woman's Propy Act letters written subsequently to the t by a husband to a wife are, as pieces of, ser, the property of the wife. The literary perty in the letters—that is, the right to pubcopies of them-remains in all cases in the ter. This was decided as long ago as 1741, "Pope v. Curll, 2 Atk. 342," when the poet ained, at the hands of Lord Hardwick, an metion against the publisher who proposed print some of Pope's letters. It has somees been said that the recipient of a letter publish it for the purposes of personal vinttion. How far this is law is a question of bt, and it would hardly apply as between band and wife, still less as between their pective representatives after the death of h, when the matters in question have passed the region of history.

Will Publish Saturday, November 15:

An American Politician.

Novel by F. Marion Crawford, author of "Mr. Isaacs," "A Roman Singer," etc. 1 vol.. 16mo, $1.25.

This is a story which appeals in a very direct manner to every intelligent American. It is a ry of American life, society, and politics of to-day; not, indeed, the singular politics of Presidential campaign just ended, but touching political topics in which hosts of people st be interested, and including other and tenderer themes of which Mr. Crawford writes so actively. The story cannot fail to create much discussion and engage general attention.

Choy Susan, and Other Stories.

WILLIAM HENRY BISHOP, author of "The House of a Merchant Prince," etc. 1 vol., 16mo, $1.25.

CONTENIS: Choy Susan; The Battle of Bunkerloo; Deodand; Braxon's New Art; One of Thirty Pieces; McIntyre's False Face; Miss Calderon's German.

Mr. Bishop is one of the most successful of American writers of short stories. Indeed, he has sed from the admirable short stories he has written nearly as much reputation and as hearty a come among American readers as from the excellent novels he has published. He has chosen most striking of his stories for the volume above named.

mgs of the Silent World, and Other Poems.

ELIZABETH STUART PHELPS, author of "The Gates Ajar," "Beyond the Gates." I vol. 16mo, $1.25.

The title Miss Phelps has chosen for her new book of poems will suggest, especially to lers of her notable book "The Gates Ajar," and of the still more remarkable book, eyond the Gates," a hint of the subject and character of some of them. Others are very inclly of this world, poems of love and friendship, marked by a peculiar fervor and graceful to.

Continuity of Christian Thought.

Rev. ALEX. V. C. ALLEN, D.D., Professor of Ecclesiastical History in the Episcopal School, Cambridge, Mass. 1 vol. 12mo, $1.50.

A book of noble aim and admirable execution. It contains a careful survey of the history of gious thought since the beginning of the Christian era. The great value of the work as a dy of religious history is even surpassed by its value as suggesting the power and vitality | breadth of the religious thought and faith which are to conquer and transform the world.

A Handbook of Universal Literature.

mm the Best and Latest Authorities. By ANNE C. LYNCH BOTTA. A New and Carefully Revised Edition. 12mo, $2.00.

Mrs. Botta has just made a very thorough revision of this book, and brought it down to date in references to writers and their works. Her Handbook has for years been recognized as an mirable outline of the world's literature, embracing a general view of the achievements of all tions which have contributed in any considerable degree to the intellectual enrichment of mand: Hebrew, Syriac, Chaldaic, Phœnician, Hindoo, Persian, Chinese, Egyptian, Greek, man, Arabian, Italian, French, Spanish, Portuguese, Finnish, Hungarian, Turkish, Armenian. wic, Scandinavian, German, Dutch, English and American.

Booksellers, especially those who sympathise with the work, are urged to keep these books in stack. The limited discount prevents underselling, and makes the books safe to handle, and there should be a large sale in educational institutions and among young men.

Literary News.

NOTICE TO BOOKSELLERS.

THE LITERARY News for Christmas, 1884, will embrace thirty-two pages of reading matter and illustrations, and we intend to make it of the higher interest and artistic attractiveness, and to issue it promptly.

Its sole aim and object is to increase the sale of books, and every booksell who distributes it may be sure of being benefited thereby.

The chief attraction of the forthcoming issue will be the numerous specimen illustrations from the most prominent and popular new holiday books.

The most valuable feature, besides the Literary Notes, will be a speci price-list of the Books of the Season, in all the departments of Holiday Li erature.

To those who desire to reach a wider public than they feel they can affect to seek through the more expensive Christmas Number of the Published Weekly, the Christmas Number of the Literary News is recommended as a best possible medium to cultivate a holiday trade.

ISSUED BY

[ALL ENTERPRISING BOOKSELLERS.]

The subscription edition of the Illustrated Christmas Number of The Publishers' EKLY will be issued as early in November as possible, to give time for the imprint editions to chall dealers three weeks before Christmas at the latest.

The Number will as usual present the finest specimen illustrations from the New Hollif Books, with special articles on the leading works, a full descriptive summary of books stationery novelties, reference price-lists covering the Illustrated Works, Books for Young, and other Choice Books published during 1884, etc., etc. Every endeavor will made to surpass the issues of previous years, pronounced in 1880, by the N. Y. Tribune, of the most tasteful and attractive catalogues, surpassing even the achievements of the English in same line; and even at an earlier date, by the German "Book Trade Magazine" the most attive publication of the kind issued in the book-producing countries."

The imprint edition (intended for distribution by dealers with their sole imprint) will be need immediately after the issue of the Trade edition, under the title of "Christmas Cata-we," as given above.

The local bookseller can add half as much again to his holiday trade by properly calling attention of the public to his goods. For this purpose, the best means is the circulation of handsome, interesting, and comprehensive Christmas Catalogue, which is received with asure by those to whom it is given or sent, as itself a picture-book of no little value; and descriptions of and illustrations from books, at once arouse the desire to purchase the iks themselves.

No better investment can be made by the bookseller who wants to make the most of his holiday is.

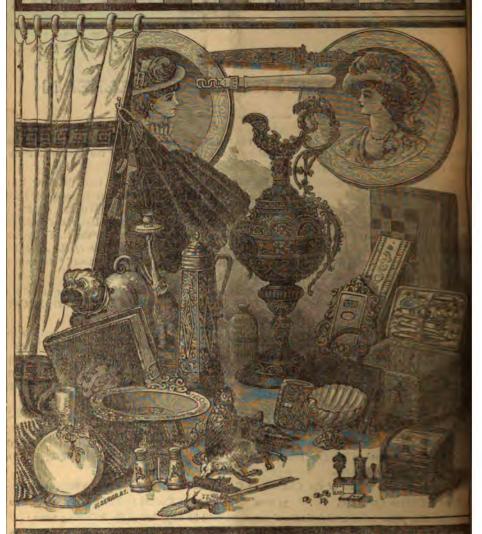

Orders filled in the order of size of edition, largest first, and then of receipt. As the er is specially made for this issue, orders should be received at once, as the filling of later unds cannot be guaranteed.

Orders should be sent in at once, and in order to avoid delay, it is absolutely necessary that by for imprint, together with full directions for forwarding, should accompany the remittance.

packages sent by express unpaid, unless other shipping directions are given.

NOTES IN SEASON.

B. Lippincott & Co. publish this week, in ninty edition, "The Enchiridion of Wit-the t specimens of English Conversational wit, la new and thoroughly revised edition of he American Sportsman," by Dr. Elisha J. vis, with new chapters on the origin, breeding science of breaking dogs, and full informaon breech-loading and hammerless guns, Supples, Upham & Co. have ready "Heidi: r Years of Wandering and Learning," transed from the German of Johanna Spyri, by uise Brooks, a story for children and those o love children; "Switzerland and the Swiss, S. H. M. Byers, a popular and pleasing book our American Consul, both historical and eriptive, and containing many illustrations;

"Moonshine," by Frederick A. Tupper, a new novel of American life, replete with incident and character; and a new edition of "The Art of Fiction," by Walter Besant, to which has been added Henry James's essay upon the same topic.

CHARLES SCRIBNEB'S SONS have issued "The Creoles of Louisiana" in a beautiful edition, embellished with illustrations and maps that make still more graphic the flowing text of George Cable; "Biographical Essays," by F. Max Müller, dealing with the lives of Råjah Råm-mohun Roy, Keshub Chunder Sen, Daynânda Sarasvatt, Bunyiu Nanjio, and Kenjiu Kasawara, Julius Mohl and Charles Kingsley, and containing a vast amount of information about these men and their special influence upon their time and surroundings; No. VII. of their Philosophic Series, "A Criticism of the Critical Philosophy," by James McCosh, D. D., President of Princeton College; and "An Old-Fashioned Fairy Book," by Mrs. Burton Harrison, illustrated by Rosina Emmet, and calculated to make the average childheart very grateful.

HARPER & BROS. send out this week a batch of interesting books, including E. P. Roe's "Nature's Serial Story," lavishly illustrated by W. Hamilton Gibson and F. Dielman; Eduard Laboulaye's "Last Fairy Tales," translated by Mary L. Booth, and fully illustrated; "Left behind or Ten Days a Newsboy" a central story for hind, or, Ten Days a Newsboy," a capital story for boys, by James Otis, author of "Toby Tyler," etc., also very fully illustrated; and the bound volume of Harper's Young People for 1884. The books of a more solid character just ready are "Fifty Years of London Life—Memoirs of a Man of the World," by Edmund Yates, a most interesting volume of reminiscences of one of the best-known English litterateurs; a centennial biography of "Sir Moses Montefiore," with selections from letters and journals, by Lucien Wolf; and "A Sketch of the Life and Times of the Rev. Sidney Smith, based on family documents and recollec-tions of personal friends," by Stuart J. Reid, with portrait on steel, fac-similes and other illustrations.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. have just issued F. Marion Crawford's latest novel "An American Politician," the first few chapters of which entirely contradict the idea that the rapid production of this author is impairing his style or detracting from the interest of his plots and characters. It is a novel of fashionable American life and politics of to-day. They issue to-day, "Continuity of Christian Thought," by Rev. Alex. V. G. Allen, D.D., a book of noble aim and admirable execution, which contains a careful survey of the history of religious thought since the beginning of the Christian era; "Songs of the Silent World, and Other Poems," by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, the title of which will suggest, especially to readers of her notable book, "The Gates Ajar," and of the still more remarkable book, "Beyond the Gates," a hint of the subject and character of some of them. Others are very distinctly of this world, poems others are very distinctly of this world, poems of love and friendship, marked by a peculiar fervor and graceful force. "Choy Susan, and Other Stories," by William Henry Bishop, author of "The House of a Merchant Prince," and a new and carefully revised edition of "A Handbook of Universal Literature," from the best and latest authorities, by Anne C. Lynch Botta, are also just ready.

D. cl., $1.25. e type of an American politician presented in John ington is one that was seen often in the recent gle. Indeed, the whole novel reads as a reflection of late campaign. Harrington is a Democrat, young, some and well-educated, going in for reform, free and the-truth. We find him at home in Boston, fadelightful circle, made up of beautiful women and r men. The romantic element in his career is furd by a Miss Josephine Thorn, an English girl spendwinter with American friends. His whole story, enda his election to Congress, is very well told. Mr. ford approaches more closely in this novel to Mr. y James's analytical and realistic style than in anythe has written.

Over seventy charming vignette designs, by twenty prominent American artists, illustrate this beautiful edition of a collection of about thirty of Dr. Holmes's most popular poems, selected by himself, and introduced by a new poem written for the book. The delicate grace and careful finish of the pictures, the fine way in which the engraving has been done, the printing and rich paper—all unite to make this one of the most notable holiday books of the season. There is a fine portrait of Dr. Holmes, and the binding of dark brown cloth has a delicate design in gold and a darker brown.

NOW FOR BUSINESS!

THE Presidential election is over, and with it the excitement and suspense that always act so injuriously upon steady and legitimate business. The political committees have ceased deluging voters with the oceans of printed matter that prevent all thought of books and reading properly so called. Now for business!

Always before an election the partisans on either side are sure that there is no salvation for the country, no prosperity for business, in case the other side wins. The opinion is strongly and, for the most part, honestly held. After an election there comes the more wholesome and, on the whole, more true opinion, that the prosperity of this great country is not altogether dependent on one party, or, indeed, on politics at This is no reason why citizens should not do their level best to put the best party or the best man in power, and it remains true that ill-advised legislation or other political errors may do great harm. But this country cannot easily be ruined.

There is one aspect of the result of the recent campaign which is rightly to be alluded to from a purely business point of view. Whatever may be the political development of the South under a change of administration, there is no doubt that its people will feel more comfortably settled under a government of their own political faith, and that business in that region will have a steady and increasing development. The South will ultimately vie with the West as a market for books, and, indeed, travellers this year report that the wholesale trade is more active in Philadelphia than almost anywhere elseevidently because that is a chief entrepot for the South.

Now, let booksellers make the most of the opportunity between this and Christmas. Their is business to be done, if they will only go rightly and vigorously to work at it.

HE IMPORTANCE OF A TITLE. From the N. Y. Sun.

PUBLISHER was lately looking for an author rite for him a volume of six or seven hundred It was to be a hodgepodge of matters ing from the most sentimental of poetry ne dryest of law. He had used a novel e for deciding what to put into it. His ts throughout the land numbered over a sand, and he had invited each to send to a list of the things which would most help ale of a book One replied that a summary he pension laws was desirable, another inded plenty of poetry concerning the death ildren, a third suggested a digest of the ce laws in the different States, a fourth that a lot of album verses would be ible, and so on through a long and incon-as list of subjects. "And what will you lor the work?" was asked. "Oh, two or hundred dollars," was the reply. it will be simply a compilation with hardly original labor. Almost anybody can do it, the price I mention is good enough. But e glad to pay a thousand dollars or more That's the vital thing, and I've title. d my brain for months in vain to hit on thing new and odd. I know exactly what it the title to mean. It must say, 'This contains everything that a family ever for in reading matter.' Do you know a word or phrase meaning all that? I'll a thousand dollars for it, if unique."

ITALIAN COMPANY OF BIBLIO-PHILES.

From the Library Journal.

. TEDDER in the August number of the Lichronicle gives an account of a proposed a bibliografical association, which is, he apparently to combine some of the leading cteristics of the Börsen-Verein der deutschtchhändler, the new English Company of ors, the Library Association, and the Vehm ht.

e title of the new society is to be the Assone Bibliofila, and its scope: (1), to keep a sull eye upon the laws of literary property, boring about such amendments as may desirable; (2), to see that books of special and interest, antiquarian treasures, mss., are neither taken out of the country nor syed in ignorance of their value; (3), to out the sale of good and useful books and collocation in public and private libraries, prevent the production and dissemination moral and harmful literature; (4), to establish libraries in the smallest communes, in civil and military hospitals, in barracks and in fact every kind of institution where people are collected; (5), to found the credito librario, intended to help authors and to lend money under certain regulations; and (6), to create mutually beneficial relations between similar institutions in Italy and abroad.

It is not worth while to discuss the methods by which these objects are to be attained; for the chances are that no such society will ever be instituted, as there are already societies in existence which attend to some of these objects; and it is almost certain that if founded a society with such multifarious purposes would soon come to an end.

According to the proposed regulations worthy members may receive a diploma of honor. Mr. Tedder asks, and we join with him in the desire, that "a library-order of merit may some day be instituted to reward those who have been capable of such unusual acts of virtue as to keep silent in reading-rooms, to return volumes in an unsullied condition, those who have refrained from borrowing books in an unauthorized manner, to use a delicate periphrase, or those who have seldom needlessly troubled librarians with preposterous demands."

Finally looking at the appalling fecundity of our time in new societies which "are getting so numerous that a society will have to be founded for the sole purpose of their special study, he asks, "Why cannot we establish a society for the protection of libraries against the monstrous regiment of worthless new books?"

COMMUNICATIONS.

THE QUESTION OF CHEAP NOVELS.

New York, Nov. 11, 1884.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

Apropos of your article on "Starving the Book Trade," I would like to again express my opinion that the cheap reprints of novels at from 25 to 50 cents are better for the bookseller than the cloth-bound editions at $1.25 or $1.50 retail. The reason is very plain, and can be illustrated very simply, by my own experience in regard to two books—one, "The House on the Marsh" and the other, say, "Dr. Sevier." Ordering 25 or more copies at a time, I obtain 40 per cent discount on both of them, and in selling them I have to take off 20 per cent on Now, I have sold 300 copies of the "House on the Marsh," and have thus made $30, and I have not yet sold 25 copies of "Dr. Sevier, much better book, and by a popular author, and have not yet made $7.50—or one quarter the amount. Why? Because everybody can afford 25 cents for a novel that is talked about, but will hesitate considerably before paying $1.20 for a story they are not certain of caring for. Of course, I have extra trouble and extra wrapping paper to use, but, after all, the extra sale does not require extra clerks or extra expense to look after them. It is my opinion that the cheap libraries would do a wise thing to print on somewhat better paper and increase their retail price and trade discount, as they would thus become more profitable to the bookseller, and not be held in the aversion with which they are now generally regarded. I think that a cheap book, while entailing more detail in its delivery, will, in the long run, do as well for the publisher as a more expensive cloth one, with a limited edition; for when the composition and stereotyping of the book are paid for, the cost of making the book is about twice the cost of the paper it is printed on, leaving a very fair margin of profit to the publisher on a large sale.

Respectfully, etc.,

W. R. J.

CAZENOVIA, N. Y., Nov. 10, 1884. To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: On reading your editorial "on Starving the Book Trade," it struck me your correspondent might be mistaken. My experience as a retailer, extending over a period of nearly twenty years, and a constant study of the taste and drift of the reading public, teaches me that the cheap libraries do sell, and are sought by the best class of people.

The Franklin Square has fallen into disfavor simply on account of its inconvenient form. The cheap Seaside is of course sold largely at the newsstands. But the admirably edited and well-made Leisure Moment Series of Messrs. Henry Holt & Co. is, or could be, largely sold by every intelligent bookseller in the country.

Mr. David Douglass, of Edinburgh, Scotland, has recently brought out a very neat and choice series of American reprints. The size and general make-up is very nearly perfect, and, in my judgment, an American series of English novels in similar style, to retail, say, at twenty-five cents (25 c.) per vol., would meet a large sale, and would be kept in stock at all BOOKSTORES. sold perhaps half a dozen copies of the dollar ($1) edition of " John Inglesant" at eighty cents (80 c.)—every body demands and gets the usual discount—and a goodly number of the twentycent edition at twenty cents. The great reading public demand something convenient, pretty and cheap. I think this particularly true of novels. And as for us retailers, we have no thought of getting rich. We are booksellers simply for the love of it.

Cordially yours,

WM. WATKINS.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

LAURENCE OLIPHANT is editing a series of essays, "Sympneumata, or, Signs of Humanity Evolution."

"RUSSIA UNDER THE TZARS" is the title of a new work which Stepniak, the author of "Underground Russia," is now writing. The first volume of it has just been finished.

THE Athenaum says that Mr. Palgrave is preparing a Golden Treasury volume of Tennyson, which will be published early next year, and which will contain notes.

MR. ROBERT BUCHANAN will publish soon, through the Bentleys, an autobiography entitled "Reminiscences of a Literary Career." It will comprise two volumes, and will contain a portrait of the author.

MR. CHARLES BURR TODD, 11 W. 22d St., N. Y., is about to publish—by subscription—his "Life and Letters of Joel Barlow," author of "The Columbiad." He will give a number of hitherto unpublished letters of distinguished men, with poems and miscellaneous matter which will also see the light for the first time.

IZ. FREDERICK HAWKINS'S "Annals of the sch Stage," which is soon to be published in don, in two volumes, covers the period a the beginning down to the death of Racine. work gives quite as much prominence to matists and dramatic literature as to players their work.

DWARD SCHUBERTH & Co., N. Y., have recentublished an essay on "Federic Chopin," by is Ehlert, translated from the German by en D. Tretbar. They have in press essays he same author on "Robert Schumann," elix Mendelssohn-Bartholdy," and "Carl ssig."

rappears that some one at Corydon, Iowa, been trying to swindle the book dealers. has answered advertisements in the Critic, has claimed to have books advertised for lasked for remittances. He has also advertisate the Bookmart a very tempting bait under the ne of Prof. A. H. Lockwood. Rumor says one dealer has lost $15, and others have narly escaped.

CUPPLES, UPHAM & Co. will publish shortly "An Actor's Tour, or, Seventy Thousand Miles with Shakespeare," by Daniel E. Bandmann. edited by Barnard Gisby. The volume will give an interesting description of the tragedian's tour through Australia, New Zealand, India, Europe, and elsewhere. It will contain a lithograph of the late W. M. Hunt's portrait of Bandmann as Hamlet.

THE CENTURY Co. have ready the bound volumes of the Century Magazine for 1884 that in the dead gold, highly ornamented cover make a most imposing show; also the bound volumes of St. Nicholas in their cheerful, well-known redand-black holiday costume; and a new juvenile gleaned from its treasures, destined to become a prime favorite with children, under the name of "Baby World." Mrs. Dodge is the editor, and has shown the same discriminating taste she displayed in "Baby Days."

BARON TAUCHNITZ has himself made the selection of Browning's poems for the third and fourth volumes of "The Poetical Works" of that author, which have just appeared in the Touchnitz Series. Volume III. contains fifty-one lyrics, two dramas, "Pippa Passes" and "A Blot on the 'Scutcheon," the last book of "Paracelsus," and five romances. In Vol. IV. are "O Lyric Love," and two parts—"Caponsacchi" and "Pompilia"—from "The Ring and the Book," with sixteen pieces from "later poems," including "La Saisiaz" and "Hervé Riel."

Townsend McCoun has just issued a seventh and enlarged edition of Labberton's Historical Atlas, the well-known usefulness of which is now increased by the addition of an entirely new series of American historical maps. The entire collection, as improved, now comprises one hundred and twelve maps, handsomely engraved and colored. Confident that a very large popular sale will warrant it, the publisher has greatly reduced the price, but also has a library edition on heavier paper, in half morocco, which sells at a higher figure.

R. E. BEAN & Co., Franklin, N. H., have an ingenious contrivance in "The Ready Binder," a capital little utensil for binding loose papers and pamphlets in a substantial manner without unnecessary expense or undue labor. The binder consists of two pieces of wire twisted in the centre and bent at the ends in such a manner as to form jaws. Into these jaws the papers to be bound are inserted, and by pushing two movable clasps toward each end, the jaws are fastened and held in position. The binder is made in any size desired. Those regularly made are from 5 to 17 inches in length, and cost at retail from ten to sixty cents each.

THE CONGREGATIONAL SUNDAY-SCHOOL AND PUB. Soc. have published "The Divine Authority of the Bible," by Prof. G. Frederick Wright, of Oberlin Theological Seminary, a scholarly exposition of the facts upon which rest the inspiration, interpretation and authority of our present Bible; "The Historical Value of the First Eleven Chapters of Genesis, with some Discussion of the New Criticism," by the Rev. D. N. Beach, with an Introduction by Edwin B. Webb, D. D., a work which lays bare some of the roots of the present agitation respecting Old Testament criticism; "The Duties of Christians to the Church," by Rev. Geo. R. Leavitt, a little manual adapted to the use of Congregational churches; also a neat series of juveniles under the title of The Wellspring Series, by Anna F. Burnham, comprising four little volumes entitled "Trying to be Somebody;" "Under the Master's Eye;" "Lucy's Windows," and "Valentines."

M ESSRS. LEON & BROTHER beg leave to announce MESSRS. LEON & BROTHER beg leave to announce that they have in preparation a Special-priced Catalogue of First Editions of the most Prominent American Authorn. It is well known that for many years the English and French bibliophiles have been eagerly collecting the first editions of their authors, and, no doubt, collecting the first editions of American authors should be no less interesting to Americans. With the exception of Harris's privately printed index, this will be the first attempt of its kind in American literature. Desiring to complete, as far as possible, their already large collection they will be pleased to receive from collectors, librarians, and booksellers any suggestions concerning first editions of such prominent American authors as Aldrich, Barlow, Bancroft, Bryant, Cooper, Dana, and Dunlap, Emerson, Fields, Freneau, Franklin, Hamilton, Hawtherne, Halleck, Holmes, Howells, Irving, Longfellow, Lowell, Mitchell, Motley, Poc, Prescott, Simms, Stow, Stedman, Taylor, Thoreau, Tuckerman, Whitman, Whittier, Willis, Wolcott, etc. Persons wishing to dispose of any such first editions etc. Persons wishing to dispose of any such first editions will find us ready purchasers at fair prices.

LEON & BROTHER, Booksellers, Fifth Avenue Hotel, New York City.

Booksellers, especially those who sympathize with the work, are urged to keep these books in stack The limited discount prevents underselling, and makes the books safe to handle, and there should be a large sale in educational institutions and among young men.

THE

[Of books in print July 1, 1876. 2 vols., royal 4to, $40.]

SUPPLEMENT

OF BOOKS ISSUED JULY 1, 1876, TO JULY 1, 1884.

The SUPPLEMENT, which is a complete work in itself, will be issued in the early fall of 1884. It will include titles of over 20,000 books, entered in the first part by title and author, and in the second by subject. The volume will probably be of about the size of the second volume of the CATALOGUE, exceeding 450 pages; the price will be, to present subscribers, $10; after publication, probably $12 or $15. The edition will be limited to 1250 copies and no plates will be made.

Less than 50 copies remain unsold of the AMERICAN CATALOGUE itself, now priced at $40. The price will probably be raised at an early date to $50 or $75 on the few remaining copies.

Five-yearly supplements hereafter will enhance the value of the original work and of the first supplement. Every owner of a private library and book-collector, as well as every book-seller and librarian, should have this invaluable key to American books.

Fichte's Science of Knowledge.

A CRITICAL EXPOSITION.

By Prof. C. C. EVERETT, D.D., of Harvard University. Price, $1.25.

"This work, which forms the third volume of Griggs's German Philosophical Classics, contains a careful analysis of Fichte's philosophy, such as has never before appeared in English. The position of Fichte in the development of German Philosophy, as the first great elaborator of the system of Kant, together with the heroic grandeur or his moral nature, will render this volume at once inspiring and indispensable to all students of modern thought."

"Probably no man in this country has given to the works of Fichte so thorough and intelligent study as Dr. Everett."

ISSUED BY

[ALL ENTERPRISING BOOKSELLERS.]

The subscription edition of the ILLUSTRATED CHRISTMAS NUMBER of THE PUBLISHERS'
WEEKLY will be issued as early in November as possible, to give time for the imprint editions to reach all dealers three weeks before Christmas at the latest.

The Number will as usual present the finest specimen illustrations from the New HouDAY BOOKS, with special articles on the leading works, a full descriptive summary of books and stationery novelties, reference price-lists covering the ILLUSTRATED WORKS, BOOKS FOR THE YOUNG, and other Choice Books published during 1884, etc., etc. Every endeavor we be made to surpass the issues of previous years, pronounced in 1880, by the N. Y. Tribust one of the most tasteful and attractive catalogues, surpassing even the achievements of the English the same line; and even at an earlier date, by the German "Book Trade Magazine" "the most at tractive publication of the kind issued in the book-producing countries."

The imprint edition (intended for distribution by dealers with their sole imprint) will be printed immediately after the issue of the Trade edition, under the title of "CHRISTMAS CATALOGUE," as given above.

The local bookseller can add half as much again to his holiday trade by properly calling the attention of the public to his goods. For this purpose, the best means is the circulation of this handsome, interesting, and comprehensive Christmas Catalogue, which is received with pleasure by those to whom it is given or sent, as itself a picture-book of no little value; and its descriptions of and illustrations from books, at once arouse the desire to purchase the books themselves.

No better investment can be made by the bookseller who wants to make the most of his helidal brade.

Orders filled in the order of size of edition, largest first, and then of receipt. As the paper is specially made for this issue, orders should be received at once, as the felling of law demands cannot be guaranteed.

LITERARY NEWS.

NOTICE TO BOOKSELLERS.

THE LITERARY News for Christmas, 1884, will embrace thirty-two pages of reading matter and illustrations, and we intend to make it of the highest interest and artistic attractiveness, and to issue it promptly.

Its sole aim and object is to increase the sale of books, and every bookseller who distributes it may be sure of being benefited thereby.

The chief attraction of the forthcoming issue will be the numerous specimen illustrations from the most prominent and popular new holiday books,

The most valuable feature, besides the Literary Notes, will be a special price-list of the Books of the Season, in all the departments of Holiday Literature.

To those who desire to reach a wider public than they feel they can afford to seek through the more expensive Christmas Number of the Publishers' Weekly, the Christmas Number of the Literary News is recommended as the best possible medium to cultivate a holiday trade.

ONE YEAR'S SKETCH BOOK

A series of illustrations of the scenes and Flowers of Spring, Summer, Autumn, and Win by IRENE E. JEROME, comprising forty-six full-page pictures 91/214 inches, original de ings, engraved in the best manner by John Andrew & Son. Cloth, full gilt, $6.00 Tud morocco, $12.00

The leading gift-book of the year. The illustrations are of most exquisite character, and are all original. In the artist, now introduced to the public for the first time, has reproduced with magic skill some of the most beautiful ain nature—bits of landscape and water sketches, glowing in the sunlight or frosted with the silvery shower of moonbeams. The volume will prove attractive to all buyers, and, in its delicacy of conception and in perfectness of cution could not be surpassed.

OR FLOWERS AND JEWELS FOR HER ADORNMENT. With original designs printed in colors, ELEANOR W. TALBOT. Cloth, full gilt, $5.00. Turkey morocco, $10.00

This is a genuine surprise. The flowers and gems of the boudoir are made to symbolize the virtues and gramperfect womanhood. Radiant in gold and colors, they seem but little short of the realities. As a wedding present volume commends itself by its singular delicacy and refined character. It will be sought as a unique compliment of and courtesy between friends; while as a Christmas gift nothing could be more appropriate.

Wherein may be chronicled by the loving mother the story of the events, happenings, and oningness attending the progress of "My Baby," as a memento of grown up days. Design Printed in colors. Bound in elegant style. and illustrated by Annie F. Cox. gold, $3.75. Turkey morocco, $7.50.

Every mother should be asked to examine this beautiful and suggestive book. With what pleasure does she we the progress of her baby through babyhood! How many little things there are which she would wish to record—birth, the weight from time to time, the first smile, the first tooth, the first tep—and would do so cheerfully if she such'a dainty diary as the "Baby's Kingdom." ILLUSTRATED HOLIDAY BOOKS.

Sunlight and Shade.

Being Poems and Pictures of Life and Nature. Illustrated by Barnard, Barnes, Barraud, Boot, Clausen, Dodd, Dicksee, Edwards, Gardner, Gow, Gregory, Hatherell, Hopkins, Kilburne. Macbeth, Overend, Palmer, Ralston, Small, Wyllie, and many others of the best artists of the day.

An elegant quarto volume, with an illustration on each and every page, and accompanying text, either original or selected from favorite poets. One volume, quarto, beautifully printed on fine paper, and bound in extra cloth, full gilt, $3; full morocco, $7.50.

"The genuine lover of song is a lover of pictures, and there is no true artist who has not the inspiration akin to that of the poet. Indeed they are the same inspired thoughts which each endeavors to express, and when the sister muses go hand in hand, and the work of pen and pencil appear upon the same page, each embellishes the other. It is so in the volume. Each engraving is a poem; each poem is a picture; and they are so woven together that they cannot be separated. Among the artists who have contributed to make this one of the pretiest volumes of the season, there are many of world-wide reputation, and many of the poems are from pens that we have learned to love."

"There is sunshine in this book, and the reader will feel it. It will soothe and quiet; it will subdue and soften; it will bring mind and heart into accord with uplifting themes, and carry one's affections toward the good, the true and the beautiful,"—The Literary World.

The Magazine of Art.

Volume for 1884. Being the fourth volume of THE NEW ENLARGED SERIES With nearly 5.0 choice engravings from famous paintings, and from original drawings by the first artists of the day. An original etching by R. W. Macbeth, A.R. A., entitled "Lady Bountiful," forms the frontispiece. Extra cloth, beveled, full gilt, $5; full morocco, $10.

"No more beautiful volume than this ever adorned a drawing-room table. It is indeed a store-house of art."

"A merrie, merrie Christmas to ge all!"

HOLMES'S ILLUSTRATED POEMS.

TAKING up the beautiful Christmas gift prepared by Houghton, Mifflin & Co. as their timely offering to all who love Dr. Holmes, we are at once impressed with the nice discrimination shown in the representative selection made from so great "embarrassment of riches." The rare versatility of Dr. Holmes's genius can be realized by a careful reading of these twenty-nine poems. As poet, essayist, novelist, humorist, scientist, philosopher, and scholar, he stands in the first ranks of American men-of-letters, and it is easy to understand why we love him almost more than we admire him. The poet-doctor has made all the varied ills of the human soul his study, and he has found the happiest of remedies for them—a word of sympathetic comfort or comprehension, that makes us feel the doctor has been here and brightened the day, even though the ache continue. We have all often noticed with astonishment how patients whose nerves are all unstrung, who cannot stand the rattle of a teaspoon or the rustling of a paper in their sick-room, will welcome the heavy step of a favorite doctor, let him slam a door, say a cheery, loud goodmorning, rustle a newspaper to read a good joke, give a hearty laugh—in fact, bring in the air and sunshine, that they will not allow their nearest and dearest to suggest. Just in this way gay, joyous, exhilarating Dr. Holmes has entered the darkened chamber of many a morbid soul, and left behind renewed interest in life, a timely word of kind reproof, a sugared sarcasm that has proved a needed and beneficial tonic. His literary patients have become sensible that under all the exuberance that has amused and cheered a generation, there is a deep earnestness, a love of truth, a devotion to humanity, a passion for goodness, which inspire a love of one's fellow-men and a wish to be up and doing one's work in the world once more.

But all his friends have told us this year what he is and what good work he has done. We must confine ourselves to the little part of his labors that lies before us. Twenty different artists have interpreted the word-painting of these poems, and twelve of our best engravers have perpetuated their thoughts after the best manner of their art. The opposite page shows three of the illustrations from the inimitable "One Hoss Shay," that poem of humorous logic and rhythmical mechanics. W. H. Shelton has drawn the trim, perfect, completed chaise, and W. T. Smedley has pictured the lines "So the deacon inquired of the village folk," as well as the tragic end of the "deacon's masterpiece," and both artists have caught the true spirit of the fun. Print, paper, binding, and all that goes to make a handsome book are plain and rich, as goes without saying in a volume that bears that "patent of nobility," the imprint of the Riverside Press.

THE DEACON'S MASTERPIECE.

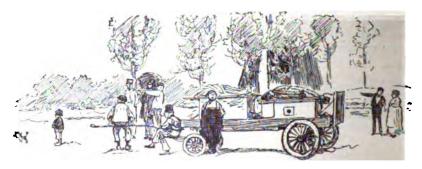

SKETCHING RAMBLES IN HOLLAND.

They were two American artists, who lived in London, and word came to them that they should make a book for the delight of their fellow-Americans and their fellow-Englishmen. Whereupon they set sail for Holland, and fell in with the doughty Jacob, guide, counsellor, and friend—for a reasonable consideration per diem; and they sketched to their hearts' content the long, low shores, and endless canals, and numberless windmills, and picturesque streets, and famous pictures, and queer people of quaint and delightful "hollow-land." Then one of them began to write, and wrote as only an artist can, bringing out of his inkstand the freshest bits of word-pictures, with the happiest imaginable play of humor by way of sunshine. This is how "Sketching Rambles in Holland" came to be. The two artists are Geo. H. Boughton, dear to Americans for his charming Mayflower pictures, and E. A. Abbey, known in two lands as chief among the "black and-white" men; and Mr. Boughton is the writer. To see Holland through their eyes is almost better than to see Holland through one's own—besides being much less expensive.

Their book, as published by Harper & Brothers, is one of the finest holiday volumes of the season, and among its ninety illustrations, ranging from full-page pictures of varied subject and interest to amusing little touches of humor, are two printed on India proof paper and mounted like etchings—an entire novelty in the book-making art. Artists' letters are almost always delightful, and a good letter is said to be the best of good literature; in this book the public has the benefit of all the brightness and delight in nature and men which the man of the brush usually reserves for the delectation of his studio-friends.

There are few books of travel so entirely delightful as this, and it is a pleasant showing for American literature that though in one sense born in England, its parentage is so thoroughly American. It goes without saying that the engraving and manufacture of the book are entirely from home soil.

"THE DORDRECHT FIRE DEPARTMENT."

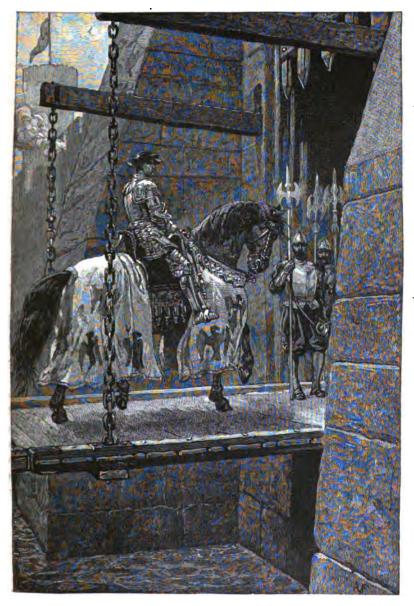

SEVENTY-FIVE years have passed since the romance of Lord Marmion electrified the English-speaking world. Since then we have been carefully taught in our literature lessons that Scott is not to rank among poets of the first order, that he never strikes the deeper chords, that his verse is full of defects; and Byron, Moore, Shelley, Keats, Tennyson, Morris, Rossetti, and Swinburne have taught us to what perfection verse-making can be brought. And yet to-day even a cursory reading of the flowing lines of "Marmion" fires our imaginations, makes our pulses thrill, and convinces us that in prose and verse Walter Scott was and is the master story-teller of the century. He has none of the melancholy and discordant tones that are so often the key-note of contemporary poetry. He is never vague or uncertain; he does not lose himself in voicing half-defined emotions. thoughts are dramatic, all his easily-flowing lines paint inspiring pictures. No one need be educated up to Scott, and he needs no commentator. Every healthy, manly heart responds to his pictures of heroic deeds done in the cause of chivalry and patriotism. No poet lends himself better to illustration.

In the edition of "Marmion" that Messrs. Jas. R. Osgood & Co. have prepared as their holiday book this year there are nearly eighty illustrations from drawings of G. Perkins, F. B. Schell, E. H. Garrett, A. Fredericks, J. J. Harley, A. B. Shute, H. Fenn, A. R. Waud, and F. T. Merrill, and among the engravers are Anthony, Andrews, Tenny, Johnson, and Atwood. The introductions to each canto are framed in ornamental borders, which are tasteful and correct and a feature of the book. These are from the pencil of Mr. L. S. Ipsen, who has no competitor in his special line of art-work. The illustrations cover every subject, and are pervaded by the spirit of the poem. The figure pieces are clear, strong, and effective; the architectural designs, of which there are many, are very impressive, and strongly bring out the feudal background of the story; and the landscapes show the sublimity and lovely beauty of Scotch scenery. The book is printed in large, clear type, upon a broad page, with ample margin; the paper is of the best, the binding is rich and tasteful, and the whole is a good example of fine book-making. "Lucile," "The Lady of the Lake," "The Princess," and "Marmion" have been the holiday books of the Messrs. Osgood & Co. for four successive seasons, and the latest comer is quite up to the high standard of its predecessors, and may safely be pronounced one of the most noteworthy illustrated publications of the year.

We have all made for ourselves imaginary pictures of Lord Marmion, and seen him in every attitude described in the text, and will probably acknowledge that A. Fredericks meets our romantic mind-portraits in the full-page illustration that introduces the hero in the first canto riding across the drawbridge of Norham Castle.

"Along the bridge Lord Marmion rode, Proudly his red-roan charger trode."

ONE Saturday afternoon, in 1818, in Wrexham, a prosperous town of North Wales, there were gathered together in the rectory parlor of Dr. W. Shipley, Dean of St. Asaph, a small band of congenial friends and co-workers, earnestly discussing the programme of a mission meeting to be held at their church on the next day. The young Reginald Heber, then but thirty-five years of age, was among the number. In the midst of the discussion his father-in-law, Dr. Shipley, asked Heber if he would write a hymn for the occasion. Heber at once withdrew to a table in one corner of the room, and while the friends continued the conversation wrote the first three stanzas of the hymn, which he entitled, "Before a Collection Made for the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel," beginning with the lines,

"From Greenland's icy mountains, From India's coral strand."

Rising from his corner he read these verses to the company. "That will do," said the Dean Heber, however, thought it incomplete, and added the fourth sublime stanza. It was the work of a few moments; it was printed on Saturday, and used the next day. The manuscript which was sent to the printer had but a single correction—the substitution of the word "heathen" in place of "savage," in the seventh line of the second stanza.

This, in brief, is the history of the origin of one of the most inspiring missionary hymns in the English language,—the one universal hymn, in fact, that is sung the whole world over, wherever there are Christian hearts to respond to the marching orders of their Master.

And for this reason, we have no doubt that many will be delighted to learn that Messrs. Let. & Shepard have included it in the list of their handsome series of Illustrated Hymns and Poems, that has for the past three years formed one of the most attractive gifts, not only for this, but for all seasons and occasions. As usual, the work has been intrusted to artists who have performed their part in the most conscientious manner, and it is not the least praise to say that the illustrations, from designs by Thomas Guilfoye and Edmund Garrett, seem to have caught the inspiration of the text. The volume is beautifully printed on one side only of rich, heavy paper, and can be had bound in cloth, as well as in the attractive Golden floral binding—flexible covern with floral designs on a background of dull gold, and with silk-fringed borders.

WORDSWORTH'S ODE ON IMMORTALITY.

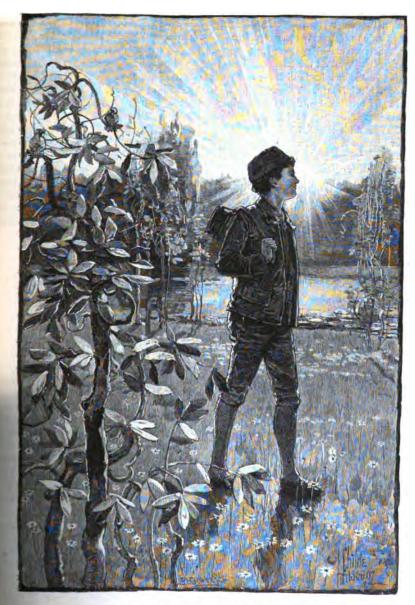

"Our birth is but a sleep and a forgetting: The soul that rises with us, our life's star, Hath had elsewhere its setting, And cometh from afar; Not in entire forgetfulness, And not in utter nakedness, But trailing clouds of glory do we come From God, who is our home; Heaven lies about us in our infancy!

THE great ode of modern poetry is that of Wordsworth, "On the Intimations of Immortality, from recollections of early childhood." It was the masterwork of his life. "No poem of Wordsworth's," says his latest editor, Prof. Wm. Knight, "has more evident traces in its structure at once of inspiration and elaboration; of original flight of thought and afflatus on the one hand, and on the other of careful sculpture and fastidious choice of phrase. It was written "at intervals, between the years 1803 and 1806; and it was subjected to frequent and careful revision." In 1815 Wordsworth finally revised the poem throughout and gave it the present name and its final shape. The ode was worthy of this careful workmanship. It remains the most uplifting of poems upon the great mystery of life and death-life present, pre-existent, and to come-mysterious in its imaginative suggestions, as all deep human thought and emotion on this subject are mysterious.

> Shades of the prison-house begin to close Upon the growing boy, But he beholds the light, and whence it flows. He sees it in his joy : The youth, who daily farther from the East Must travel, still is Nature's Priest, And by the vision splendid, Is on his way attended; At length the man perceives it die away, And fade into the light of common day.'

The outward setting which Messrs. D. Lothrop & Co. give to this gem of the imagination is altogether fitting. Each leading thought of the poem has its illustration, and the two examples we give on this page, of the child, the "father of the man," and the old man who thinks back to his childhood days, suggest the sympathy of the artists with their work. Miss L. B. Humphrey and Mr. W. T. Smedley are respectively the artists of these, Mr. J. Childe Hassam is the artist of the frontispiece, which we give opposite, and among others are Edmund H. Garrett, W. St. John Harper, W. L. Taylor, and F. H. Lungren. But to all lovers of Wordsworth, the most interesting of all the pictures are the two admirable portraits, especially the exquisitely reproduced copy of that by Henry Inman, which Wordsworth himself considered the best likeness of him, and of which the Transactions of the Wordsworth Society, to whose courtesy the publishers are indebted for both, say: "The true man, Wordsworth, as he was, as he lived and moved among the sons of men . . . speaks in the Inman picture. It is a likeness. It is the man, with the far-off-gaze, who wrote the poems."

CHATEAUBRIAND'S "ATALA."

THE intensely practical reading world of to-day has almost forgotten Chateaubriand, the enthusiastic reformer of French literature, the founder of a pure, classic style that sall commands the admiration of the most finished writers. Chateaubriand lived from 1769 to 1848, one of the most stormy periods in the world's history, which, on both continents, witnessed the fierce warfare between despotism and republicanism, and produced the living embedments of both systems-Napoleon I. and George Washington. As the son of a rich noblemas. Chateaubriand enjoyed all the luxuries of the pampered aristocracy of his day. In 1789 he visited his father's possessions in Louisiana, and travelled through the greater part of the civilized portion of the United States. The majestic scenery of the new world, with its virgin forests, vast rivers, and giant mountains, fired the imagination of the young nobleman, accustomed to the arificial scenes of the French capital during the last years of the reign of Louis XVI. It was = America he found his talent, his inspiration, and his muse; he began to voice his emotions, and created for himself a style in harmony with the grand beauty of his surroundings. The myths. legends, and traditions of the inhabitants of the new world he made his study, and he realized the back of every form of faith or religion there lies the idea of an unfathomable First Cause, which in the face of the flagrant scepticism of his day, Chateaubriand boldly called God, advocaing Christianity as His distinctly approved form of worship. "Atala" is the first part of the great work on the "Genius of Christianity," in which the yet unknown author proposed to celebrate the benefits of the Christian religion, and to recall men to their lost faith by poetry spoken to the heart. A letter from Chateaubriand, dated 1800, to the Journal des Débats, explaining why "Ataia" was published before the "Genius of Christianity," of which it forms a part, is reprinted in this edition. A certain portion of that great work was devoted to the poesy of Christianity, subdivided into four books-poetry, fine arts, literature and the harmony of religion with scenes of nature and the passions of the human heart. This department ended with the passionate story of "Atala," written under the very huts of the savages. Chateaubriand, finding some of the proof had been lost, thought it wiser to bring out the story immediately to prevent his romance being appropriated by another before the great work was completed. Chateaubriand gave his "Atala" the most antique form, and divided it into prologue, recital and epilogue. The great moral purpose for which it was written is inculcated in the epilogue. Atala, the savage maiden, born of a Christian mother, who, to expiate her own sins, vows her child to celibacy and a convent, illustrates the successful struggle that can be fought between Christian faith and human passion. The wanderings through the glorious scenery of the New World, where Atala conducts the lover she has rescued from the tortures of her tribe to a safe haven, her growing love for him, his stormy passion for her, the teachings of the Christian religion as taught by the ideal priest, Atala's resolution to take poison to save herself from allowing her lover to do what she believes will injure him, her death, burial, and the wild grief of her lover, were sung to prove the power of Christianity to rule the human heart; and the second part of the work was written to prove its power in ruling nations. The edition of this work that Cassell & Co. have prepared for their chief gift-book this season, is a beautiful setting for this poetic gem. Dore's masterly illustrations are in keeping with the sublime, tempestuous spirit of the great work. The book is large, and only very few of its pictures could be placed within the limits of our page, but the cut produced will serve to show the quality of the work. The excellent translation is by James Spence Harry, and an enthusiastic introduction by Edward J. Harding gives a correct idea of Chateaubriand's masterpiece. The subject was not entirely of Chateaubriand's invention. There had been a savage at the galleys and at the court in the reign of Louis XIV., who had learned languages and returned to his Western land to move the dust of his ancestors to his future home.

best poets, and intertwined with the illustrations in graceful and appropriate lettering, prove her literary culture as true as her artistic skill.

From the opening page, where a happy bird carols to the rising sun the words of Herrick,

"I sing of brooks and blossoms, Birds and bowers; Of April, May, of June, And July flowers;"

in the pretty preface, headed "Mother Nature's Art Gallery," and all through the forty-six full-page scenes of spring, summer, autumn, and winter landscapes, trees, fruits, birds and insects, there breathes a passion for God's glorious creation and the wonders of the living world. All the seasons are made equally beautiful by pencil and song. The cut at the top of this page is from the autumn pictures, and is headed by Lucy Larcom's lines:

"Crickets in the grass I hear, Asters light the fading year."

The little cut below is from the handsome page that opens the winter season. It has pictures of bare snow-laden trees, a branch of holly, little stockings hung on nails, and pussy playing with a ball beside the cosey fireplace we have appropriated, and also T. B. Aldrich's question:

"Don't you think that winter's Pleasanter than all?"

The winter landscape given on the opposite page shows to more advantage on the large surface on which it appears in the "Sketch-Book," with its dainty surroundings of snowdrops and the pretty type which asks, "Hast thou entered into the treasures of the snow?"

The size of our page would not admit of our selecting some pictures that might perhaps have done more justice to the beautiful holiday-book which the Messrs. Lee & Shepard have provided at immense cost to take its place among the most artistic productions of the year. The "Sketch-Book" is a large oblong volume, and is bound in cloth and full turkey morocco.

THE TREASURES OF THE SNOW.

CASSELL'S MAGAZINE OF ART FOR 1884.

"ART is long and time is fleeting" sang the most artistic of our American poets, and seldom have we realized the rhythmic truth more regretfully than in our necessarily hurried glasse through the six hundred pages that make up the bound volume of "Cassell's Magazine of Ast for 1884." Year by year when the twelve numbers of the Art Magazine are laid upon our table in their festive Christmas dress of rich, russet cloth with appropriate black and gilt stampings, incinding the old legend vita brevis, ars longa, we wonder anew at the imposing treasure-house of art that has been filled during one short twelvemonth. This year the abundance and high quality of the illustrations are specially noticeable. Sixty-four full-page pictures give an excellent idea of the paintings they represent, some of which are among the best-known in our modern art galleries, or among the treasures of our most celebrated collectors. In this volume, the collection of Mr. Constantine Ionides, probably the richest in the world in modern masterpieces, is treated in a series of articles devoted respectively to the realistic school as exemplified in Degas and Régamey, we idealists like Corot and to old masters like Goyen and Ruysdael. Such papers must be of great use and interest to all students of painting.

But even dilettanti and the untrained lover of the beautiful are thought of in the general provision made by the Magazine for its steadily increasing patronage, and the most casing hunter of bric-à-brac and the most confirmed admirer of home-made fancy work will find some thing in its pages congenial to his tastes. Wide as the scope of the Magazine has ground every branch of its plan is exhaustively treated, and the terse descriptive text, of exceptional literary merit, explains the reasons for admitting each work of art and its peculiar chancing istics, in a manner to be understood even by those whose "tastes have not been etherallication or their perceptions exalted" by constant intercourse with the "trustees of beauty." The page by Robert Louis Stevenson on "Fontainebleau" and "A penny plain and twopence coloral," and that by Mr. Andrew Lang on "Elzevirs," combine the literary and artistic qualities in perfectly harmonious measure.

The steady progress made in the various processes of reproduction is forcibly brought has to us this year, and the great value of the newer styles of illustration that enable us to me our lighter literature so beautiful, and our scientific text-books so useful and accurate, is t patent to all. The constant improvement in the art of wood-engraving is especially interest to Americans, as the talent and ingenuity that have forwarded its progress have been so large the outcome of American enterprise. The monthly summaries of American art are bound at a supplement in this volume, and form a valuable part of the handsome book. The cut on the opposite page shows "The Old Canal at Dortrecht," reproduced from a painting by Frank Myers Boggs in the Salon of 1884. Among the modern artists whose work is given in the larger plates are Burne-Jones, Boughton, Orchardson, Hunter, Langley, Millet, Gericault, Delacroix, Menzel, Mücke, Kauffman, Verestchagin and others, and American artists also are well represented. The frontispiece to the volume is that charming etching by Macbeth of "Lady Bountiful," for which he also furnished the design, and to which Austin Dobson has written four of his easy, pretty verses on page 14 of the book under notice. If friends of artists tastes are to be made happy in their own way this Magazine of Art is just what they would wish for; or, if they prefer future pleasures, a subscription to the new volume will give them artists treats from month to month throughout the coming year, and when the next bound volume comes to us for appreciation, they will be able to judge how we are obliged to do very inadequate justice to its beautiful contents.

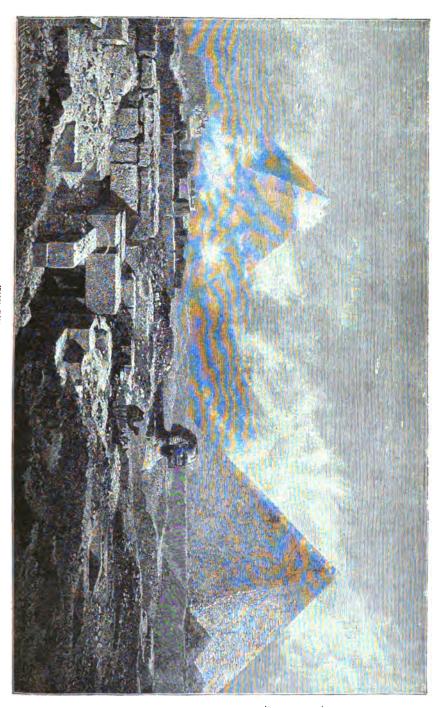

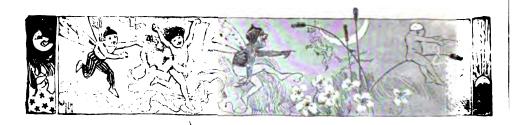

HERODOTUS FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

Convinced by the success of "Plutarch for Boys and Girls" that the young can be made to enjoy ancient classic literature, G. P. Putnam's Sons go even further into antiquity for their Christmas book this season, and have prepared a holiday edition of "Herodotus," the world's first great historian, who, nearly five hundred years before Christ, wrote the words that have now been again translated, edited, and made fascinating to young imaginations by the same clever hand that moulded 'Plutarch' to its purpose. Dr. White has followed his former plan. and allowed Herodotus to tell his story in his own words as closely as the English idiom can reproduce the spirit and flow of the Greek; and he has omitted only such passages as are indelicate to modern ears, or as might appear to the young reader redundant and unnecessary to the main idea of the story. The purpose of Herodotus in his history is to describe the war between the Greeks and Persians—the struggle for supremacy between Europe and Asia, between civilization and barbarism, between freedom and despotism. He indicates that the struggle between these nations was not the result of any accidental quarrel, but of a deep-rooted difference of character, which he traces back to the mythical ages. Specially favored in his birth, parentage, and abundant means, Herodotus traveiled through all the lands he describes, and made the personal acquaintance of aimost every character of note in his time and generation. His history has been translated into every known tongue, and every writer of note has conceded that he wrote Greek prose as no other writer before or after him. The present edition of Herodotus is brought out uniform with the Plutarch in a large quarto, containing fifty illustrations of the beautiful scenery, works of art, ancient Egyptian monuments, implements of battle, wellknown paintings and groups of statuary, heroes in coats of mail, and many spirited cuts of all kinds, chosen with great care and much literary and artistic discrimination. Dr. White in his preface acknowledges his indebtedness to Rawlinson, Dahlmann, Cary, Wheeler, and other students, analysts, and translators of Herodotus, whose works have been freely used in his arduous undertaking. At the back of the book is a very excellent and useful synchronistic table of the principal events in Herodotus, on facing pages-one devoted to the Greeks, the other to the barbarians. Herodotus describes so in detail that the table of weights, measures, and money will also prove useful in conveying accurate ideas to the minds of young readers. The book is bound in handsome colored cloth, with black design and appropriate gilt ornamentation. Let boys or girls begin the reading of this book, and they will acquire a knowledge of one of the most famous periods of the world's history, and unconsciously be taught a poetic conception of life past and present, and a genial love of their fellow-man, and also be inspired to read historical works and learn what others have discovered about the great wars that are made real in the vivid pages of Herodotus.

"WIDE AWAKE."

UNG people will find between the covers of "Wide Awake," Vol. R., much of the most enjoyable and helpful literature that has been written for youth the last year. It contains, complete. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps's latest work, "A Brave Girl," a story in which she proffers both good sense and sympathy to the young women now emerging from our seminaries and colleges; and Mrs. Mulock Craik's "Facing the World," a story equally stimulating and sensible for the boys. While recreation and "jolly good times" always have been amply provided for in its pages. "Wide Awake" has been remarkable from the outset for the stimulus of its leading stories; significant incidents of real life and historical incidents of the most heroic and inspiring character have been wrought into its monthly literature, along with the purest and gayest and sweetest dreams and fancies of youth:

and, as a consequence, the writers who have the good and pleasure of children and young people most genuinely at heart naturally seek the pages of this magazine to "say their say."

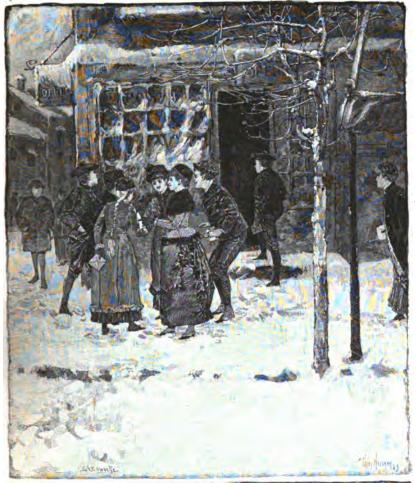

The original intention of the magazine is emphasized in the arrangements announced for 1885. Charles Egbert Craddock, E. S. Brooks, Mrs. Champney, H. H. (Helen Jackson), and Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney will contribute the serial stories. There will be a group of four true Western stories, a group of four true New England stories, and a group of four true Virginia stories; a daughter of Charles Kingsley will give a "Westminster Abbey Series;" a son of a Chinese Mandarin a series entitled "When I was a Boy in China;" Mrs. Jessie Burton Fremont a series, "Souvenirs of my Time;" Edward Everett Hale a series on "Boys' Heroes;" Prof. Palmer, of Michigan University, a "Scientific Temperance Series." The plan also includes a royal Christmas issue, with a frontispiece in colors, reproduced by Louis Prang & Co. from a water-color by Lungren; also two notable pictorial articles—"Child-life in Venice," with drawings by Joseph Pennell, and "Wonderful Christmases of Old," with historic drawings by Lungren; and prominent among serial attractions are to be twelve full-page drawings by the last-named artist, entitled "Heroines of the Poets:" Chaucer's "Griselda," Spenser's "Una," Herrick's "Corinna," Scott's "Ellen," Burns's "Highland Mary," Browning's "Balaustion," etc.

Volume R., as a gift-book for this Christmas, amply fulfils the promises made last year. One of its pretty pictures is given opposite, and the design of the "Christmas Waits" on our opening page is from the same treasure-house.

The Boliday Gift-Books.

The preceding pages describe and illustrate in detail several of the most notable of the bolday books. The following is a more complete descriptive summary, covering the general field and noting the new books and some of the old standards of the several publishers, arranged to their alphabetical order. To them we are indebted for the many illustrations which adorn these pages and suggest more fully the books of the year.

THE AMERICAN SUNDAY-SCHOOL UNION calls attention to the fact that they have reduced the price of Schaff's "Dictionary of the Bible," and that the work has been considerably revised and enlarged, embracing the latest results of Eastern exploration and Oriental scholarship. It is just the present for a Sunday-school teacher, a pastor, or a favorite Sunday-school scholar. It covers a large field in the way of solid information, and is an indispensable adjunct to Bible study. They have also new editions of "Leaves from the Tree of Life," a little book of Bible texts, and of their "Views of Heaven."

THE AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY have, in their Floral Gem Series, a collection of little holiday gift-books that are very appropriate as presents in churches and Sunday-schools. The dainty volumes that compose it are "Royal Promises," "Royal Words of Grace," and "The Voice of Thanksgiving." They are collections of Scripture texts and hymns printed in colors, put up in appropriate shapes, with original covers printed in six colors and gold, and are sold in neat boxes. In addition to these new lines, their stock of standard religious books offers many attractions for almost every season.

D. APPLETON & Co. have an attractive artbook this year in "English Art in 1884," a sumptuous quarto, containing nearly four hundred sketches, many by the artists themselves, and fourteen photogravure plates of pictures in the Royal Academy, Grosvenor Gallery, Royal Society of Painters in Water-Colors, Royal Institute of Painters in Oils and Water-Colors, etc., in 1884, with descriptive text by Henry Blackburn. In addition to the above, they call attention to their handsome gift-books of former years, such as "Fifty Perfect Poems," selected and edited by C. A. Dana and Rossier Johnson; "Fair Words about Fair Women selected by O. B. Bunce; "The Bryant Birthday-Book," and others. The series of Application of the Books, now put up in three volumes, make an appropriate holiday gift for either set of artistic tastes.

A. C. Armstrong & Son offer an acceptable Christmas gift in their complete illustrated edition of "Poe's Works," in six large twelvemo volumes, which include Poe's criticisms, known to comparatively few of the present generation. an able introduction and ample memoir by R. H Stoddard, and the well-known articles 02 Poe by Lowell and N. P. Willis. The illustrations consist of a new portrait on steel, the latest taken from life, etchings from original designs by Gifford, Church, Platt, Pennell, Vandenhoff, and others, fac-similes and autographs.

The text is printed from new plates in large type, double-leaded, on paper made specially for this edition. They have also ready the third volume in their "History of Ancient Art." by George Perot and Charles Chipiez, which deals with the "History of Art in Phoenicia. Cyprus, and Asia Minor." The present work is in two volumes, has five hundred illustrations. many full-page and some colored, and is handsomely bound in cloth and in half levant. The value of this great work becomes more and more important, and it may safely rank as one of the most useful contributions of modern times to the literature of art and archæology. A limited number of the former volumes of "Art in Ancient Egypt" and "Art in Chaldea and Assyria" are still on hand. An appropriate present for a book-collector may be found in "The Biblia Pauperum," containing thingeight full-page engravings, illustrating the life, parables, and miracles of Jesus Christ, with descriptions extracted from the original text of John Wycliffe, with preface by the late Dean Stanley. Each page is embellished by borders and ornaments that are exact fac-similes of a work in Lambeth Palace library. The quaint, curious engravings dated 1540, used to illustrate this work, were purchased seventy years ago at Nuremberg. They represent seventy-eight subjects. The artist's mark upon them is

It contains quotations from several of his unpublished letters in various hands, and all his miscellaneous writings that he had himself selected for preservation.

J. W. BOUTON'S superb illustrated edition of Laurence Sterne's masterpiece, "A Sentimental Journey," is almost perfect in its artistic and mechanical features. It is a book "for all time," and not a mere ephemeral publication issued for the season, equipped with the gaudy attractions not known to any bibliographer. The paper for the work was hand-made in Holland to imitate that made in the 15th century. The binding is in accordance with the style of that period, the design being modelled upon that of an early book in the British Museum, and is a perfect representation, in smaller size, of a book that may have served the people in place of our present Bible. It is bound in white parchment with clasps. Charles Lamb's "Poems, Plays, and Miscellaneous Essays," with introduction and notes by Alfred Ainger, will make a pleasing gift for many of the lovers of that genial writer.

which appeal to the eyes and ears of the "groundlings." The book, ever a popular one in France, has had the rare compliment paid it of being illustrated by a French artist. M. Maurice Leloir furnishes plates, vignettes, headand tail-pieces, and initial letters. They are all very charming, reproducing perfectly the spirit of the narrative and the picturesque costumes of a hundred years ago. The twelve full-page plates and a portrait of Sterne are reproduced from the original sketches by the photogravure process of Messrs. Goupil & Co., and printed in tints. The smaller sketches scattered throughout the work are fine wood-en-The paper, the fine open page, the grace of the arrangement, and the artistic claims of this work place it among the finest illustrated books of the season. In a somewhat different line of art, but still artistic, is Karl Marie Seyppel's "He, She, It," (Er, Sie, Es.) This clever burlesque of a long-buried Egyptian manuscript is unique, both in text and appearance. Its time-worn, stained pages, its odd and mirthful drawings, its witty narrative, with its many covert allusions to modern political and social life, have made it the sensation of the day. Every one wants to read it and possess it. Whether it be to "our sisters, our cousins, or our aunts" that we present it, we may be certain of success as a giver of gifts. The new illustrated library edition of "Don Quixthat this house is publishing is now completed and offered in four elegant octavo The translation is by P. A. Matéaux, and the illustrations, which consist of thirtyseven original etchings, are by Adolphe Lalauze. The work fills a want for a fine library edition of this classic, and should meet with very generous appreciation. Mr. Bouton has also received a fresh supply of Adrien Marie's very lovely work, "Une Journée D'Enfant," (A Day in the Life of a Child,) which came almost too late last year to be made generally known.

IRA BRADLEY & Co. offer an attractive Redline edition of the British Poets, comprising Tennyson, (complete,) Shakespeare, Byron, Scott, Moore, Burns, Shelley, Goldsmith, Milton, Wordsworth, Hemans, Pope, Keats, and Campbell. The volumes are neatly bound.

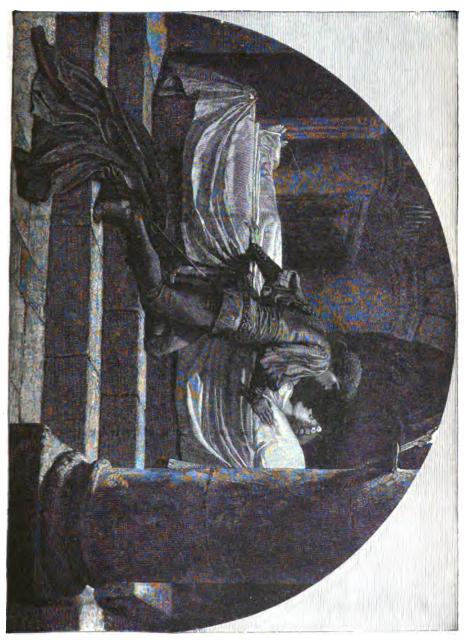

ROBERT CARTER & BROS. call attention to their new edition of "Henry's Commentary on the Bible," in three quarto volumes, at $10. They have this standard work now in three different styles, to suit the pockets of all purchasers. They have also a new and handsome edition of the "Life and Works of Thomas Guthrie, D.D.," in eleven volumes; a new treatise on "The Epistle to the Hebrews," by Rev. Dr. Samuel T. Lowrie; and a little devotional volume, by Miss Anna B. Warner, entitled "The Shoes of Peace."

CASSELL & Co. have a valuable holiday giftbook for people of means and literary and artistic culture in their édition de luxe of "Romeo and Juliet." The passionate words of the ideal Italian lovers are tastefully printed, and the happy and tragic scenes of their short and fateful courtship are portrayed in twelve superb photogravures, from original drawings by Frank Dicksee, expressly executed for this work, and reproduced in the highest style of the art by Messrs. Goupil and Co., of Paris. A series of original ornamental drawings, to serve as headings and initials and tail-pieces, has also been added, and each drawing may be pronounced an exquisite little work of art. The highest typographical and artistic skill has been displayed in the preparation of Chateaubriand's "Atala," a full description of which will be found on one of our front pages. The "Cathedral Churches of England and Wales" describes these world-renowned edifices historically and pictorially. It is edited by the Rev. Prof. Bonney, and has upward of one hundred and fifty illustrations. The binding is extra cloth, full gilt. Lovers of Dickens will be delighted with "Character Sketches from Dickens," containing sixplates, from the original drawings by Frederick Barnard. reproduced in photogravure by Goupil & Co. in such softness of finish that they might easily be mistaken for the finest etchings. This new series pictures the two Wellers, Mr. Pecksnit. Little Nell and her grandfather, Rogue Riderhood, Caleb Plummer and his blind daughter, and dear, faithful, heartbroken Mr. Peggotty on his travels through the wide, wide world in search of "Little Emily." Four volumes are also ready in the Artists' Librar;, a new series designed to furnish art students, designers and manufacturers valuable handbooks on the history and practical application of their art. The works are all by we ... known specialists, and are issued under the patronage of the Administration of Fine Arts at Paris. They are translated by competent authorities and edited by Mr. John Sparkes, Principal of the South Kensington Art School. All the wilumes are profusely illustrated, and those now ready are entitled "Anatomy for Artists," "The Dutch School of Painting," "The Flemish School of Painting," and "The English School of of Painting," and "The English School of Painting." In this department of art publications we briefly call attention to the seventh volume of the Magazine of Art, the beauties of which are detailed on one of our front pages. A very exhaustive work is the "Illustrated History of Music," by Dr. Emil Naumann, Director of Music at the Royal Chapel, Dresden. which is translated by Ferdinand Praeger, revised and edited by Sir F. A. Gen. Ouseley, Professor of Music in the University of Oxford. It is complete in one volume, and contains, among other interesting illustrations, numerous portraits, and fac-similes of MSS. scores. Besides these new publications, new editions of beautiful gift-books of former years are ready for the gift-season. We briefly mention "Some Modern Artists and Their Work," with portraits and examples of the work of Leighton, Gilbert, Boughton, Cole, Boehm, Alma Tadema, Rosa Bonheur, and many others, edited by Wilfrid Meynell; "Sunlight and Shade"—their successful gift-book of last year--a collection of poems and pictures of life and nature, illustrated by all the best-known artists of the day; "The Forg-ing of the Anchor," and many other well-known favorites.

S. E. Cassino & Co. have a charming little souvenir, entitled "Beacon Lights for God's Mariners," a selection of edifying texts from the Scriptures and the poets, compiled by Elizabeth N. Little, author of the "Pansy Text-book." The volume is exquisitely printed; the illustrations, which were designed by the compiler, are printed in colors and monotints, and the cover, in silver, with an artistic and appropriate stamp, is tied with a silken cord. For the student of ornithology and the lover of birds they have a rare treat in "Our Birds in their Haunts—a popular treatise on the birds of eastern North America," by Rev. J. Hibbert Langille, who describes in the most charming manner his personal experiences and recollections of bird-life. They also call attention to various other works which will recommend themselves as presents to students of natural history.

THE CENTURY COMPANY have an attractive gift-book in "Sport with Gun and Rod in American Woods and Waters," edited by Alfred M. Mayer. The volume covers the ground in the matter of game from the Gulf of Mexico to the Arctic Circle, and from the Atlantic Coast to the mountains of Sierra Nevada. There is even a little archæology in the volume, as far as relates to the hunting and fishing of primitive man, which gives a philosophical savor to the book. As to illustrations, the work is handsomely and lavishly furnished. Some of the cuts are printed on Japan paper, and have all the delicacy and accuracy of proofs. The binding is unique and artistic. In their "Imperial Dictionary," though not a new book in the strict sense of the word, they have a gift that will be sure to be appreciated by whomsoever received.

JOHN CHURCH & Co. have an excellent stock of choice Christmas music, consisting of carols, cantatas, services, anthems, solos, etc. Their "Christmas Carols for 1834" contain unusually fine contributions by such well-known writers as George F. Root, J. R. Murray, W. F. Sherwin, H. P. Danks, T. P. Westendorf, and John R. Sweney, together with a beautiful Christmas service, with questions and responses, prepared by Miss Netta A. Wellman, the whole furnishing ample material for a complete Christmas entertainment. The success of these carols is assured by the popularity of those of former years, of which the small number on hand are now selling at reduced prices. A merry Christmas cantata, "Catching Kriss Kringle," has been revised and enlarged by additions suggested by many of its admirers. It is meant to be sung at Sundayschool festivals, and is easy of preparation, and very pleasing. Somewhat more difficult pro-ductions, but equally pretty, are "Under the Palms," an oratorio cantata, and "The Choicest Gift," a Scripture cantata, not specially designed for Christmas, but capable of being used to good effect on that as well as other festive seasons. Friends of musical taste can be made happy by F. Hiller's memoir of "Mendelssohn;" "The Great Tone Poets," by F. Crowest; and Karasowski's "Chopin, His Life and Letters." A subscription to The Musical Visitor would also be a suitable Christmas gift to musicians.

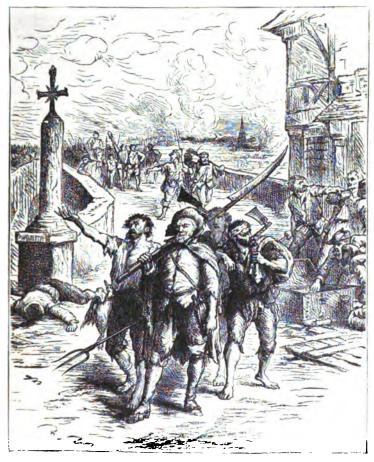

T. Y. CROWELL & Co. have a superb holiday edition of "George Eliot's Poems." It contains sixteen full-page illustrations drawn expressly for this work by Taylor. Schell, St. John Harper, and others, engraved by George T. Andrew. George Eliot's poetry possesses a distinctive charm and interest, and deserves to be read and studied by all admirers of her genius as affording an intimate insight into the working of her mind. And we could think of no more attractive medium than this edition, which artist, engraver, printer, and publisher have exerted themselves to render as perfect as possible The general style of the book is similar to that of the "Cambridge Book of Poetry and Song. which still ranks among the attractions of the holiday gifts. Among the new-comers in their favorite illustrated edition of Popular Poems are "Burns," "Byron," "Dante," "Goldsmith," "Lalla Rookh," "Lay of the Last Minstrel," "Marmion," "Moore," "Scott," and "Swin-Marmion," "Moore," "Scott," and "Swin-Marmion," "Moore," "Scott," and "Swin-Marmion," "Moore," "Scott," and "Swin-Marmion," "The statement of the statement o burne." Their equally popular edition of Red-line Poets has received additions of the "Lav of the Last Minstrel," "Miss Muloch's Poems,"

"Red Letter Poems," "Surf and Wave," "Irish Melodies," "Marmion," "Rossetti's Poems," and "Swinburne's Poems." Both the Popular and Red-line favorites can be had this season in alligator leather bindings, that give them a festal, substantial appearance, and make them a very handsome present to all fortunate enough to receive them. Many a friend of the literature of a generation ago will be made happy by a gift of the carefully-selected passages from Dickens and Thackeray, brought out in pretty cloth bindings under the titles "Chips from Dickens" and "Chips from Thackerav." A neat edition of "Walton's Complete Angler" will also prove acceptable.

CUPPLES, UPHAM & Co. have a gift-book that will furnish amusement for evening gatherings and rainy days in their "Sibylline Leaves." It is supposed to contain the omens of fate, expressed in poems by a well-known Boston littérateur, who combines with his poetic talent and Rev. E. G. Porter's "Rambles in Old Boston;" literary friends will be glad to receive Turgenet's "Annouchka" and "The Art of Fiction," discussed so competently by Besant and James, two writers who follow wholly different methods; and musical enthusiasts will eagerly peruse "Mortals in Fairy Realm," in which Miss Clara Wells has performed the original task of translating into verse the first three sonatas of Beethoven. Uniform with their Longfellow and Whittier birthday-books they will have "Star Drift's Birthday-Book," a miscellaneous collection of general favorites.

DE WOLFE, FISKE & Co. offer a neat and inexpensive present in their twelvemo edition of the "Standard Poets," comprising the works of Burns, Byron, Chaucer. Dante, Goethe, Schiller, Ingelow, Keats, Owen Meredith, Milton, Moore, Poe, Procter, Scott, Shelley, and Shakespeare. The volumes are illustrated and attractively bound, that of an expert chess-player, and has also spent much time in the study of psychological phenomena. The poems are read in answer to questions put by the company, and tell the fortunes and fate of the questioners. Lovers of description will welcome Byer's "Switzerland" DODD, MEAD & Co. offer as their chief holiday publication a new volume similar to their very successful "Group of Etchers" and "Score of Etchings," entitled "French Etchers," which illustrates the French school, as the former volumes gave representations chiefly of the English school. It embraces specimens by Daubigny, Corot, Jacquemart, Martial, Áppian, Gravesande, Cazanova, Lançon, Le Page, Chauvel, Veyrasset, Ballin, and others that are beautifully brought out with the best finish of the art publications for which this house is justly for any one seeking really good books for some favored one are their popular editions of "Pepys's Diary" (ten volumes), uniform in general style with the Eversley Kingsley, and of the "Poetical Works of Mrs. Browning," literary treasures which are now put within the reach of many whose lack of means debarred them from investing in the éditions de luxe, from the plates of which these more modest issues are printed. Lovers of fine art will be pleased to learn that the second volume of Woltmann's and Woermann's "History of Painting," which finishes the work, is ready and brings its great subject down to the present day. This house also calls attention to an edition of Charles Bigot's "Raphael and the Villa Farnesina," limited to one hundred and fifty copies, each of which is signed and numbered. The translation is by Mary Healy. The work is illustrated with fifteen engravings by Tiburce de Marc of Raphael's best-known masterpieces. The ever-popular E. P. Roe's long-expected novel "A Young Girl's Wooing" will be a most suitable gift to any friend known to care for his healthy, interesting romances. In general literature their line of new books, as well as their older publications, is large and varied enough to cater to the tastes of almost everybody.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. offer as their chief gift-book "Violet among the Lilles," by L. Clark-son. The former works of this author, "Indian Summer" and "Heartsease," will be recalled as among the handsomest books of the kind published. The present volume is called the sequel to "Violet with Eyes of Blue" and "The Gathering of the Lilies," similar publications, and is fully equal in artistic merit to any of its predecessors. Nine quarto plates are devoted to graceful representations of lilies and violets colored after nature, the whole being enclosed in a richly tinted cloth cover, with sprays of lilies in silver and black. In fringed books, "Sweet By-and-By," "Songs of Christmas," by Frances Ridley Havergal, "Hark! the Herald Angels Sing," by the Rev. Charles Wesley, are new additions to their handsome line in this popular style of binding. are all fully illustrated, and were engraved and printed under the supervision of George T. Andrew. They have placed upon their catalogue this season "The Horkey," by Robert Bloomfield, with George Cruikshank's designs illustrating this quaint ballad of a Suffolk harvest-home festival, which are wonderfully clever and full of a jolly humor. Several devotional books, daintily printed in colors, with cloth covers, appropriately stamped, have been issued, among which we mention "Bible Lilies," selections from Scripture for morning and evening; "Daisies from the Psalms;" Havergal's "Forget-Me-Nots," gotten up uniform with the "Bible Forget-Me-Nots" published last year; and their little collections of verses for every day in the year, bearing the titles "Faith," "Hope," and "Charity," brought out in handsome covers, stamped respectively with the symbols of their contents, the cross, the anchor and the heart.

ESTES & LAURIAT'S most important holiday book is a superb edition of Moore's "Lalla Rookh," gotten up in a style similar in text and coloring to the celebrated French books "The Fan" and "The Umbrella;" the illustrations are photogravures, nearly two hundred in number—delicately tinted in varied colors—woven in throughout the text. Of "Modern Ger-man Masters" and "Recent German Art," both by Frederick H. Allen, only a limited edition is offered. These are no doubt among the choicest and most artistic works of the season. The illustrations in each are photogravures, and represent some of the finest examples of the German art of to-day; they are, besides, embellished with many portraits of German artists, wood-cuts, photo-engravings, etc. "The Ivy Green," by Charles Dickens, and "The Last Rose of Summer" are two pretty, silk-fringed, flower-decorated holiday souvenirs at moderate prices. Mr. Hezekiah Butterworth has brought together in one handsome volume a very interesting and appropriate collection of verses from the most celebrated authors, under the title " Poems for Christmas, Easter, and New Year. It is richly illustrated and makes a most timely present. In the way of novelties we would call attention to their "Cupid's Calendar" and "The Garden of the Heart," two heart-shaped souvenirs, being leaflets, mounted, the one on a golden arrow, and the other on a gilt rod, with silken cords and tassels for hanging on the The first is a collection of love poems edited by Kate Sanborn, the second is a selection of religious poetry. They are both printed in colors. "Great Events of the World," by R. Warren Brown, in spite of its serious title, is a gift-book, and is sent out in holiday style. It is a collection of full-page pictures, poems by great poets, and prose descriptions of "great events of the world." Combining, as it does, information and entertainment that may be absorbed without much labor, it forms a most desirable work for the centre-table. Alexander Young's "Concise History of the Netherlands" is recommended to the purveyors of serious literature and to collectors of libraries. It covers the ground gone over by Motley, and brings the narrative down to the present date. Mr. Young has studied original authorities very extensively in writing his history, and claims to present much new information of the incidents and actors of this period.

Fords, Howard & Hulbert have no new gifts-books in the restricted sense of the word this year, but consider some of their late volumes of sufficient interest to make them desirable books as presents to a great many. For instance, for an admirer of the "manly art of self-defence," Major Ben. C. Truman's new book. "The Field of Honor," would prove a most interesting volume, giving as it does a complete and comprehensive history of duelling in all countries. To the more peaceably inclined there could be no more attractive volume than "Comforting Thoughts," comprising passages selected from the sermons and prayers of Henry Ward Beecher, bearing comfort and consolation in adversity, sickness, sorrow, and bereavement. Their "Library of Poetry and Song," edited by William Cullen Bryant, is also underlined as "never growing old."

THE FOWLER & WELLS Co. have no publication that may be called a holiday book in the accepted meaning of that distinctive term. They Funk & Wagnalls' clever poetical satire on New York society, "The Buntling Ball," promises to be a great success. Though published anonymously, it is said, on good authority, to be the work of one of the best known of present literary writers. It is well conceived and well carried out, the capital il'ustrations by C. D. Weldon interpreting the humor of the text, and entering thoroughly into the spirit of the poem. Edward Everett Hale has written a new series of stories as a companion volume to "Christmas in a Palace." He calls it "A Narragansett Christmas." Its characters represent a party gathered at this old New England town for the Christmas festivities. They tell each other stories, which are all particularly delightful reading. This house also calls attention, among its "holiday publications," to the "Hoyt-Ward Cyclopædia of Quotations' and to Alfred Ayres's latest "hit," "The Mentor." The first would be an invaluable addition to any library unfortunate enough to be without it, and the latter, giving as it does all the rules for behavior in the best society, should be in the hands of in the best society, should be in the hands of in the best society should be in the land wishing to appear to the very best advantage.

E. J. Hale & Son have a pretty gift-book in the charming love-poem of "Katie," in which Henry Timrod tells in his delicate, passionate verse, how a Southern lover won his English bride, and how he wooed her amidst the pretty scenery of England and America. The work is issued in small quarto, printed on one side of the paper only, and has many full-page illustrations and vignettes. It is bound in cloth and is also brought out in the fringed "golden floral" style that has held its own so many holiday seasons as a favorite gift-book binding.

HARPER & BROTHERS have two books, which fairly rival each other for the favor of the public -"Nature's Serial Story," by Rev. E. P. Roe, which has been the leading serial feature of Harper's Magazine for the past year, and in its final shape will delight the many thousands of American readers who form his constituency. There is no American writer of fiction whose works have such ready and wide sale, and in this volume he has done his best to combine with his story-telling, always of wholesome moral purpose, his great and sympathetic knowledge of nature in the varying seasons and moods of the American year. His story pictures the family life of a country home among the West Point Highlands, Mr. Roe's own locality, weaving into each chapter and with the varying incidents of the human life portrayed, the incidents of mature's serial, from Christmas-tide till Christmas comes again. Beginning and ending thus with the Christmas season, this is peculiarly a seasonable book. The copious and most beautiful illustrations of nature, in which Mr. W. H. Gibson has reached the highest level he has yet a:tained—especially in the striking illustration of "The Last Load," suggesting the power of Rousseau-are supplemented by Mr. Frederick Dielman's charming pictures of the people of the story, and it is not often that a book is so thoroughly and completely excellent. Its nval is "Sketching Rambles in Holland," elsewhere described at length, in which Mr. Boughton describes with his pen, and both Mr. Boughton and Mr. Abbey illustrate with their pencils, the quaint and picturesque features of this grandmother-land of Americans. Another book fitting for holiday purchase is the new edition of Tennyson's complete works, extended to include all his uncollected poems omitted from his own editions or issued since. It is fully illustrated. richly bound, and has as a preface Miss Thackeray's charming study of the poet. Messrs. Harper also offer in their holiday catalogue editions of their admirable holiday books of previous years—Doré's "Raven," Abbey's "Herrick. Gibson's previous volumes, etc. Their lines of standards are too well known to need praise or reminder.

H. L. Hastings offers for the holiday season a "Hastings' Birthday Book," a selection from the many writings of the editor of This Christian, by J. H. Tewksbury. The book is handsomely printed and neatly bound, and contains a portrait of Mr. Hastings. He also announces a few other books of a religious nature that may prove suitable for holiday presents. Among these are "Consecration," a devotional book, by H. L. Hastings, and the Rev. W. K. Tweedie's works, comprising, "A Lamp to the

HENRY HOLT & Co. have prepared some choice Christmas gift books this year that appeal to distinct literary and artistic tastes. Lady Brassey's "In the Trades, Tropics, and Roaring Forties" is a graphically written and profusely illustrated description of the beauties, dangers, and delights of travel in trade winds and in the tropical lands that lie on either side of the equator between the 40th parallels of north and south latitude, printed on fine paper, and issued in a rich and appropriate binding. The fine selection of "Representative German Poems—Ballad and Lyric," edited by Karl Knortz, will be issued in the manner of the favorite Baskerville collection, with the English translation, by known poets, facing the German original page for page. The compiler is a well-known German poet, and his sympathetic feeling for the beautiful and knowledge of the vast treasure-house of German verse have made his selections representative and satisfying. A want for a A want for a handy, readable Shakespeare, not too fine for human nature's daily food, and in type not calculated to destroy vision in a given time, is met by this house in the sixteenmo edition, in seven volumes, with Dicey's text, the notes reedited, and Dicey's glossary, also re-edited, added to the contents of each separate volume. It will also include a life of the author. These volumes will be in neat, durable cloth bindings, and later on may also be issued in the well-known Leisure Hour dress, enabling the fortunate possessors of that series to add a complete Shakespeare to their already well-filled shelves at a most reasonable price.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. offer, as their leading holiday volume, a sumptuous edition of the Rubaiyát of Omar Khayyám, accompanied with fifty-six full-page illustrations by Elihu Vedder. It is difficult to give one who has not seen these designs any adequate idea of their power, dignity, grace, and suggestiveness. The whole conception of them is grand, and the elevation of purpose and the force of masterly execution are maintained throughout the entire series in a remarkable degree. are not strictly illustrations of the poem, but they are interpretative. They do not reproduce any particular scenes in the book, but give hints and suggestions of the deep meanings which the poem contains. The printing and binding of the work match the excellence of the illustrations, and the whole offers one of the most remarkable works of art which this country has produced. "Illustrated Poems of Oliver Wendell Holmes" is a holiday volume of great attractiveness. The poems were chosen by the author himself, and most of them are favorites with the admirers of Dr. Holmes—"The Chambered Nautilus," "The Wonderful One-Hoss Shay," etc. The illustrations are very much better than any that have ever been made for Dr. Holmes's poems heretofore. Special attention is called to this handsome book in our front No mention of the suitable presents for the holidays provided by this house would be complete without special reference to the standard editions of standard authors with which their name is identified, among which the Riverside editions of Shakespeare, Hawthorne and Emerson, and the Wayside edition of Hawthorne take the lead for richness and substantiality. The latter edition of Hawthorne contains all the matter included in the Riverside edition with portraits and etchings; but while the Riverside has twelve volumes, the Wayside has twenty-four, and is sold only in sets in cloth or half-calf bindings.

LEE & SHEPARD have always holiday books for all tastes, and this year have provided some quite unique parlor books that are sure of pleasing the gentler sex. For a lover of flowers, and one who can appreciate beauty of design, color, etc., a copy of the magnificent work on "Orchids," the royal family of plants, will meet with en-thusiastic favor. Harriet Stewart Miner has made the twenty-four illustrations (10 x 14 inches) which it contains, from nature, in colors. A particularly attractive gift for a lady friend is "One Year's Sketch Book," a series of illustrations of the scenes and flowers of spring, summer, autumn, and winter, drawn by Irene E. Jerome, and comprising forty-six original designs (91 x 14 inches), engraved perfectly by John Andrew & Son. The unique table book, "The Guest Book." will afford a novel pleasure to the owner and her friends. It is invented and illustrated by Miss Annie F. Cox, and is designed to chronicle who came to call, what they did and said, and any specially pleasant incident that marked the visit. For the one that is "nearer and dearer," "My Lady's Casket of Flowers and Jewels for her Adornment," with original designs printed in colors by Eleanor W. Talbot, will convey many pretty thoughts in a prettily delicate manner. For the happy mother of a most wonderful baby, "Baby's Kingdom" will provide a fair excuse for writing down all the funny, cunning, and peculiar idiosyncrasies of the "brightest child ever heard of," which may serve as warning not to do likewise to the baby, when grown into a loving mamma in future days. For those of quiet, religious tastes they have "The Mountain Anthem," in which Prof. Wm. C. Richards has rendered the "beatitudes" in pleasing verse, and Bishop Heber's missionary hymn, "From Greenland's Icy Mountains," described more fully elsewhere. For the roman-tic, "Lady Geraldine's Courtship," by Elizabeth Barrett Browning, illustrated by Hennessy and engraved by Linton, will prove acceptable gifts. The Golden Floral Series has been specially looked after, and has new and beautiful bindings of silk, in all colors, padded and heavily fringed. In the line of miscellaneous literature they have added to their large stock the following new novels: "John Thorn's Folks," by Angelina Teal; "Farrell's Folly," by J. T. Trowbridge; and "Out of the Wreck," by Amanda M. Douglas. Every taste seems to have been met, and those must be hard to please indeed who cannot find just what they want in the generous provision of this house.

ROBERT M. LINDSAY, Philadelphia, has a splended present for an admirer of Charlotte Brontë in his handsome Haworthedition of "Jane Eyre," printed from new type made expressly for it, seventy-five copies on Whatman's handmade paper, with duplicate signed proofs of etchings on Japan paper, and four hundred and twenty-five copies on extra laid paper. The latter have the illustrations of the scenes and characters so familiar to us all, but not the extra proofs.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT & Co. have an attractive gift-book in Shakespeare's "Seven Ages of Man," illustrated with the best artistic skill of such American artists as Church, Harper, Hovenden, Gaul, Treat, Smedley, and Shirlaw. This work is presented in three shapes—the Artist's edition, with photogravures from the original drawings, each illustration 61/2 x 9 inches, printed on plate paper; a small quartical edition, with excellent wood-cuts engraved by Trench, Williams, and others; and an édition de luxe, limited to two hundred and fifty copies, bound in the "Eton" style. Every effort has been made in the way of press-work, paper. and binding to present a volume of artistic excellence that will prove attractive to the lover of art work as well as the student. For the admirers of Victor Hugo and the lover of fine sentiment in general they have "Selected Pictures from Victor Hugo's Book of Gold," translated from the French by William Shepard. The illustrations of this volume, twelve in number, were drawn by some of the best known among the younger artists of France, and are printed from the original blocks by special arrangement with the publishers in Paris. The edition will be limited and will be prettily bound in vellum. None of Buchanan Read's poems have been so popular as "The Wagoner of the Alleghanies." It was written under the inspiration of feelings which were the strongest in his own nature, and which never fail to awaken sympathy in most natures-patriotism and the love of rural life. This will make the new holiday edition a specially happy feature for the occasion, and it will be made doubly interesting by drawings from Hovenden, Penn. Gaul, and Low. It will be bound in styles uniform with "Drifting," "Brushwood," etc. In addition to the foregoing they offer Sterne's "Sentimental Journey through France and Italy, handsomely illustrated with twelve full-page photogravures and two hundred and twenty drawings in the text by Maurice Leloir, of which a limited edition of 1,000 copies has been printed from type, and bound in four styles, extra cloth, gilt top, rough edges, illuminated vellum, half morocco, Eton style and full tree calf; "The Enchiridion of Wit," a selection of the best specimens of English conversational wit, issued uniform in style with the "Book-lover's Enchiridion," which proved so popular last year; and a new edition of Gray's" Elegy," a pretty, small quarto, illustrated with twenty-two original draw-

The period covered is from 1748 to 1763; maps and portraits of Montcalm and Wolfe, especially engraved for the work, add to its interest. "The Water Birds of North America," by S. F. Baird, T. M. Brewer, and R. Ridgway, is issued in elegant style, with innumerable heads and figures of birds, beautifully engraved on wood, and also with the illustrations exquisitely painted by at all of the holiday order. They are, neverthe-less, of great worth and importance, and would ate edition could the choicest library covet Bartlett's "Familiar Quotations," or Bartlett's "Shakespeare Phrase Book," to which this house calls attention as among its most popular books, are always timely presents.

D. LOTHROP & Co. have an extensive list of gift-books, that represent almost every department of literature. An attractive gift is the sumptuous volume in which, under the title "American Wild Flowers and Ferns," they have collected all the forty-two colored plates and Tide" includes the illustrated stories by favorite American and English authors that have been published separately, as Ober's "Silver City," Mary Hartwell Catherword's "Old Caravan Days," and a great variety of stories, poems, and sketches. The Edwin Arnold birthday-book will please all admirers of the writings of the author of the charming Epics of India. It is carefully selected and illustrated, and the birthdays of eminent men are noted all through its pages, which in itself gives it value beyond that of the usual birthday-book. To the illustrated poems, that are brought out in cloth and also in the popular fringed styles, they have added Tennyson's "Maud" and "The

the entire text of their "Beautiful Wild Flowers," "Flowers of the Forest and Field," and "Beautiful Ferns." Only a limited edition is issued, elegantly bound in russia leather, with sealskin grain. Equally handsome is the semi-centennial edition of "America, Our National Hymn, and Other Poems, 'containing a portrait of the Rev. S. F. Smith, the author, and a sketch of his life, together with some poems that have never yet appeared in book-form. The volume is profusely illustrated by well-known artists, and the binding and general appearance is decidedly festive. A choice book for those who appreciate the true significance of the season is "It is the Christmas-tide," twelve hymns and poems that have been favorites for many years, such as Herrick's "Star-Song," carols by Wordsworth, George Macdonald, and Miss Mulock, Wesley's "Herald Angels." and hymns by Heber, Tate, Watts, and Keble. This handsome collection is profusely illustrated and brought out in extra cloth and also in morocco bindings. A chapter of autobiography translated by Franklin Johnson, illustrated by celebrated artists, is issued uniform with "Ideal Poems," their great success of last year. "Yule Brook," George Eliot's "O May I Join the Choir Invisible," Adelaide Procter's "The Lost Chord," and Wordsworth's "Ode to Immortality." The latter is noticed at length elsewhere. For the lovers of good standard poetry an appropriate selection can be made among the American, English, and German poets that are handsomely bound to attract the buyer's notice, and include the works of Hayne, Burns, Byron, Goethe, Schiller, Ingelow, Scott, Milton, Moore, Shelley, and Tennyson.

MACMILLAN & Co. have several unusually valuable books this season. G. P. Hamerton's "Landscape Art" will be illustrated with some forty designs, of which one half are etchings or engravings on copper. The original etchings include "The Port of Blanzy," by Mr. Hamerton himself; "Le Bas Mendon" and "Nogent-sur-Marne," by Mr. Lalanne; "Lobster Fishers," by Mr. Colin Hunter; and "A Stag and Tree," by Mr. Heywood Hardy. M. A. Brunet-Debaines has also specially etched for the work Turner's "Totnes," and Mr. C. O. Murray has etched Landseer's "Eagle Nest." There will only be a limited edition of this superb work. The print, type, paper, and binding are all in keeping with the artistic plan of its artist-author, and fully up to the fine book-making of his "Graphic Arts," now so scarce as to command a very handsome price. The first volume of the "Dictionary of National Biography," edited by Lesley Stephen, is now ready, and the volumes will follow each other at intervals of three months, until this great work of our century is completed. This dictionary will include lives of inhabitants of the British Islands from the earliest historical period. Living persons are excluded. "The Cruise of H. M. S. Bacchante" has been compiled from the journals, letters, and note-books of the two young sons of the Prince of Wales, that describe their first three years at sea in the Royal Navy—1879-82—and is published in two large volumes, made handsome with pictures by linley Sambourne. "An Unsentimental loys." Linley Sambourne. "An Unsentimental Journey through Cornwall," written by Miss Mulock, and illustrated by C. Napier Henry, forms a most delightful and artistic volume. "The Life of Peter De Wint," by Thomas Humphrey Ward, late Fellow of Brasenose College, Oxford, with twenty photogravures from the artist's own pictures, will be a welcome gift to an artist. A very handsome Christmas gift is the bound volume of their English Illustrated Magazine for 1884. The literary and artistic work on this magazine has been very satisfactory during its first year. The binding is unique and artistic. A fine edition of the Works of Tennyson, revised by himself, is publishing in monthly parts, to be complete in seven volumes, that are sold separately at $1.75 each, and a special edition of the "Works," on hand-made paper, in rich binding is sold in sets only. Five volumes are now ready, and the remaining two will be ready early in December. The print and paper leave nothing to be desired, and the binding is the smooth green cloth that has given an individuality of their own to the handsome books of this house. Lovers of the Brownings will welcome the selections from their works that are offered in four volumes, edited by Robert Browning-two devoted to his own and two to his wife's writings. The four volumes can be had in uniform binding, and each author can be had separately as well. Not exactly a Christmas gift-book in the accepted meaning of the term, but a work that would please many a student better than any gift, is Murray's "New English Dictionary." on historical principles, of which the first volume has been pronounced by leading scholars to be a monument to the energy and scholarship of Dr. Murray.

THOMAS NELSON & SONS have a handsome volume in the Marquis of Lorne's "Canadian Pictures Drawn with Pen and Pencil," which offers an excellent account of the salient points of Canada life, a fine description of its scenery, and an especially comprehensive history of the Indians, their habits and modes of life. It is a very elegant work, illustrated from objects and photographs in the possession of the Marquis of Lorne and Sydney Hale. Special reference is made to emigration, agriculture, and the Pacific Railway, thus giving the work an element of interest for merchants and politicians, as well as tourists and students. They also have ready for the holiday trade a new line of illustrated books, which will include "Rock of Ages," "Jesus, Lover of my Soul," and "The Lord's Prayer." These are illustrated by Clark Stanton and other eminent artists, and are published in octavo volumes, bound in cloth, with gilt edges. The firm have exerted themselves even more than usual. this year, in devising and getting out new styles in their lines of standard Bibles and Prayers and Hymnals. In the former they have acceptable gifts in a very lowpriced style, neatly printed in clear type, on fine paper. and substantially and attractively bound in leatherette. Leaving this style, they run up the grade, from diamond to long primer type, from 32mos to 8vos, bringing into requisition all kinds of binding material, stamping the covers with ornate designs, or leaving off all the stamping, gilding plain or over the red, square corners or round, suiting, it seems to us, every conceivable taste. In Prayers and Hymnals the variety seems almost greater. Here one may have the two separate or together in styles that seem almost bewildering when it comes to a matter of thoice, and where we suppose nothing but the price can decide one's choice. The teachers' Bibles and their Family and Pulpit Bibles are too well known to all to require special mention here.

ORANGE JUDD COMPANY have a pretty little volume for a friend living in the country, entitled

"Every Day in the Country," by Harrison Weir. It is gotten up on the plan of a birthday book, giving on one side short remembrances for every day in the year as to what grows on the earth or flies in the air, while the facing page is left blank for notes or whatever memoranda the owner is inclined to make. It has 400 illustrations (of which eight are colored) by the author.

JAMES R. OSGOOD & Co.'s leading holiday work, "Marmion," comes to us surrounded by the éclat of being the third direct descendant of one of the handsomest line of illustrated gift-books ever issued from the American press. It possesses all the general characteristics of "The Lady of the Lake" and "The Princess," and like these works owes its finished elegance to the skilful supervision of Mr. A. V. S. Anthony. Fredericks, Schell, Garrett, Harry Fenn, and other famous American artists, interpret the romantic narrative of Scott's popular poem by a series of over a hundred illustrations, which embrace landscapes and figure-pieces of high artistic merit. For fuller details and specimen cuts, reference is made to the front section, where the work is described and illustrated. With keen insight into its many possibilities in the way of il'ustrations, Edwin Arnold's "Light of Asia" was put into the designer's hands, a limited edition of it being offered by this house as one of its prominent works of the season. It was prepared in London, and contains thirty-six fine wood-engravings, taken from photographs of Buddhist sculptures found in ancient ruins in Yusufzai (Gandhara) in the Punjab, the Stupa of Bharhut in Nagode, the Sanchi (Bhilsa) and Amravati (Bombay) topes, the cave-temples of Ajanta in the dominions of the Nizam, and in other parts of India. "Sheridan's Comedies," containing "The Rivals and "The School for edited by Brander Matthews, with Scandal, notes and an introduction to each play and a biographical sketch of Sheridan, makes a unique volume for lovers of the dramatic art. We can imagine no more acceptable present than this handsome volume to the regular theatre-goer. Besides new portraits of Henry Irving and Miss Ellen Terry, it is illustrated by full-page pictures of famous actors in the costumes of the principal parts. The biography of "Nathaniel Hawthorne and His Wife," Julian Hawthorne, is an event in literary While the subject is a most engrossing history. one, it is treated as only a loving son and a man of genius could treat it. The portraits are newly engraved on steel, and the vignettes are appropriate and graceful. The édition de luse of this work, uniform with that of "Dr. Grimshawe's Secret," is a rost choice publication. A limited edition of Austin Dobson's "Thomas Bewick and his Pupils," and an exquisite Edition de luxe of the same work, appeal strongly to all lovers of fine books. Bewick stands as the father of modern wood-engraving; his own history and that of the school he founded are described in this valuable volume, which is illustrated with numerous and interesting examples of his work. The author of a "Treatise on the Tourmaline," Dr. Augustus C. Hamlin, has written a charming work, "Leisure Hours Among the Gems," which either the collector or the worker can derive pleasure and profit from. It is illustrated in colors. New and choice editions have recently been issued of "The Lady of the Lake;" the Tremont edition contains many of the illustrations of the more expensive editions issued several seasons back, is a sixteenmo, and is offered in many styles of bindings. The Pocket edition is the "Little Classic" size, with thirty illustrations, and is put up in many different styles of rich bindings. They make lovely presents at a moderate price. Among new editions of standard works are "The Ballads of William M. Thackeray," a cheaper edition of the illustrated holiday edition; Dr. Friederichs' "Hand-book of Greek and Roman Sculpture," revised and enlarged; "The American Actor Series," edited by Lawrence Hutton, now issued in three volumes in place of six, and at a lower price; Mrs. Clement's "Artists of the Nineteenth Century;"

"Our Favorite Authors," and "Our Poetical Favorites."

PHILLIPS & HUNT have a most interesting work in their "Hymn Studies," an illustrated and annotated edition of the hymnal of the Methodist Church, a work that will be of great literary value and of interest to members of every religious denomination. Every hymn will be accompanied by a sketch of its author, and whenever possible by a description of the circumstances that caused or influenced its composition. The Rev. Charles S. Nutter has had the editing of this great work, and a cursory glance at the complete indices alone will give an idea of the great amount of labor required to sift such extensive material and reduce it to such systematic and finished order. The work is sure to be one of the successes of the year, and the author will have the appreciation of a grateful public.

Many a clergyman will be made happy by the neat volume that treats of "Our Missionary Heroes and Heroines," in which the heroic deeds done in Methodist mission fields are chronicled by Dr. Daniel Wise. The book contains portraits of many of the most devoted missionaries. They have another interesting work in Zschokke's "Meditations on Life, Death, and Eternity," compiled from Frederica Rowan's translation by Dr. L. R. Dunn; and a most useful one in Rev. Dr. C. R. Barnes's "Bible Biography," a companion volume to Dr. Whitney's "Handbook of Bible Geography" and Dr. Freeman's "Handbook of Manners and Customs of Bible Times." There are also two volumes ready of "Clarke's Commentary on the New Testament," revised by Dr. Daniel Curry.

World," and a number of others. Sunday-School teachers will always appreciate "The Dictionary of the Bible," adapted to their wants, by the Peloubets, and furnished with eight coiored maps and five hundred and forty engravings on wood.

JAMES POTT & Co. call attention to their large assortment of the famous editions of Bibles of the Cambridge Press and to their choice editions of the N. Y. Common Prayer Book Society's standard Prayer Books and Hymnals, which they put up in the most attractive and tasteful styles of binding.

THE PRESBYTERIAN BOARD have issued "Siam and Loas," an interesting and instructive work, giving the history and manners and customs of the people who inhabit these countries. It has

PORTER & COATES have prepared two giftbooks that are certain to meet with popular approval—Bishop Heber's missionary hymn, "From Greenland's Icy Mountains," attractively illustrated with twenty-two illustrations by Frederic B. Schell, finely engraved under the supervision of James W. Lauderbach. The pictures are really illustrative of Greenland's iciness, India's coral strands, the sunny fountains of Africa, and the ancient rivers of the world. The same artist, with the cc-operation of Alfred Fredericks, Granville Perkins, Edmund H. Garrett, F. P. Church, and Harry Fenn, has also had a share in illustrating "Lady Clare"— Tennyson's poetic love-ballad-which makes a very satisfactory appearance in its handsome cover of original design. Some of the artists have represented Lady Clare in a manner to make Lord Ronald's infatuation seem very easily accounted for. The print, paper, and all that necessarily remains with the publisher, is quite up to the work of the artists. Both these books will be issued in several styles of binding, cloth extra, satin covers, hand-painted, tree calf, gilt, plush, padded with nickel lettering, etc. Less pretentious, but quite as acceptable as holiday gifts for people of literary tastes, is their line of twelvemos, which, among other things, include Walter Scott's "Stories from French History; Edward S. Ellis's "Life of Colonel David Crockett" and "Life of Colonel Daniel Boone;"
"Æsop's Fables," "Cook's Voyages Round the many maps and illustrations. In addition to this they have a large line of theological and religious works that does not only appeal to one particular denomination, but to lovers of good reading in general.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have prepared for the holidays a sumptuous édition de luxe of "Holland and its People,' ' to be known as the Zuyder-Zee edition. It seems strange that a poetic Italian like Edmondo de Amicis should have been drawn to the land of dykes and its soberminded people; but, according to the best of his critics, he has never shown his unequalled powers of description to such advantage as in his treatment of this subject. His imagination was powerfully impressed with the great struggle with the elements fought out by human ingenuity and patience, and his picturesque narrative is so full of suggestions for illustration, that there has been great difficulty in keeping the choice of subjects within practicable limits, and at the same time making a representative showing of the scenes described and the people introduced. This edition is limited to six hundred copies, each of which will be numbered. The work covers four hundred pages, printed from new pica type. Twenty-five copies are printed on Whatman paper, with two sets of etchings—one set on India paper, bound with the text, and one set on satin, mounted with mat and in portfolio ready for framing. The special beauty of these pictures consists in the soft shimmer the satin gives to the water, which is the chief part of almost every design. Two hundred and fifty copies are on finest ragged-edged linen paper, with two sets of etchings, and three hundred and twenty-five copies will be on the same paper, with only one set of proofs. The illustrations are by R. Swain Gifford, Charles A. Flatt, Samuel Colman, Joseph Pennell, and Chas. A. Vanderhoof, and there are also finely executed full page photogravures of celebrated Dutch pictures by Rembrandt, Van der Helst, Franz Hals, Paul Potter, Teniers, and Ruysdael. It is generally conceded that this great work will be one of the finest art-books in the market this season. In strong contrast to a country that may almost be said to be made by hands is "The Land of Rip Van Winkle," the beautiful Catskills, that are here described by A. E. P. Searing, and illustrated by Heinemann and Joseph Lauber, who bring out all the subtle beauties of morning, noon, and evening in these "everlasting hills." All that type, print, paper, and finish of workmanship can do to help poetic ideas and graphic pencils has been done by the publishers. "Half a Century of English History," pictorially presented in a series of one hundred and forty-seven cartoons from Punch, describes the careers of Peel, Palmerston, Russell, Cobden, Bright, Derby, Salisbury, Disraeli, and Gladstone in the well-known style of Doyle, Leech, Tenniel, and the many others that made Punch the comic paper of the world and a power in the political world of the British Empire, and is issued in a peculiarly bound volume, that will make many a man of advanced years happy while he sits at home on wet and stormy days after Christmas. "Prose Masterpieces from Modern Essavists" is issued in three large volumes, in handsome cloth binding, with uncut edges, gilt top, and several fine portraits of the best-known names The plan has been in the literature of the day. to select such productions of the modern writers of English prose as shall represent their distinct literary styles, and these selections have been grouped according to the connection of their subjects and their authors' intellectual kinship. Every essay is complete, which is a great advantage over some of the selections now in the market, that give only fragments of the works of authors they choose from. Of the same high order of literary merit, and daintily pretty as a Christmas gift can be, is the Nutshell Series, in six little volumes, in a neatly-made box, in gilded covers, with the design of a nutshell on each one. The subjects treated are wisdom, philosophy, proverb, wit, epigram, and sentiments and pointed sayings upon them, selected with the practised judgment of Helen Kendrick Johnson from the whole range of ancient and modern literature, omitting, however, the Bible and Shakespeare, from which it was easier not to draw at all than only to sip. There is also a Pearl Series of Choice Selections, of which the first little volume is ready, devoted to the "best gifts of heaven—Faith, Hope, and Charity" as sung in the dearly-loved verses of our sweetest poets.

A. D. F. RANDOLPH & Co. have several publications ready for the Christmas season that will rank very high among the valuable religious works, for which this house is specially noted. Dr. Edersheim's monumental work on "The Life and Times of Jesus the Messiah" views the life of Christ in connection with the surroundings of place, society, and popular life, and the intellectual and moral development of his time. It will be a valued addition to a clergyman's works of reference, as it gives a full list of authorities, list of abbreviations, index of subjects, index of passages quoted from the four gospels, ninetees appendices, containing an account of pseud-epigraphic writings, a list of Old Testament passages Messianically applied in ancient rabbinic writings, a note on the date of the mativity of our Lord, and other valuable matter. Dr. R. S. Storrs's work on "The Divine Organ of Christianity as Indicated by its Historical Effects" is a series of ten lectures, to which he has added about one hundred and fifty pages of notes and references of great value, extending over a wide field of investigation, and treating of Christianity in its relation to the ethical, literary, and artistic life of the world, and to the social and political relations of men, as exempli-The work is sufied in the life of nations. perbly printed. A book of interest to all readers, and of great scholarly value, will be the great work of the late Dr. Hatfield, on "The Poets of the Church," a series of biographical sketches of hymn writers, with exhaustive notes on their best-known hymns. Dr. Hatfield gave close study for years to the subject of hymnology, and had gathered one of the best libraries in existence on his favorite specialty. The manuscript of this volume was left nearly completed at the time of his death, and has been carefully revised by a competent hand. A work that will be treasured by biblical scholars and collectors of rare books is a verbatim reprint of William Tyndale's translation of the "Books of Moses: Called the Pentateuch." is the first reprint in separate form of this translation of the Pentateuch, and is made from esc of the two perfect copies that have come down Dr. J. They have a large paper edition, limited to five hundred copies, and will then print a cheaper one for the less favored student and collector. Among books that will cheer faithful Christians in their daily life they have also a goodly selection, of which "Like Christ," by Andrew Murray, a sequel to the popular "Abide in Christ," and the Rev. S. H. Geisy's "I Ams of Christ," a contribution to Christological thought, are among the newest. In books specially fitted for dainty Christmas gifts they have provided "Centuries Ago," "The Happy Christmas Time," and "The Holy Night." three collections of hymns and carols, with artotype reproductions of the writing of the masters, prettily gotten up in vellum paper, each book having an illuminated title of different design. "Ivy Leaves" is a selection of hopeful thoughts, from the poems of Frances Ridley Havergal, printed, lined, and illustrated in the color of hope. "A Handful of Corn" is a selection of passages from the writings of Rev. Henry A. Boardman, topically arranged to cover the doctrines of the Christian faith. In secular literature a handsome gift is provided in an exquisite edition of "Gray's Poetical Works," delicately bound in white vellum. printed on rough paper, with uncut edges, and full of the prettiest landscapes, arabesques, and these changes were most useful, but archæologists have loudly deplored the effacement of a thousand landmarks. The present handsome volume has twelve chapters devoted to an intro-duction--"Lutetia," "A Voyage Round the Notre Dame and the Sainte Chapelle," "The Tuileries and Luxembourg," "The Louvre," "The Hotel de Ville," "The Pantheon and Invalides," 'St. Eustache and St. Etienne,"

'Parks and Gardens," "Modern Parisian Architecture," and "The Streets." These are illustrated with plates and vignettes by some of the best-known artists of modern times, many of the illustrations being reproductions of wellknown paintings. Brunet Debaines, Toussaint, Lalanne, Hood, Meryon, Martial, Wyld, Lalauze, and Leon Lhermitte are all represented, and the general finish of the book is worthy of the imprint of this fastidious house. The object of "Our Great Benefactors" is to bring within the limits of a modest volume an abstract and brief chronic'e of the world's progress since the introduction of the art of printing. It is not exhaustive, the privilege of selection having been used, and only personages have been chosen that have an undisputed claim to be classed for all time among the benefactors of the human race. This plan naturally excludes all strictly military heroes and all persons of merely local renown. The articles are the joint production of many writers, and their work presents an epitome of the good work done in the world, and a glimpse of those by whom it was done. A portrait accompanies each biography. A table of authors, arranged chronologically, opens the volume, and a very full alphabetical index brings it to a close. The volume is bound in cloth with black and gilt design. Helen Jackson's new novel, "Ramona," will make an appropriate present for lovers of this popular writer. The well-known holiday publications of this house, that have been so popular year by year, are all ready in new editions, many in improved styles of binding, for the fast-approaching Christmas season.

HAROLD ROORBACH has two volumes that will be sure to take as gifts for lovers of Christmas and admirers of the writer, who, more than all others, is identified with the Christmas season. The work will be published under the general heading, Evenings with Dickens, and the separate volumes will be called "An Evening with David Copperfield" and "An Evening with the Pickwick Club." They contain tableaux, pantonimes, impersonations, and readings from Dickens, adapted to their special purpose of amateur entertainment, by Jeremy Marsh Parker.

GEORGE ROUTLEDGE & Sons have no holiday iiit-book proper, but offer many handsome ditions of standard works and new editions of Ad favorites. Marryat's novels and tales have zen issued by them this season in a new Illustrated twelvemo edition, printed from large, lear type, on fine paper, in twenty-four volumes, each containing six or more illustrations, and also in a Handy-volume edition. Marryat still retains his old popularity with many readers, and a library of representative English fiction is incomplete without him. An extremely valuable work of reference. "The Library of Familiar Quotations," by the Rev. C. T. Ramage and J. C. Grocott, has also been issued in a new and improved edition. It embraces, in five volumes, "Familiar Quotations," by J. C. Grocott;
"Quotations from American Authors," by Anna L. Ward; and "French and Italian Authors," "German and Spanish Authors," "Greek Authors," and "Latin Authors," by C. T.
Ramage. To their many handsome editions of Shakespeare, this house has added a new large-type edition, edited by Charles Knight, with full-page illustrations by Sir John Gilbert. Boswell's "Life of Johnson," edited with an introduction by Professor Henry Morley, is issued in a limited edition. It is handsomely printed on hand-made paper, and contains twenty steel-plate portraits of eminent characters, after Sir Joshua Reynolds. This is one of the most notable of new editions of standards this house shows. A new collection of Mr. Caldecott's contributions to the London Graphic, under the title "'Graphic' Pictures," is issued this season. The book is printed in colors by Edmund Evans, and makes a gift-book of charming variety and permanent value.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS offer as their leading holiday book "The Creoles of Louisiana," which nas grown out of the series of delightful sketches with which George W. Cable last year entertained the readers of The Century Magazine. Mr. Cable has a wonderful power of description; nothing tender or tragic or generous, nothing grotesque or repellent in the lives of his favorite Creoles escapes his notice. He treats his subject historically, and gives much authentic information that may be advantageously used in studying the interesting descendants of the early foreign settlers. Cable's latest volume is issued in sumptuous style, with beautifully executed illustrations, and is bound handsomely in cloth, and for lovers of this charming writer will prove a choice gift at Christmas time. A comic book that will start many a hearty laugh during the holiday gatherings is Mr. A. B. Frost's "Stuff and Nonsense," a worthy addition to American comic pictorial literature. It is a collection of humorous pictures, some of them accompanied by amusing rhymes, but most of them left to tell their own story. Mr. Frost's subjects are of a character to render any contortion of countenance or attitude appropriate, and his men, women, and animals of all kinds are studies of facial expression of the most laughable character. The cover is also designed by the facetious artist. In books of permanent literary value there is the new edition of Donald G. Mitchell's works, published in handsome twelvemo volumes, in original buckram bindings, sold separately; and two volumes of verses. Bunner's "Airs from Arcady and Elsewhere" and Andrew Lang's "Ballades and Verses Vain" that have met with the unqualified approval of our most critical journalists. A very hand-somely gotten-up volume on an uncommon theme is the description of "The Snake Dance of the Moquis of Arizona," by John G. Bourke, Captain in the Regular Army. Thirty plates, some beautifully colored, illustrate the strange customs of the but slightly-known inhabitants of the border-line between Mexico and Arizona.

From "God's Glorious Creation," (Ward, Lock & Co.)

SCRIBNER & WELFORD'S leading publication is the "Characters of Jean de la Bruyère," of which they have ready an edition newly rendered into English by Henri Van Laun. This work has long been a classic in French—from which language it is translated-not only on account of its perfect style, but for the masterly manner in which La Bruyère drew the portraits of the courtiers of Louis XIV.'s brilliant but corrupt court. The present edition, which is limited to five hundred copies, is a very elegant one, printed on fine linen paper, with uncut edges, and embellished with etchings by B. Damman and V. Foulquier. To a cultivated, refined taste, nothing more acceptable could be offered. This house has a new Handy-volume edition of the "Poetical Works of Lord Byron," in twelve volumes, put up in a case, uniform with the "Handy-volume Shakespeare." In the Romances of Fantasy and Humor they have already issued "The Tales and Poems of Edgar Allan Poe," (4 v.,) and Hoffman's "Weird Tales," (2 v.) The handsome style in which they appear, adorned with many portraits and etchings, make them most important works for lovers of good literature and fine editions.
"The Empire of the Hittites," by William Wright, appeals only to scholars. It is just ready, and contains a decipherment of Hittite inscriptions, by Professor A. H. Sayce; a Hittite map, by Colonel Sir Charles Wilson and Captain Conder. It has been revised by W. H. Rylands. A new and beautiful Library edition of "Her Majesty's Tower," by W. Hepworth Dixon, is another of this house's many valuable publications. A complete history of the Tower of London, telling the great story of the national life of England, is compressed in its two royal octavo volumes. "Fair Diana." by the "Wanderer," is more in the gift-book style than any of the foregoing. Designs, by G. Bowers, of fox-hunting, riding, and other dashing English country sports, make up a volume in the style of "Across Country," by the same author. The well-known English essayist and critic, James A. Symonds, furnishes a volume for the seekers after the curious and rare in literature, "Wine, Women, and Song," being a collection of Latin songs translated into English verse, and preceded by a learned essay. In the Illustrated Art Handbooks, the latest volume is "Painting—Spanish and French," by Gerard W. Smith. Scribner & Welford's books should be carefully examined to fully appreciate the perfection of their mechanical parts and the rare skill with which many of them are illustrated.

WARD & DRUMMOND have a new edition ready of "Bridal Days," a gift-book for the bridal day and all the wedding anniversaries to follow.

WARD, LOCK & Co. have two finely illustrated works of natural history, which they issue under the titles of "God's Glorious Creation" and "The Creator's Wonders in Living Nature." The first tells of the mighty marvels of earth, sea and sky-the earth's plan in the universal plan; of the natural phenomena of water, land and atmosphere, and of the mechanical use for which the great natural forces have been util ized; the second tells of the marvels of life in the animal and vegetable kingdoms, and of organic life in all parts of the world-on the dry land and in the ocean's depths. Both volumes are translations by J. Minshull, from the German authorities, Drs. Hermann, Thome and J. Klein. Each book has one hundred and fifty original engravings, and is handsomely bound in black and gilt. Of great value also is "The Universal Instructor," a complete cyclopædia of learning and self education, meeting the needs of all classes of students, and forming an exhaustive system of intellectual culture. It is planned on a large scale, embracing languages, sciences and many other kinds of information. and has upward of two thousand illustrations. It is issued in three large volumes, at a very reasonable price. Specially adapted to the wants and wishes of girls is "The Young Ladies' Treasure Book," a complete cyclopædia of practical instruction and direction for all indoor and outdoor occupations snitable for young women, such as household exercises, study, self-improvement, home duties, dress, needlework, manners, home pets, etc. It is very fully illustrated with woodengravings and colored plates. Among these many compendiums of useful information, their entirely new edition of the popular "Beeton's Illustrated Encyclopædia" deserves special mention. It has been re-edited, very largely re-written, and contains some hundreds of adlitional articles. Besides these, they have a arge line of miscellaneous publications that will be found useful as presents and otherwise.

WHITE, STOKES & ALLEN have in "Some Modern Etchings" a fine example of some of the best work done by our leading American etchers. The plates, ten in number, are the work of Frank Waller, the late S. G. McCutcheon, Gabrielle D. Clements, S. J. King, Walter Satare most attractive and are fully described in an interesting text by J. R. W. Hitchcock, of the New York Tribune, who also contributes an essay on etching, which is full of information. There are four editions of this handsome work —to suit the tastes and purses of all—viz., cloth, vellum proofs, satin proofs, and Japan proofs. The latter three editions are enclosed in rich portfolios. They have added to their Flower-Songs Series, four new volumes, which will hardly be exceeded by any fringed books offered this season in richness of coloring or designs.

They are "From Moor and Glen," "A Bunch They are "From Moor and Glen," "A Bunch of Roses," "Pansies and Orchids," and "Roses and Forget-me-nots." Each one has four plates of flowers in their natural colors, combined in many cases with fac-simile poems by Howells, Trowbridge, Aldrich, and other prominent American poets. Miss Susie B. Skelding is again the designer of these dainty volumes, and has surpassed herself in the luxuriousness of covers and illustrations. "Flowers from Glade and Garden," by Miss Susie B. Skelding, is a handsome volume in cloth, containing the plates and poems from the first three books named of the Flower-Songs Series. They are in colors like the others, but on finer paper, with more generous margins. The volume makes an elegant ornament for the centre-table. "Heartsease," also by the gifted Miss Skelding, is a little fringed book of pansies, that may be had with a silk fringe encircling its cover, or in leaflet shape, cut in the form of pansies. These fringed books are all particularly seasonable, as they bid fair to be as much sought for and as much by this enterprising young firm. The "Milton" is printed from new electrotype plates, and is edited, with notes and a life of Milton, by Robert Vaughn, D.D. Every one knows Robert Vaughn, D.D. Every one knows how wonderful and grand are the illustrations made by Doré to this work, at the very acme of his fame. None will be missed in this edition, and they will be found exceedingly good impressions. "Songs of Bird Life," with its charming plates of birds in their haunts and its graceful text, make up a volume one would never tire of looking at. Even the children will delight in the pretty, saucy birds, of all kinds and conditions, sporting in the trees, on the heath, or soaring in the air. A pretty little book for the boys and young men who have the bycycling fever is "Wheel Songs," by S. Conant Foster. In a dainty pale blue, white and gold cover are a collection of humorous poems and designs, all having for their theme "bycycling." "The Good Things of Life" offers a selection of the best designs that have appeared in Life, since the first issue of that popular society journal. They are very clever, and hit off sharply the fashionable weaknesses and follies of the day. It makes a capital book to pick up for a moment or to enliven a dull half-hour. Where standard literature is sought for, we would recommend the new editions, in various shapes, of Locker's poems this house publishes, and the new edition of Heine's "Book of Songs," and the "Lyra Elegantiarum," vers de societé, edited by Locker. As an aid to the getters-up of tableaux and private theatricals in the holiday times, "Artistic Tableaux" will prove very valuable and suggestive. The text is by Josephine Pollard, and is illustrated with numerous picturesque diagrams and costumes by Walter Satterlee. The idea is novel, and certainly very helpful to the hard-working purveyors of social amusement.

THOMAS WHITTAKER has added to his very attractive line of birthday and year books two pretty birthday gift-books: the "Cabinet Birthday-Book of Quotations and Proverbs" is illustrated with over a hundred different varieties of natural grasses; the other, "The liked as in former holiday seasons. Although "Songs of Bird Life," with Giacomelli's graceful illustrations, and Milton's "Paradise Lost," with Doré's renowned designs, are well known to all admirers of what is best and most beautiful in true art, it is with pleasure we call attention to the new editions of these works, offered Illustrated Poetical Birthday-Book," is edited by Ellinor Davenport Adams. These little souvenirs are great favorites with young and old, and may always be placed advantageously. "Queries and Confessions" is a sort of mental photograph-album, with leading questions, and corresponding blanks for answers.

R. WORTHINGTON offers for the Christmas season several very handsome illustrated works, prominent among which is "Etched Examples of Paintings, Old and New," which opens with an essay on painting, and gives throughout descriptive letterpress of literary merit, by John W. Mollett. The paintings are represented in twenty etchings by such masters of their art as Jacquemart, Flameng, Rajon, Unger, and others, and have the advantage of large folio-sized pages. The paper, print, and binding are all in keeping with the artistic subject. Dr. Coppinger's "Cruise of the Alert" gives four years' experience of sailing in Patagonian, Polynesian, and Mascarene waters, illustrated with full-page plates and several woodcuts by Dr. Coppinger and Mr. F. North. Scott's "Ivanhoe" is produced in an edition de luxe, with numerous original and beautiful wood-engravings, drawn by Rion, Adrien Marié, and H. Scott. His new standard reference-book, "The National Gazetteer of the United States," by Dr. L. de Colange, embraces a comprehensive account of every state, territory, county, city, town, and village throughout the Union, with population, from the last census, and is issued in a handsome volume of 1125 pages, bound in cloth, library sheep, or half morocco. From these works of description and statistics we turn to those of imagination and art, and make special mention of limited large-paper editions of Dickens and Poe, that he has imported for the American market. A little later in the season he will offer the first volume of John Payne's translation of "The Thousand Nights and One Night, which will occupy nine volumes, and give in pure Saxon English the wonders of these tales, that have belonged to the classic literature of the world for centuries. He has also a sumptuous gift in the large-paper edition of the Romance of Fantasy and Humor, in which the works of Poe and the weird tales of E. T. A. Hoffmann have already been issued. In addition to the foregoing, Mr. Worthington has a large list of standard books, from which it ought not be difficult to select a gift suitable to any taste.

E. & J. B. Young & Co.'s illustrated giftbook for this season is a remarkably fine edition of Ingoldsby's delightful legend of Blois, called "The Lay of St. Aloys. with their handsome issue of "The Jackdaw of Rheims," and has also enjoyed the benefit It is uniform of Rheims," and has also enjoyed the benefit of Ernest M. Jessop's quaint and original illustrations. The illuminated text is perfectly printed, and the figures in neutral tints are spe-cially well brought out. Red lines, and borders, and arabesques brighten the pages, and the whole effect brings vividly to mind the mediaval days, when men had time to live, love, and enjoy. A literary friend with a taste for artistic oddities may be made very happy by this new appearance of an old favorite. In totally different style, but fully as odd and unusual, is the long, thin volume of "Types and Antitypes of Our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ," containing Bible texts, hymns, maxims, etc., with initial letters, ornamental borders, illuminated text, printed in red and black, gotten up in imitation of the copy of the Gospels in the British Museum, and of the other missals of the days of the Crusaders. This house has its usual large line of valuable religious works, and also of the Spottiswood Bibles and hymn-books, in every variety of size, type, binding and price.

Books for the Young.

UNDER this heading is given, in the alphabetical order of their publishers, a descriptive summary of all the new books offered as specially suitable for the young.

THE AMERICAN S. S. UNION'S juvenile publications consist mostly of good stories, from which both amusement and instruction may be derived. Three of their latest books are, "Number Three Winfred Place," by Agnes Giberne, and "In After Years," a sequel to "Through the Winter," and "A Visit to the Celestial City," by Nathaniel Hawthorne. They call attention also to a new series, called Through the Winter Series, the fifth revised and enlarged edition of "Didley Dumps," a new edition of "Wee Davie" to their Robert Raikes Libraries, and a new library of thirty-twomo volumes for infant schools, entitled The Little Pilgrim Series.

THE AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY have several new juveniles, and new editions of almost all their well-known favorites. "Vacation Days at Foxwood," by Mrs. Elizabeth P. Allan, an excellent book for boys, describing the week-day pleasures and Sunday instructions of a score of healthy boys forced to stay at the academy during vacation, owing to contagious disease in their homes; "Honest Wullie," by Mrs. Lydia L. Rouse, containing three Scotch stories; "Lizzie and her Friends," by Mrs. M. F. Butts, with illustrations by Miss Lathbury, are all of interest to growing boys and girls. For the younger children they have bright-covered books, under the names of "Splendid Times," by Mrs. Sangster; "Pictures and Stories of Long Ago;" "Beasts and Birds;" "Little Folks' Stories;" "Happy Hours," and many other tempting titles.

A.C. Armstrong & Son's juvenile literature includes, among many new editions of old favorites and new books of lesser note, two stirring tales for boys, that combine instruction, amusement, and interest in the well-known manner of our present writers for boys. Gordon Stables, whose name is sufficient promise of a treat to all boys who love the sea, has written of "Wild Adventures Around the Pole," and given a glowing picture of the beauties and a truthful represention of the dangers of that region, so lately brought once more into the thoughts and conversation of the world. The adventures of "The Crusoes of Guiana," told by Louis Boussenard in a fascinating style, of superior literary ment, will also be eagerly welcomed by even those boys who find reading very trying work. For children of smaller growth they have a fine color-book entitled "The Children's Forget-me-not," containing 48 pages of most exquisite color-prints.

IRA BRADLEY & Co. offer for the young folks "Pioneers of a Family; or, Adventures of a Young Governess," an interesting story of pioneer life, by J. R. H. Hawthorne; "Carola," a story by Hesba Stretton; "Almost too Late," by H. C. Garland; and "Shadows," a story by Mrs. O. L. Walton, author of "Peeps Behind the Scenes," etc.

ROBERT CARTER & BROS. have, among other attractive books this year, a new story by the ever-popular author of "The Wide, Wide World," entitled "The Red Wall-Flower," which combines the same characteristics which has made Miss Susan Warner's name the house hold word it is; three charming books by Emma Marshall, entitled "Silver Chimes," "Grandmother's Pictures," and "Heathercliff;" "The Sea-Gull's Nest," by Emily Brodie; "The Lord Mayor of London," a tale of London in 1384, by Emily Sarah Holt; "Life in the Eagle's est," a tale by A. L. O. E.; "The Children's ummer," by Mattie B. Banks, a story that will elight the little girls; "Shadows," scenes and icidents in the life of an old arm-chair, by the athor of "Christie's Old Organ;" and a volume f sermons to children by one of the greatest of ll living preachers to children, Richard Newn, D.D., entitled "Bible Promises."

Cassell & Co. have their usual supply of andsome juveniles. There seems no end to the feast this house provides for the children. They have new editions of all old favorites, and esides have brought out new volumes that over the whole field of instruction, adventure, etion—in fact, of good literature of every detription. In books combining instruction with musement may be mentioned "Children of all lations," their homes, their schools, their playrounds, with original illustrations by G. lausen, N. de Dmitrieff, C. Gregory, Herbert ohnson, E. J. Walker, and many others, in which are collected a series of descriptions of children from all parts of the globe, including even the little Turks, Hindoos, American Indians, Chinese, Japanese, and Malay young folks of both sexes; "Sunny Spain, its Peoples, Places, and Customs," with glimpses of its history, by Olive Patch; "O'er Many Lands, on Many Seas," written in the best vein of Gordon Stables, whose "Wild Adventures in Wild Places," etc., has endeared him to the hearts of sea-loving boys; "Rambles Round London Town," by C. L. Matéaux, author of "Brave Lives and Noble," etc., which gives children an excellent idea of the best-known places in London, descriptions of and references to which they constantly meet in the literature of the day; and "What the Little Ones Love," by Chatty Cheerful, in which she tells of going out in the rain, in the sunshine, in the wind and the snow, the fields, the streets, by the river and in the woods, and combines, with her pretty story of the children thus introduced to nature, much valuable information in natural philosophy. All these books are bound in cloth, with bright gilt designs, and profusely illustrated throughout. In bright-colored, board-covered books, of which they make a most successful specialty, and in which they have almost reached perfection, they have "Brave Lives and Noble," by C. L. Matéaux, giving short biographical sketches of all the great

THE CENTURY Co. have again gone to the inexhaustible treasury of their St. Nichola Magazine to find the pictures, rhymes, and store that make up their beautiful "Baby World," one of the finest holiday, juveniles of the seasa. Like "Baby Days," it is edited by Mrs. Mary heroes of the world; a bound volume of their Little Folks' Magazine; "Duncans by Land and Sea," by Kate Tannett Woods, author of "Toots and his Friend," and other stories; "Myself and my Friends," by Olive Patch; "Creatures Wild" and "Creatures Tame," teaching much about animals, shown in full-page pictures; "Frolics at the Farm," by Myra Diehl, telling how some city children spent the summer, and what they saw and did in their holidays; "Indoors and Out," by the same sunny author; "Bo-Peep," a book for very little readers, in large type; and "Hither and Thither, or, Good Times for Papa's Little Daughters," by Mrs. Mary D. Brine, which takes up the story so popular last season, and tells what happened after Madge's and Mapes Dodge, who, of course, knows just what is best in St. Nicholas, and just where it has been put, and where it can be found. The outself appearance of the book is tempting. The crims cloth binding, embellished with black clouds to which floats a large gilt world, surmounted by the happy children, and kept in place by two more while a fifth reaches for it and a sixth repose near it, has a busy, bright look. The inside covers show innumerable worlds and immerable children, and the opening page shows many birds holding and singing the title "Baby World." The volume opens with a sweet appeal "to the babies large and small, to the children one and all." A few of the favorite cuts of "Baby Days" have been reproduced, as that prime favorite is out of print.

LAZY DICK.

From "Hither and Thither." (Cassell & Co.)

The treasures of this book should inspire many parents to give their children a subscription to a magazine that can furnish such a selection of pretty stories, pictures, and valuable information.

T. Y. Crowell & Co. have prepared some books for the little ones that parents, remembering their own young days, will be sure to think just the thing for their book-devouring boys and girls. Four volumes of the "June Stories" and four volumes of the "August Stories" are ready for lovers of Jacob Abbott's natural descriptions of home and school life. It will also be hard to choose between the six illustrated volumes of the Dove series and the companion set of six volumes, to be known as Georgey's Menagerie, which gives useful and amusing information upon lions, wolves, bears, elephants, camels, and deer. Lady Caldecott's "Little Arthur's History of England" makes the facts of the growth and troubles of England very interesting to little brains; "Hints to Our Boys," by A. J. Symington, has an interesting introduction by Lyman Abbott, and the very popular story of "What Fido Remembers" is brought out again, and is sure of as attentive a reading as ever by all girls who are constantly urging their tired mammas to "tell us what you did when you were a little girl."

THE CONGREGATIONAL SUNDAY-SCHOOL AND PUB. Soc. have two interesting juveniles in "The Last of the Luscombs," by Helen Pearson Barnard, and "Fussbudget's Folks," by Anna F. Burnham, who has also edited the Well Spring Series, comprising four little volumes put up in a neat box under the separate titles of "Trying to be Somebody," "Under the Master's Eye," "Susy's Windows" and "Valentines."

CUPPLES, UPHAM & Co. have only a few new juveniles, but one of them is a most interesting addition to the many attractions now in the field. It is a translation from the German of Johanna Spyri, called "Heidi, Her Years of Wandering," very well rendered into English by Louise Brooks. Little girls, and boys also, can gain much useful information by travelling with little Heidi and learning where she went, and what she learned herself about places and things.

DE WOLFE, FISKE & Co. have a bright and interesting story for the boys in "On Land and Sea," by William H. Thomes.

DODD, MEAD & Co.'s juveniles always rank among the best literature that is provided for our larger boys and girls. Church's "Stories from the Classics" have already made familiar to them "Homer," "Virgil," the "Greek Tragedians," "Livy" and "Herodotus," and this year they will receive what must interest every thinking child-" Stories of the Persian War" and Roman Life in the Days of Cicero," each illustrated with sixteen colored plates, that make real to them in a measure the scenes and actors they are laboriously trying to get at in their well-thumbed, pencil-marked Latin school-books. There are sure also to be romantic boys who will revel in "the very joyous, pleasant, and refreshing history of the feats, exploits, tri-umphs and achievements of the good knight, without fear and without reproach—the genue Lord Bayard-which are set forth in stiming English by Edward Cockburn Kindersley, similar in style to "The Chronicle of the Cid," published by this house last year. Of light literature there is "The Merchant Vessel," by Charles Nordhoff, telling his personal experience by sea; "Elsie in Nantucket," a new volume in the life of this favorite hero-ine; "Mildred at Home," and the long ine; array of the juveniles in sets, that are always such a stand-by in buying presents for the children who can hardly wait from year to year to get a little new light about the adventures of a favorite hero or heroine.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have this year a remarkably fine collection of color books for the young. They are all so artistic and so finely executed that it is a pleasure to examine them-Their most important book in this line is "Out of Town," by F. E. Weatherly, with original designs by Linnie Watt. It is conceived on the same plan as " Told in the Twilight," by the same author, and is equally beautiful. The pictures represent children at play in the fields and at the seaside, and are in bright colors and in monotints. Every page has a design and some pretty, jingling verses. Andrew Lang's "Princess Nobody" is a charming welding of clever text and artistic conceits. A fairy-tale of the good old-fashioned type—all about goblins and giants, odd transformations of birds and flowers-is the frame-work of Richard Doyle's quaint and original drawings. Printed in first-class style by the English art printer, Edmund Evans, it combines in its coloring, text, and designs an exceptional union of delightful qualities. Two other volumes in colors and monotints are "Two Children," by F. E. Weatherly and M. Ellen Edwards, recording with pen and pencil the joys and sorrows of two little ones of "four" and "six" summers, and "Sixes and Sevens," by F. E. Weatherly and Jane M. Dealy. All four of these quartos are as suitable for the drawing-room table as for the nursery shelf. "Playtime," by Edward Stanford, being sayings and doings of babyland, "The Fool's Paradise," "So Happy," "The Tiny Lawn-Tennis Club," and "The Art Gem Series," embracing six little quarto volumes by the author of "Told in the Twilight," all printed in colors, are, if not as ambitious as the four leading juvenile books, certainly pretty and attractive enough to suit the best little girls and boys in the land. The boy interest has been especially looked after by Noah Brooks in his book called "Our Base-Ball Club, and How it Won the Championship." Though published during the summer season, it remains a favorite volume with the base-ball players and lovers of manly sports. With its bright cover and many pictures it makes a very desirable present. Reading girls have been provided by Joanna Matthews with a new story, "Girls of Glenwood." The bound volume of "Sunday for 1884," and the numerous libraries, series, and books in sets, which this house has upon its list, must not be forgotten in making up Christmas remembrances for the little oncs.

ESTES & LAURIAT add this year another of the ever-popular "Zigzag" books to their fine array of publications for children in whom the love of reading has been awakened. "Zigzag Journeys in Acadia and New France" is the title, and Hezekiah Butterworth the author. The journey is one of the most interesting of the series, as it takes the young travellers into a country which, though nearer home, is probably not so well known as Europe and the East.

cles, gives a perfect epitome of the sights and the historical and literary reminiscences of Old and New London; both fiction and history have been laid under contribution, the writer quoting liberally all through to enhance the attractions of the work. "The Young Folks' History of Edinburgh," by Fred. H. Allen, does the same for this famous city, while his "Young Folks' History of the Reformation" gives an account of the men and events of this great religious

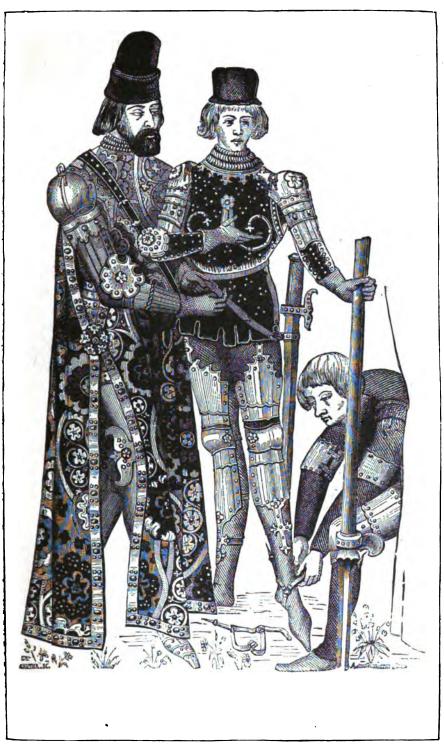

INDIAN WARRIOR.

From "The Land of the Incas." (Estes & Lauriat.)

The text is full of romantic stories and legends of "the land of Evangeline," and solid informa-tion concerning the early history and special points of interest of New Brunswick, Canada, Montreal, Quebec, etc. The clever "Vassar girls" continue their strolls abroad in a new volume entitled "The Vassar Girls in South America;" they go through the very heart of the country, up the Amazon, across the Andes, and along the Pacific coast to Panama. Both this and the new "Zigzag" are profusely illustrated with pictures of the country travelled through, the designs in the latter book coming from the graphic pen of "Champ" and other equally clever artists. The very excellent series of "Young Folks' Histories" has been increased by three handsome volumes, richly illustrated, popularly written, and very nicely printed. While designed especially for young readers, all these volumes are sufficiently fresh in style and facts to be acquisitions to any library. "The Young Folks' History of London," by W. H. Rideing, a writer well known for his many capital descriptive magazine arti-movement in Germany, France, England and other countries. "The Land of the Incas" is another of the solid books that boys will find expecially delightful, and that older readers will peruse with pleasure. The author, W. H. Davenport Adams, offers a graphic picture of that thrilling and romantic episode, the conquest of Peru, in the course of which the conqueror Pizarro is elaborately described. The volume is full of pictures and richly bound. It seems scarcely necessary to add a reminder as to the "Chatterbox for 1884," "The Prize. 1884," or "Our Little Ones and the Nursery." These three charming volumes of tales and pictures for the very smallest children are known to every child that ever looked at a picture-book, and are looked for as eagerly as Christmas itself as the years roll round. "The Original Chatterbox Packet" consists of two hundred "Chatterbox Packet" consists of two hundred "Chatterbox" illustrations with appropriate text. It is a small quarto in luminated covers, and is said to be "the cheapest juvenile book ever offered in this country."

CEREMONY OF PUTTING ON THE ARMOR OF A KNIGHT.

Funk & Wagnalls offer a lovely book for "young people from eight to twenty years of age." The title is "Stories in Rhyme for Holiday Time." Edward Jewitt Wheeler, the author, has for some years been a contributor to the St. Nicholas, Wide Awake, The Independent, and other well-known periodicals. The stories are of the fairy-tale order, exceedingly quaint in fancy, elevated in tone, and full of humor. Walter Satterlee's illustrations, which adorn every page, are invariably striking and spirited. Among books of the past year issued by them will be found several suited for presents to young people, as Dickens's "Christmas Stories," and "Heroes and Holidays," the latter edited by W. F. Crafts, being a collection of addresses to young people by twenty-one noted preachers.

HARPER & BROTHERS present this year another volume by a writer who has earned very general fame among small people of recent years, as he had before among their elders, Col. Thos. W. Knox. His "Voyage of the 'Vivian' to the North Pole and Beyond" is peculiarly timely in view of the interest in Arctic exploration, giving the adventures of two youths in the open Polar Sea, and in connection with them the record of the real Arctic adventures of previous explorers. This ship of the imagination is the only craft which has yet voyaged to that mysterious sea; but Col. Knox's fancy proves equal to the task, and of course the artists have followed him there. The book is very fully illustrated. An even more important book, in one sense, is the "Indian History for Young People," by Francis

Young People afford each year an endless variety of story, sketch, verses, pictures, etc., etc., of the greatest delight, and this year's issue shows the usual advance. Harper's Young People is now following its older brother, Harper's Magazine, to England, where an edition will henceforward be published. Another new Harper book is the "Last Fairy Tales," of Laboulaye, translated by Miss Mary L. Booth, who introduced to American children the previous volume from his pen, which has for so many years been popular. It is happily illustrated and strikingly bound, and in every way delightful. To the popular Harper's Young People Series is added "Left Behind," in which Paul Weston has various adventures in New York, after being separated from his people as they were leaving for Europe; and the other series issued by this house, whose name is a household word to children as well as grown people, include the ever-delightful books of the Abbotts, Hayes, Du Chaillu, and a host of other writers.

HENRY HOLT & Co.'s books for Loys are among the best of their kind, and few histories will impress the facts of the great Amercitizens of an independent country; and "Captain Phil," by M. M. Thomas, that gives a boy's experience in the Western army during the great Rebellion, in which their fathers again ican wars on an active boyish mind in so delightful a way as "Ralph the Drummer Boy," translated from the French of Louis Rousselet by W. J. Gordon, which gives a picture of the days of Washington and the great republic. These voltages well-printed and attractively bound. They have put fresh covers on their Young Folks' Cyclopædias and reduced the price to $2.50 for Revolutionary War that made their fathers each, which makes an inexpensive and certainly stitlers of an independent country; and "Care." very desirable present for the little students.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. publish three books for lighting up Christmas for young people. The most immediately popular, perhaps, will be "The Viking Bodleys," which has all the attractiveness of the previous Bodley books, and conducts the Bodleys through Norway and Denmark, where they see many very interesting sights and hear many interesting stories. The book is illustrated on the same general plan with the previous Bodley books. Mr. Augustus Hoppin, whose "Recollections of Auton House" is one of the most entertaining books written for children, and very valuable, too, as depicting truthfully customs and usages in New England families a generation ago, has written a companion book, entitled "Two Compton Boys," which is full of all sorts of adventures that will delight boys and girls, and their fathers and mothers hardly less, and is illustrated with a host of amusing pictures by Mr. Hoppin himself. The most sumptuous juvenile book is Hawthorne's "Wonder Book for Girls and Boys," containing six classic legends, which are illustrated with admirable skill and grace by Frederic S. Church. The book is bound in a striking cover, designed by Mr. Church.

THE INTERNATIONAL News Co, have a delightful gift for children in their Moving Picture Series, by L. Meggendorfer, which is in three volumes, entitled respectively "Live Animals," "More Living Animals," and "Moving Animal Pictures." The pictures are colored, and the groups are partly cut out, and so mounted that by moving a strip projecting from the bottom of the page, the groups, or parts of them, go through a series of antics, illustrating, in a most striking manner, the text on the pages facing them. The work of mounting the illustrations is done most ingeniously and in a thoroughly artistic manner. The series will undoubtedly become a great favorite. They also have a fresh supply of The Showman Series, which proved very successful last year.

LEE & SHEPARD have always a list of books for boys and girls that makes parents wonder what their fathers and mothers would have done had they been so "embarrassed with riches." A capital book for boys will be found in "Perseverance Island, or, the Robinson Crusoe of the Nineteenth Century," by Douglas Fraser, who makes his castaway hero provide himself with what he needs by means of his brains and hands, without the wonderful "wreck" to fall back upon, which lends such enchantment to the familiar tales of our childhood. Other books for boys are "Squares and Compasses," in which their idol, Oliver Optic, takes a new departure, and teaches them practical mechanics by means of a fascinating, adventurous story; and The Femous Boy Series, in which have been incorporated "The Patriot Boy," a tale of George Washington; "The Bobbin Boy," telling how N. P. Banks earned his knowledge; "The Border Boy," a history of Daniel Boone; and "The Printer Boy," dealing with the inspiring theme of Benjamin Franklin; The Natural History Series, illustrated by Harrison Weir and others, six volumes of well-told information about wonderful beasts, birds, and fishes; Life-Boat wonderful beasts, birds, and fishes; Life-Boal Series, by that prince of story-tellers, W. H. G. Kingston, in which he tells of "Dick Onslow" "Among the Redskins," "The Young Middy," "The Life-boat," "Anthony Weymouth," and the "Cruise of the 'Frolic' conclude the list of new books peculiarly adapted for boys' reading. For the girls they have a welcome book in "Flaxie Growing Up," Sophic May's new book which completes the Flaxie May's new book, which completes the Flazie Frizzle Series, and which will be the best of all Christmas gifts to the happy possessors of former volumes of this popular set. Older girls would like "Pretty Lucy Merwyn," by Mary Lakeman; and old and young, boys and girls, will spend happy hours over "Great Popular 'arranged by Henry Cabot Lodge, a beautiful quarto volume, containing the favorite tales of "Fairy Land" and "Giant Countries" that are too well loved to need a word of praise or explanation, but will once more stand and prosper on their well-known merits.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT & Co. have added this year to their extensive and attractive list of books for the young a companion to their "Young Folks' Plutarch" of last year, entitled "Young Folks' Josephus," in which the substance of this standard has been given in a simplified form, and in such a style as will prove entertaining to the children. "Young Folks' Ideas" is a new volume by Uncle Lawrence, the author of "Young Folks' Whys and Wherefores," which contains a store of information on various subjects, conveyed in such a manner as to be certain to interest even those who are most inimical to imbibing their education through the medium of sugarcoated text-books. Both these volumes are very fully illustrated and attractively bound.

D. LOTHROP & Co. have an endless variety of juveniles, that include suitable presents for little two-year-olds, and longed-for treasures for boys and girls that are supposed to have almost our grown juvenile literature. We have only space to run briefly through the long list of good things that strike our eye in glancing rapidly at the

B. Perkins, a whole library in itself. MACMILLAN & Co. have several new and valuable books for young readers, of which we can only mention "Christmas Tree Land." that has been made attractive by the text of so talented a writer as Mrs. Molesworth and the pencil of so true an interpreter as Walter Crane; "Charlie Asgarde," a story, by Alfred St. Johnston, author of the popular story, "Among the Cannibals;" "The French Prisoners," a historical story for boys, by Edward Bertz; and a romance of history, to be called "Daffodil and the Croaxaxicans," by Augusta Webster. Charles Kingsley's "Water Babies for a Land Baby," although too delicately beautiful for average children's appreciation, must still be classed as a juvenile. It has more than one hundred illustrations, by Linley Sambourne, well set in large quarto pages, that bring out the beauties of the designs and their appropriate following of the fairy text.

Thomas Nelson & Sons have a long list of books for young people of various ages. All will be found good substantial literature, that parents need not fear to put into their children's hands. "The Land of Greece" is a historical and descriptive volume of that classic country, by Charles Henry Hanson. "Stories of Old Rome" is by the same author, and relates the wanderings of Æneas and the founding of Rome. "The Children's Tour," by M. A. Paull, is a simply told narrative of travel "in a sunny land." "Chaucer's Stories Simply Told" is from the pen of Mary Seymour, the author of "Shakespeare's Stories Simply Told," and is embellished with eleven illustrations from designs by E. M. Scannell. Nothing can surpass the Canterbury tales for giving children a picture of middle-class life during the fourteenth century. "Bible Stories Simply Told" comes from the author of "The Story of the Beacon Fire." Mrs. C. C. Campbell has prepared a "Natural History for Young Folks," which is illustrated by Giacomelli's pictures; and Mr. Robert Richardson's "Adventurous Boat Voyages," which gives, in attractive style, an account of several polar expeditions, boating across the Atlantic, and other episodes of life on the waters. " Mountains and Mountain-Climbing," although gotten up for youthful readers, will interest any one fond of thrilling and daring adventures. It records the ascents of some of the world's most remarkable mountains, and is by the author of "The Mediterranean Illustrated," etc. "The Western World," by W. H. G. Kingston, is a collection of picturesque sketches of nature and natural history in Northern and Central America. The work is printed handsomely on tinted paper, and is copiously illestrated. "The Young Trawlers." by R. M. Ballantyne, is another of this author's thrilling stories, and deals with life and death and rescue on the North Sea, with stirring accounts of the peculiar habits and customs among the fishermen of those regions. The Nelsons have three new series, that include well-known books by well-known writers for the young, which they particularly call to the attention of buyers. The Historical Tales are stories founded on facts, by the author of the "Spanish Brothers," Annie Lucas and M. Filleul. It includes eight volumes, and in the form of fiction gives instruction about the most interesting periods of the world's history, especially about the time of the Reformation and of our most modern wars. The Daring Adventure Series includes books of adventure and travel; and Tie Golden Crown Series is especially suitable for

The Little Worker eries for younger children has every advange that can be given by good writing, fine finting, and most tempting bindings. PHILLIPS & HUNT have their usual contribulon to juvenile literature, most suitable for tewards and presents in Sunday-schools during the holiday festivals. Julia Smith has in "Our Little Rebel" written one of the most touching flories we have read of a child's sufferings in the South during the War of the Rebellion, and has given a great deal of instructive information about war-measures and the last days of slavery. The style is more interesting than usually falls to the lot of religious juveniles. Besides this pretty story there are "My Aunt Jeanette." by Mrs. Kimball; Rev. J. Dillon's "Christina. or, the Persecuted Family," telling of the persecutions of the Vaudois; "A Golden Inheritance," by Cecilia A. Gardiner.

PORTER & COATES seem to have considered boys first in the new books provided for the Christmas season. Harry Castlemon has finished the second and third volumes in the Rod and Gun Series, and offers them to his enthusiastic readers under the titles of "Rod and Gun" and "The Young Wild-Fowlers;" Horatio Alger adds the second volume to the Allantic series, and calls it "Do and Dare;" and Edward S. Ellis gives the second and third volumes to the Bay Pioneer Series, under the titles of "Ned in the Woods" and "Ned on the River." All these are bound in extra cloth, with black and gold design. The girls, however, have not been forgotten, and Margaret Vandergrift's new story, "Doris and Theodora," will be eagerly welcomed by every girl who has read the natural, home-like stories of "Dr. Gilbert's Daughter," "The Queen's Body-Guard," etc.

THE PRESEYTERIAN BOARD OF PUBLICATION calls attention to their large line of books suitable for presents to the young folks, the latest among which are "Roderick Granger," by Margaret E. Winslow, an interesting story of how a bright but spoiled boy is brought through many trials to a good end; "How it Came About," by Mrs. A. K. Dunning, a well-told story of the life led by a crippled giri, who, notwithstanding her infirmities, accomplished more good than many in full possession of health and strength; "The Poacher's Daughter" and "A Good Catch."

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have prepared for the young people an edition of Bayard Taylor's "Views Afoot," first published in the Christmas month of 1846, and meeting with immediate popularity, as its bright descriptions of European scenery and people opened a new world to his contemporaries not yet favored themselves with a trip to Europe. In these days, when every one goes to Europe, boys and girls will be sure to enjoy reading what this brilliant and genial writer has to tell of the places they visited last summer. The book is issued in the shape and style of the "Boys' and Girls' Plutarch" of last year and the "Herodotus" of this season, of which latter a full notice can be found on one of our front pages. For children of a smaller growth "Songs and Rhymes for the Little Ones," compiled by Mary J. Morrison, will be found a happy selection, as all the little toddlers can learn them readily, and recite them to tired papas and well-pleased mammas when they come in their nightgowns for several "last kisses."

A. D. F. RANDOLPH & Co. have prepared only one new juvenile for the Christmas holidays, but it is one that combines talent, taste, and im agination enough to take the place of half a dozen ordinary children's books. It has the attractive vacation title of "All Play," and tells of the pleasures, trials, hopes and disappointments of little "Wavy" and her various plan-The story is natural, and mamma and mates. papa act as real live mammas and papas do act and speak. The illustrations are charming and in generous profusion, and show that the artist liked his work and did it with love as well as care. Ismay Thorn has written a sweet child's story in "All Play," and has been truly fortunate in having so talented an artist as Thomas Pym to assist him with his delicate pencil.

ROBERTS BROS. have brought out several juveniles during the year that have met with great favor, and are sure to be considered as holiday gift-books in making purchases for the young folks. Among these "The Hunter Case of Connorloa," by Helen Jackson; "A Sa Change," by Flora L. Shaw; "Suwanee Rher Tales," by Sherwood Bonner; "Jack Archet, a tale of the Crimean War, by G. A. Henty.

"Tip Cat" and "Miss Toosey's Mission" are the great successes of the year. Mrs. Smith's "The Browns" and "Jackanapes," Mrs. Ewing's pretty story, also deserve special mention. Miss Alcott has a new volume in the Spinning Wheel Stories, which takes its name from the series, and with the two former ones, "Proverb Stories" and "Silver Pitchers," makes a delightful set of books specially suitable for girls. New editions of their various well-known series are ready in boxes, and will furnish suitable literature for all children.

GEORGE ROUTLEDGE & SONS' most important volume for the young this season is "Sports and Pastimes of American Boys," by Henry Chadwick. Every manly boy will want it, and he cannot help deriving the very greatest pleasure from it. It will guide him to a knowledge of every sort of out-door games and indoor amusements. Mr. Chadwick has especially adapted it to the requirements of American youth, and the publishers have issued it in fine style, with many illustrations. Helen Kendrick Johnson, the au-thor of "Our Familiar Songs and Those Who Made Them," has prepared a prettily illustrated little collection of verses from good sources, under the title "Illustrated Poems and Songs for Young People," The selection is said to be very choice, and one that young people will like to read or commit to memory. Four very striking color books of decided juvenile bias are "Heroes and Heroines of Nursery bias are "Heroes and Heroines of Nursery History," by George Sadler, illustrated by Frank Cox, and beautifully printed by Hildesheimer & Faulkner; "Little Sunbeam's Picture-Book," "Golden Hours," by Mrs. Sale Barker, with designs by M. E. Edwards, the designer of "Stories Told in the Twilight," and "A Museum of Wonders and what the Young Folks of Wonders, and what the Young Folks Saw There," explained in many pictures by F. Opper, of Puck. Routledge's "Picture-Book of Wild Animals" and "Picture-Book of Domestic Animals" are two large quarto volumes, in gay covers, showing twelve colored pictures and many other full-page illustrations in black and white, of wild and domestic animals. The annuals for 1885 are out as usual this season in handsome garb, and with their usual attractions. Choose either "Routledge's Every Boy's Annual," "Routledge's Every Girl's Annual," or "Little Wide Awake," and you have the certainty of giving to a boy or a girl one of the most desirable and most deservedly popular publications in the market. Caldecott's famous "Toy-Books" have received three additions this season—"Come, Lasses and Lads," "Ride a Cock Horse to Banbury Cross," and "A Farmer Went Trotting upon his Gray Mare." These charmingly conceived and executed publications are so well known to every little one, that mere mention of them seems sufficient. A new and very beautiful edition of Laboulaye's "Illustrated Fairy Tales" proves the ever popular character of this juvenile work. "England," "France," and "Germany," and a new edition of the "United States" are new volumes, by Mrs. Helen W. Pierson, in "Routledge's One-Syllable Histories." The new Kate Greenaway books are dainty enough to satisfy the most fastidious. Kate Greenaway's "Language of Flowers," printed in colors by Edmund Evans, is an art-book for young or old; the "Kate Greenaway Edition of Mavor's Spelling," a series of graded spelling lessons for the littlest ones, is emphati-Almanac for 1885" will be a useful and ornamental present of which any member of the family can make use.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS provide a rare treat for such children as have a longing for the wonderful, and love to read to feed their imaginations, and have no desire to imbibe knowledge and facts made easy to swallow by allegory, or any form of story that is used to cover the main object—the imparting of information. Mrs. Burton Harrison has written for them a volume of "Old-Fashioned Fairy Tales," purely fantastic, full of giants, ogres, knights, fairies, elves and gnomes, who sport under different names through three hundred pages of charming test. that has been illuminated by the talented and sympathetic pencil of Miss Emmett. The cover design at first sight gives promise of lots of happy evenings, with its black and red colors, and the typical old-fashioned witch and oidfashioned fairy of our childhood, surrounded by the emblems of their craft. Frank R. Stockton, so dear to boyish hearts, will make himself still more beloved by his "Story of Viteau," in which he tells, with well-known skill and ability, a story of the age of chivalry in France, full of adventure, romance and knightly daring, giving a truthful picture of the country in which he lays his tale, and a charming glimpse of Raymond, Louis and Agres in the Castle of de Barran, at Viteau. His stirring take is made even more real by the tasteful and spirited illustrations of Mr. Birch. Whoever reads this new story will want "The Floating Prince," a new edition of which is also ready for this season. New editions have also been prepared of The Boys' Librar of Legend and Chivalry, comprising "The Boys' King Arthur," "Knightly Legends of Wales," "The Boys' Froissart," and "The Boys' Percy," edited by Sidney Lanier.

SCRIBNER & WELFORD have a very pretty "fine art juve-nile," by the author of "Belt and Spur." The title is "Stories from Vasari," and it embraces scenes and incidents in the lives of the great It is admirably painters. illustrated in colors, and furnishes in very attractive shape information that a child with any artistic leanings will find very delightful. Prof. A. I. Church is the author of two other books for the young on this house's list, also with colored designs. The first bears the quaint title, "Tale of the Two Roses, or, the Chantry Priest of Barnet," and the second, " Life in Rome in the Days of Cicero. latter is a series of sketches. illustrated with designs from the antique, drawn from the letters of Cicero, and giving a spirited view of old Rome. Their "Boys' Own Annual" and "Girls' Own Annual" are as rich in pictures and good reading matter as in former boys and girls at playtime, in-doors and outdoors, and of baby's kingdom, drawn by Edith Scannel, with text by Samuel K. Cowan. The volume is very handsomely printed in colors, and bound in very attractive board covers. They have also "Nursery Numbers," a new book of old rhymes, quaintly illustrated in color and outline, bound in a handsomely decorated cover, with ingenious end papers.

WARD & DRUMMOND have in the way of juvenile books the ''Woodcliff Children Series,'' the "Rainford Series,'' by Glance Gaylord, ''Star of Hope Series," "Little Folks' Speaker," compiled by O. Augusta Cheney; Uncle Frank's Boys' and Girls' Library, Golden Text and Bible Gems for 1885, and a Christmas Annual, containing six new Christmas Carols.

WARD, LOCK & Co. offer for boys of inquiring minds and active bodies several very suitable books, among which we specially mention "Happy Child Life at Home and School," beautifully illustrated with colored pictures, and "The Workshop at Home," the third volume in their series of Amaleur Work, containing practical instructions in lathe building, house painting and papering, furniture making, carpentry, picture-frame making, china painting, bird-stuffing, etc.—all the different employments illustrated profusely with nearly one thousand wood-engravings, and the whole work bound in a handsome, durable cloth and gilt cover.

WHITE, STOKES & ALLEY have issued a companion volume to "The Alphabet Coldren," so deservedly popular last season. The title is "The Kindergarten Children," the verses and illustrations being the work of Caroline Hansell. The volume is a large folio, in a striking cover of children at play, inclosing a number of pages devoted to children occupiations. Special praise is deserved by this work for the boldness and life-likeness of is pictures. Children will be delighted with a lts simplicity and realism will go straight is their hearts. "The Mary Jane Paper." by Miss A. G. Plympton, is humorous in pictures and reading matter, and meant for children who enjoy a long story. "Christmas Rhymeand Stories," by Kriss Kringle, is a very Christmasy publication of rhymes and pictures devoted to the good deeds of Santa Claus.

THOMAS WHITTAKER has in the way of new juvenile books: "The Children's Pilgrimage," by L. T. Meade; "Dorothy," by T. M. Browne, is a home tale; "Castle Comfort," by Mrs. W. J. Hays, is the name of a lovely old country-house, in which a flock of neglected children find happiness and tender care with their dear old Aunt Pam; "Loveday's History," by Lucy Ellen Guernsey, is a tale of the latter part of Henry VHI,'s reign, and is full cloud color. We regret we have not room to particularize others, such as "Anna Cavaye," by Sanda Doudney, "Walter Allison," by M. L. Ridley, and "Clifford's Trial," by Mrs. W. J. Hays

FRIENDS OF THE FARM.

From "Worthington's Annual." (R. Worthington.)

"PLAYING WE ARE SIRENS."
From "Mary Jane Papers." (White, Stokes & A.)

R. Worthington has gotten up "Worthington's Annual for 1885" in even more attractive manner than its two successful predecessors. The contents are of more varied interest and the illustrations of the same generous number, and of much more finished execution. Much of the text has been written specially for its purpose, and the selections from other sources have been made with taste and judgment. The book may be had bound in boards with bright lithographed cover from an original design, or in more expensive full gilt cloth binding. This year's volume of Chatterbox Junior is as full as ever of pretty pictures, bright sketches, and verses appealing to the taste of healthy children. Kate Greenaway's familiar pictures illustrate the child-like text of "Chatterbox Hall," which has a colored board cover showing nine little happy faces peeping from an ivy-covered window. A large, peeping from an ivy-covered window. tempting-looking book is "Twilight Tales Told for Young Children," edited by E. O. Chapman from the original text of various authors, handsomely bound in a bright board cover, with brilliant design lithographed on dead gold. For stayat-homes, happy hours are provided in "Æsop's Fables" and "Andersen's Fables," carefully revised and edited for children, and illustrated with pictures far more satisfactory than those in which we first made acquaintance with Æsop's vain Jackdaw, the council of mice, the sensible ass, etc., or with Andersen's old street lamp, ugly duckling, superfine needle, etc. A short introduction gives a glowing sketch of the Danish story-teller, interspersed with illustrations of his home, his father's factory, and of the monument placed on his tomb by a generation of loring readers. In fine art juvenile publication the lead is taken by "Seven Little Maids," depicted in verse and illustrations by Mary A. Lathbury. The seven little maids represent the days of the week. Each one has peculiar attractions that are happily versified by the talented artist. They are grouped on the front cover, their smiling faces peeping from a frame of arabesque design, while the back cover shows seven little birds flying in light blue air, also framed in gilt arabesque. A delicate white fringe adds to the attractiveness of the volume. In the same style is "Jack in the Pulpit," edited by John G. Whittier who describes in a facsimile letter reprinted in the volume, that the verses were written by Miss Smith, of Medford, Mass., and sent him for insertion in his volume of "Child Life." Finding them so good he corrected and edited them, and they have now been illustrated by Sadie A. Price, and, are brought out with all the attractions of artistic design, colored plates, heavy paper, and fringed cover, tied with pretty ribbons. Besides these new comers we may mention "Petland Revisited," a charming description of animal life for the children. Miss Ewing's pretty books with André's illustrations, "Cherry Pie," "Grimm's Fairy Tales," "Pussy's Wonder-Book," and a host of others which will make it difficult to choose where all are so satisfactory.

E. & J. B. Young & Co. have, as always, a most generous supply of tempting books for the little ones, almost all displaying the artistic color-printing for which this house is noted. One of the few uncolored ones tells the truthful story of "A Boy Here," worded by the Rt. Rev. W. W. How, and illustrated by H. J. A. Miles. A new series of six color-books, with words and drawings by R. André, is called the "Tiny Shoes Series." This talented artist has come up to his best work in "Little Blossom," a book of child fancies, charmingly invented, and drawn with the skill and finish that make Bible stories are made his work so satisfactory. fascinating in the "Child's Illustrated Scripture History Series," containing four parts, with colored pictures and bright covers, also designed by the indefatigable André. These four volumes are also bound in one and called "The Colored Picture-Bible for Children." "An Old Story of Bethlehem" tells the touching story of Ruth and Naomi in the peculiarly appropriate words of the author of the 'Schönberg-Cotta Family.' The scene of the story, the time, and the national peculiarities of the people are made real, and many colored illustrations bring out the descriptions in the text and give much valuable instruction, in the author's delightfully pleasant way. An especially pretty colored picture-book is "Under Mother's Wing," which enjoys the distinction of being edited by Julian Hawthorne and illustrated by the artist who signs the familiar initials "I K" initials "J. K.

Specialties.

AIKIN, LAMBERT & Co. have this year surassed all their former endeavors in getting up tristic and attractive lines in the way of solid and plated goods in the line of pens, pencils, harms, and other articles of jewelry.

THE AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY issue four new sets of Sunday-School Reward Cards, which, ike their predecessors, are done in the best style of color printing. The first of these (No. 66) is natitled "Words of the King," with original lower designs, in twelve colors, special attention laving been given to the text. The next, (No. 44.) entitled "Helps by the Way," has floral lesigns after Baroness de Vouga, each with two exts. The others (Nos. 65 and 66) have floral lesigns, out of which peep heads of beautiful hildren, from designs by Miss Lathbury.

L. PRANG & Co. have evidently determined of make every one of their cards this year a 'prize' card, and the result is a most bewildering array of fine art prints. They have, as sual, devoted a great deal of attention to flower pieces, but the greater improvement of drawing and execution in figure subjects makes the former less conspicuous in this year's line. Among some of the figure designs we notice representations of the works of Harry Beard (a set of children and dogs in window), Miss Lizbeth B. Comins (a set of diamond-shaped cards with charming children, and a set of triangular cards with charming cherubs' heads), W. L. Taylor (two cards in sepia and gold, and full of Christmas sentiment), Walter Satterlee (two strong Christmas cards, introducing the Christmas star, Christ and the lamb, and singing children), Miss Dora Wheeler (three charming young girls singing a Christmas hymn), Alexander Sandier (a frieze-like card of singing children, in a rich, decorative, antique style), and Miss L. B. Humphrey (a "Whittier" card, as companion to last year's popular "Longfellow" card). Besides these there are humorous designs of feathers and birds, pet dogs' heads in birchbark frame, humorous designs, by Walter Satterlee, of gnomes' Christmas sports; fruit cards, landscapes, by the late A. F. Bellows; humorous animal cards, by W. H. Beard; winter landscapes, by J. F. Murphy; birds, by Giacomelli and Miss F. Bridges; squirrels and birds in winter landscapes, by W. Hamilton Gibson; and others. The Christmas element is represented in the line much more strongly than hitherto.

MILTON BRADLEY & Co., as usual, have brought out a number of new games and toys to amuse the children — big and little. Among the more important ones may be mentioned "Kakeba, important ones may be mentioned "Kakeba, Honey Gatherers and Tin Peddler," a combination of three games in a handsome board-box. "New Checkered Game of Life and Marble Roulette Board" is a combination of two games in the popular box form. New and artistic plates have been made of the checkered game board, which is placed on the outside of a polished wood frame. Inside is the new game of Marble Roulette, a game of combined skill and chance. "The Fisherman's Luck" is a combined game and toy, which may be played as a "solitaire" or with partners. It is played on the general principles of the popular game of "Jack Straws," but with the added fascination of the toy fisherman and the amusing devices on the tablets. In card games, they have this year the "Æsop," a game of pictures and fables, handsomely lithographed in colors, forming a mate to "I Don't Know," which was quite successful last season; also a new and revised issue of the popular game of authors, which is entitled "Authors Improved." For smaller children they have a marine sectional picture, entitled "American Yacht," which has been drawn. with great care from a celebrated yacht, and the names of the parts arranged by experienced yachtsmen; "The Buffalo Bill Gun," a toy which shoots either arrow, shot, marble, or other similar thing; "Horse Gravity Toy," a philosophical toy, in which a horse seems to be leaping from any support on which his heels are placed. the motion and suspension in mid-air being produced by the natural laws of gravity; the "Sail Boat Gravity Toy." a neat sail boat, which, when supported by the stern, has a very natural rocking motion, as if at anchor, worked on the same principle as the horse; and "Common-sense Building Blocks," a large number of plain blocks of the Kindergarten building forms. of these games and toys are sold at remarkably low prices.

THE NEW CALENDARS FOR 1885.

BRENTANO BROTHERS have a useful, instructive, and amusing daily reminder, entitled "Chimes Calendar," compiled by Mrs. E. S. Miller, author of "In the Kitchen." The selections include receipts "for dishes or draughts for the sick," riddles, charades, rules or tricks for knitting, crocheting, hints upon health, instruction how to plant, selections of poetry, etc. The selections are in a block, printed in brown ink, on extra fine paper, the whole mounted on a finely-lithographed card, representing "Harebells" colored true to nature, and most tastefully arranged.

ESTES & LAURIAT issue a unique novelty in their "Cupid's Calendar," by Kate Sanborn, a heart-shaped holiday novelty, with an appropriate quotation from love literature of the world for every day in the year, printed in colors, with a lithographed cover, designed by Walter Satterlee, with silk fringe; also, "The Garden of the Heart," uniform in style with the "Leap Year Calendar," with appropriate selections of religious poetry, lithographed covers, printed in colors, with and without silk fringe.

Houghton, Mifflin & Co. issue this year four calendars, of which the "Holmes Calendar" entirely new, Dr. Holmes's writings never before having been used for the purpose. It will therefore be valued by his many admirers not only for the daily messages from him which it will bring, but for its artistic appearance as well. The card on which it is mounted, of oblong shape, has a capital portrait of Dr. Holmes, on each side of which stands a group of maidens bearing rosegarlands, with which they are decorating it. The design is illuminated in gold and colors, blended with delicate effect. "The Emerson Calendar" has freshly arranged selections, and is newly decorated this year by Florence Taber, an excellent portrait of Emerson and the symbolic pine tree appearing in the design. A border of conventionalized pansies runs across the top, and the whole effect of the coloring is as deep and rich as are the sentences which the calendar Two beautiful calendars, which, apart contains. from their useful qualities, possess artistic merit, are the Longfellow and Whittier calendars for the coming year. A remarkably good medallion portrait of Longfellow is a feature of the former, and this portrait is upon the front of a sculptured stone, upon which the Genius of Poetry is just placing a laurel wreath. The subdued coloring of this calendar is especially in harmony with the taste of the day. Two graceful figures—one, Maud Muller in the hay-field, the other, Mabel Martin on a snowy hill-side—decorate the "Whittier Calendar," which, in common with the other calendar, contains a portrait of the author from whom its selections are taken, in this case mounted on a decorated entablature. The coloring of this card is bright, and the profuse use of gold in the decoration makes it peculiarly brilliant.

THE MASSACHUSETTS NEW CHURCH ASSOCIATION, of Boston, issue a "Swedenborg Calendar," with appropriate quotations from the works of the seer, appropriately printed in colors.

L. PRANG & Co. issue this year a newly arranged "Ruskin Calendar," with the most artistic mount by Mrs. Sarah E. Whitman; a "Tennyson Calendar," the mount of which is an exquisitely delicate design in white and gold, in which allusion is made to one of the most popular songs of the poet on the golden strings of a harp entwined by the blossoms of the anemone or wind flower; a "Thackeray Calendar" the selections for which are full of humor, and have been made with great care. The design for the mount is by H. Winthrop Peirce, and shows the figure of Satire holding a mask before her face, the meaning of which is further emphasized by a motto on the hem of her garment, "A pitying face behind a mask." In the background Vanity Fair is portrayed in most vivid colors. The retail price of each of these calendars is $1. They have also a "Folding Calendar," which has exquisite designs, by Miss L. B. Humphrey, of figures illustrative of the seasons. A full calendar of the days of the year is supplemented by much information as to eclipses, festivals, postal rates, etc.

GEORGE ROUTLEDGE & SONS issue, as usual, in the daintiest shape possible, the "Kate Greenaway Almanack" for 1885. Familiar as are the designs by this charming artist, one never tires of these.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have prepared a welcome gift to a housekeeper in the "Common-Sense Calendar," to which is attached selections from Marion Harland's well-known receipt book, "Common-Sense in the Household." On the leaf that bears the date for each day in the year is printed a receipt, and on the face of the calendar appears a portrait of the author, with with a view of her breakfast-room, reproduced from photographs and sketches from life.

MARCUS WARD & Co. have, as usual, their old favorite calendars—the "Shakespere," "Day unto Day," and "Every Day." The "Shakespere" this year has a handsome background, representing a scene from Henry IV.; the "Day unto Day," a Scripture calendar, is mounted on a pretty card, with a handsome representation of the Recording Angel, accompanied by cherubs; and the "Every Day," a calendar for the library and office, with selections from eminent writers of all ages, is mounted on a heavy board representing a cabinet. In addition to these they have "The Season's Calendar," a small pocket calendar of eight pages, containing a record of legal and church holidays, eclipses, domestic and foreign postal information, list of presidents, etc.

WHITE, STOKES & ALLEN have "The Crescent Calendar," by Genevieve S. Hall, cut out in the shape of a star and golden crescent, with a separate leaf for each month, frosted and tied with ribbon; "The Pansy Calendar," with design of large pansy on a background of gold, at the heart of which is a block containing the calendar for 1885, one leaf for each month, tied with ribbon for hanging; and "The Macdonald Calendar," a block calendar, with 365 leaves, one for each day of 1885, with day of week, day of month, and an appropriate selection from the writings of George Macdonald.

JOHN WILEY & SONS have a neat souvenir and calendar combined, entitled "A Ruskin Time and Tide." Every page of this book is in colors, handsomely lithographed; one page is a calendar for a month, surrounded by decorations emblematical of the month; the opposite page contains a selection from Ruskin, printed on a dull green square decorated in the corners with birds and flowers. As will be seen, there are twenty-four pages—twelve for the calendars and the others for the selections. The cover is printed in colors, and has an unique design.

fith the proper descriptions thereof, extracted from the Original Text of John Wycliffe, and Preface by the late

Bean A. P. Stanley.

In addition to the 38 full-page Engravings, each page of the Text is embellished by Borders and Ornaments, being sact fac-similes from a work in the Lambeth Palace Library, used by the kind permission of the late Archbishop

The very curious series of Engravings (dated 1540) used to illustrate this volume were purchased about 70 years isce, at Nuremberg. They have not been recognized as belonging to any printed book, and the Artist's mark, which spears, is unknown to any Bibliographer. It is very probable that the blocks were thrown aside and never used after by had been engraved, till a lapse of nearly four centuries. There are altogether 78 subjects represented on the 38

THE EDITION OF THIS WORK FOR THE UNITED STATES IS LIMITED TO

by GEORGES PERROT and CHAS. CHIPIEZ. Edited by W. Armstrong, B.A., Oxon. With 600 illustrations (many full-page and some colored). 2 vols., imperial 8vo. Handsomely bound in cloth, gilt top, $15.50; half levant, $22.50.

This New Work is the third in the series by these distinguished writers on the "History of Anolent Art," he two previous works having achieved remarkable success, and have been accepted by the highest authorities as the standard works on the subjects.

It is in many respects the most important contribution of modern times to the literature of art and archaelogy. As it progresses, its value becomes more and more apparent. The illustrations are admirable as illustrative art, and Hundant, to bring the descriptive text within the comprehension of the ordinary reader as well as the student. the, a limited number of copies of the two previous works, bound in uniform style and price.

SPECIAL PUBLICATIONS

A NEW "BABY DAYS,"

"BABY WORLD."

WHEN "Baby Days" was issued, with its charming cover and attractive contents, made up from the Little Folk's Department of that "best of children's magazines," St. NICHOLAS, it was called the most perfect book of the kind that had appeared. Three large editions have been sold, and "Baby Days" is now out of print; and THE CENTURY Co. as publishers, and Mrs. MARY MAPES DODGE, as editor, have prepared a new book, larger and handsomer than "Baby Days" containing 300 pages of stories, rhymes, and pictures from the later volumes of St. NICHOLAS, with a beautiful cored frontispiece. The first edition is 15,000. Retail price, of booksellers everywhere or will be sent by the publishers.

$2.00. The volume may be had of booksellers everywhere, or will be sent by the publishers, postpaid on receipt of price.

THE BOUND VOLUMES OF ST. NICHOLAS.

OF all the beautiful books for boys and girls that brighten the booksellers' shelves just before the Holidays, and afterward find places beside so many stockings on Christmas morning, the very richest and best selling are the bound volumes of St. Nicholas magazine. The wealth of stories—serial stories, short stories, fairy stories, and a few pages of big-type stories for the little ones—the hundreds of pictures, serious and comic, the charming rhymes and jingles and poems, the beautiful red binding, and, above all, the general tone that St. Nicholas always has, helpful and amusing together, these it is that make the volume so attractive. Nearly six thousand of the volumes are sold each season. They are now put up in two parts, price, $2.50 per part, or $5.00 for the complete volume.

SPORT WITH GUN AND ROD

IN AMERICAN WOODS AND WATERS.

"The fifty articles it contains are all written by experts with the rod and gun, and with the pen also; for they are right, bright, humorous, and admirable descriptions of sporting adventure over a field that extends from the Gulf of Mexico to the Arctic circle, and from the Atlantic coast to the mountains of the Sierra Nevada."—London Truth.

OYAL octavo, about nine hundred pages, printed on heavy plate paper, ten full-page Japan proofs, and several hundred illustrations, costing over thirty thousand dollars. Price, in full cloth, gilt top, $10; in unique and beautiful embossed leather binding, $15. In two volumes, if desired, at $12 or $19. Sold by subscription. Specimen pages, prospectus, etc., sent on request.

THE IMPERIAL DICTIONARY.

THIS great Encyclopædic Lexicon contains one hundred and thirty thousand words and more than three thousand pictures. It gives a description of the thing named as well as a definition of the word. It is in use in numerous Colleges and High Schools throughout the country and professional men and scholars are enthusiastic in its praises. The N. Y. Tribune, The N. T. Tribune, The N. THE MENTOR.

1 LITTLE BOOK FOR THE GUIDANCE OF SUCH MEN AND BOYS AS WOULD APPEAR TO ADvantage in the Society of Persons of the Better Sort. By Alfred Avres. Size, binding, etc., uniform with "The Orthoepist" and "The Verbalist" by the same author. Price, 16mo, cloth, $1.

CONTENTS: Personal Appearance. In Public. Calla and Cards. At the Dinner Table. Conversation. Odds and Ends. What is a Gentleman?

Cincinnati Commercial Gasette: "'The Mentor' is an excellent little book for the guidance of men and soys who would ground themselves thoroughly in the usages of good society. The author is a man of refinement and good sense and understands his subject."

THE BUNTLING BALL.

CAPITALLY ILLUSTRATED BY C. D. WELDON. 16mo, red margin, cloth, $1.50.

This work, a Græco-American play, is a keen poetical satire on New York society, by one of the best known of liv-riters. An idea of its nature may be obtained from the following partial list of Dramatis Persona, namely: Knickerbocker Young Men; Manœuvring Mammas; Social Strugglers; Belles; Wall Flowers; Gossips: Anglomaniacs: Gluttons.

A NARRAGANSETT CHRISTMAS.

STORIES FOR CHRISTMAS. BY EDWARD EVERETT HALE. 12mo, cloth, $1.

Mr. Hale has spent a considerable part of every year in the Narragansett country for several years. The new book represents a party assembled there for the Christmas festivities, of some of the principal characters of his different stories, particularly of those who met in his "Christmas in a Palace" a year ago. The new book

STORIES IN RHYME FOR HOLIDAY TIME.

BY EDWARD JEWITT WHEELER. Profusely illustrated by WALTER SATTERLEE. Royal 8vo. Price, $1.75.

BY EDWARD JEWITT WHBELER. Profusely illustrated by WALTER SATTERLEE. Royal 8vo. Price, $1.75. Especially designed for young people from eight to twenty years of age. No pains have been spared to make this the most attractive book of the season. The author has been for some time a contributor to such publications as St. Nicholas, Wide Awake, the Independent, etc. The artist is well known throughout the country as unsurpassed in this line of work. The illustrations, 29 in number, are most of them full-page, and invariably striking and spirited. The stories, while abounding in frolicsome fancy and catching melody, are remarkable for their elevated tone and purity of style.

Edgar Fawcett: What specially strikes me about the 'Stories in Rhyme' is their quaint originality of fancy and the spontaneous, easy way in which this has been treated. I find much admirable versification in the volume, and particularly in the dramatic stanzas of Eglantine."

William Cleaver Wilkinson: The purity of tone everywhere present, the sweet and graceful gift and art of verse exhibited, the simple play of fancy, the glimpses of a true inventive poetic faculty, these all conspire to make the volume something much better than a mere holiday book to have its season with children, and pass. I predict for it a real success. I trust the author, without sacrificing the simplicity and genuinenes: that seem a delightful attribute of his genius, may attempt before long a more ambitious flight."

PROSE AND POETRY.-NEARLY 20,000 QUOTATIONS AND 50,000 LINES OF CONCORDANCE.

Contains every desirable quotation to be found in all other books of the kind. It is the only ENCYCLOPÆDIA of Contains thousands of quotations not to be found in other books of the kind. It is the only ENCYCLOPÆDIA of Contains a full concordance of over 50,000 lines, which is to quotations what Young's and Cruden's Concordances are to the Bible. A quotation, if but a word of it is remembered, can easily be found.

Beside these there are many other features most desirable in a work of this kind, all combining to make this Cyclopedia what it is now universally acknowledged to be—

"The only standard book of quotations. For convenience and usefulness the work cannot, to our mind, be surpassed, and it must long remain the standard among its kind, ranking side by side with, and being equally indispensable in every well-ordered library, as Worcester's or Webster's Dictionary, Reget's Thesaurus, and Crabb's Synonyms."—Boston Post.

ONE LITTLE REBEL.

BY JULIA B. SMITH.

ILLUSTRATED. 16mo.....$1 00

We wonder this little simple, pathetic story of Southern life during the war has not already made more stris the reading world. The history of a little child left almost penniless in the charge of a faithful "house servant"—black of course—who has pledged himself to take him safely to friends at the North, and does so, through many and various adventures, is very touching and graphic.—The Churchman.

Pepys' Diary.

Samuel Pepys, as is well-known, was Secretary to the Admirally in the reigns of Charles II. and James II. He was a musician, a connoisseur in painting, architecture, and early English poetry, and of such repute for his interest in scientific investigations that he held the office of President of the Royal Society. His diary, written is cipher, was commenced in 1659, and was continued for nine years. It gives, with almost the accuracy of a photograph, a picture of the court and times of Charles II., and from the fact that it was written in cipher, it presents the events, characters, gossip, and peculiarities of the age without restraint.

The text chosen is that of Rev. Mynors Bright, who in 1875 made a new translation, containing about one-third more matter than any edition before published.

The edition of Rev. Mynors Bright was exhausted almost immediately, and has for some time been scarce.

Our reprint edition is in ten volumes, 16mo, printed in the best manner by De Vinne, and handsomely bound in cloth, uncut. Price, $15.00; in half calf, $25.00.

Mrs. Browning's Poems.

From new Electrotype plates. It is well-known that there has been no edition, either English or American, worthy of this favorite author. The plates of this one have been made by Messrs. T. L. De Vinne & Co., by whom it has also been printed. 5 vols., 16mo, cloth with gilt top, $7.50; half calf, $15.00.

No effort has been spared to make it as nearly as possible a perfect specimen of book-making.

The Huguenot Emigration to America.

A HISTORY OF THE HUGUENOT EMIGRATION TO AMERICA. By CHARLES W. BAIRD, D.D. 2 vols., 8vo, cloth. gilt tops, with maps and illustrations. Price, $5.00.

"A work bised upon extensive research, upon a movement little understood, and that will fill an important gap in our historical literature."

Main's Fhree Hundred Sonnets.

THREE HUNDRED ENGLISH SONNETS. Chosen and Edited with a few Notes by David M. Main, Editor of "A Treasury of English Sonnets." Limited large paper edition, post 8vo, paper covers, $11.00.

Compiled by the Editor of "A Treasury of English Sonnets," which is by far the best compilation yet made. This selection is made from the larger one, and 75 copies have been printed on large paper, uniform in size with the large paper Parchment Series. It is especially adapted for the purpose of extra illustration.

Rawlinson's

Monarchies and Ancient Egypt.

Students' Edition, Complete in seven Volumes, arranged as follows:

Vols. 1, 2, and 3, The Five Great Monarchies.

Vol. 4, The Sixth Great Monarchy.

Vol. 5. The Seventh Great Monarchy.

Vols. 6 & 7, History of Egypt.

It is printed from the same plates as the regular edition (Price $24.00), and contains all the plates, maps, etc., of that edition. Price, for the set of seven volumes, $9.00.

Containing 4000 pages, over 1000 wood-engravings, beside maps and colored plates.

Well printed on good paper, and neatly and substantially bound. In every way a good library edition of these valuable standard books.

* Having purchased the plates of the History of Ancient Egypt, we are able to add it to our Students' Edition of the Ancient Monarchies, making one of the cheapest and most desirable editions of a standard book offered, even in this era of cheap books.

THE EMPIRE OF HITTITES.

By WILLIAM WRIGHT, B.A., D.D. With Decipherment of Hittite Inscriptions, by Prof. A H Sayce, LL.D., a Hinis Map, by Col. Sir Charles Wilson, F.R.S., etc., and Captain Conder R.E., and a Complete Set of Hittite Inscriptions. Revised by Mr. W. H. Rylands, F.S.A. 1 vol., 8vo, cloth, $6 co.

The object of this book is to restore the Empire of the Hittites to its rightful position in Secular History, and thus to confirm the scattered references to the Hittites in Sacred History. As soon as the key was found to the hieroglyphics of Egypt and the cuneiforms of Assyria, a mighty Hittite people began to emerge. They appeared clarky as a nation of warriors in constant conflict with the great monarchies on their borders, but in almost every detailther our responded to the Hittites of the Bible.

ONLY GENUINE ISSUE.

1 New and Superb Illustrated Edition of the Masterpiece of Laurence Sterne,

A Sentimental Journey

Phrough France and Italy. Illustrated with Plates and Cuts from Designs by Maurice Leloir. Drawn Expressly for this Edition. Consisting of a Portrait of Sterne and Twelve full-page Plates, reproduced from the original sketches of the artist by the photogravure process of Messrs. Goupil & Co., printed in tints, and upwards of Two Hundred Engravings on Wood, in the form of Vignettes, Head-pieces, Initial Letters, and Culs-de-Lampe, with numerous others scattered through the text. A most elegant Volume, carefully printed in Paris by M. Motteroz, on heavy vellum paper. In Colombier 8vo (9x12½), cloth extra. Edition of 1,000 copies, $12.50.

In its mechanical features the volume is as nearly perfect as the most liberal expenditure of time and means will attaan. The paper, of exceptional quality, has been manufactured expressly with a view to securing the best results from the blocks. The press-work is from the office of M. C. Motteroz of Paris, who has justly attained a high rank for artistic primating. The full-page plates are carefully printed in colors of various tints, adding an additional charm to the volume. The cover, also printed in colors, is a veritable chef d'anore, both of design and execution.

By Subscription Only,

Sterne's Sentimental Journey.

EDITION DE GRAND LUXE.

Printed throughout on heavy Japan paper of imperial manufacture, with two sets of the full-page illustrations, proofs before letters, in different tints.

Each of the hundred copies has a peculiar interest added to it by the addition of an original water-color sketch by M. Leloir—on the false title of the volume—differing in each copy and serving as a distinctive mark of ownership. All the copies of this edition have an emboitage of satin, and are enclosed in a neat box. A few copies only remain for sale.

SHAPIRA'S LATEST.

He-She-It. Egyptian Court Chronicle,

B.C. 1302. A veracious and Truthsul Version Preserved and Transcribed for general use by the Peerless Poet Laureate of his late majesty Rhampsinnit III. Memphis Pyramid, Row No. 36. Fifth floor. Closed on Saturdays, 2 P.M.

The marvellous imitation of antiquity with which the book is got up has puzzled many connoisseurs; its time-stained pages and sackcloth cover, leather-thong clasps, corroded seal and ragged, dilapidated edges have frequently called forth the wonder of experts, and at a certain recent conversazione even deceived a roomfull of sages.

Bound in sackcloth. Imp. 8vo, $2.50.

A Fresh Supply of that Exquisite Volume,

A Day in the Life of a Child.

UNE JOURNÉE d'ENFANT. Compositions inédites par Adrien Marie. 20 superb plates reproduced in fac-simile of the Artist's Sketches by the Heliogravure Process of Dujardin, with an Introduction by Edward Strahan. Small folio, tastefully bound, $8.00.

The bright and charming work of Adrien Marie, "Une Journée d'Enfant," having had a magnificent success in France, is now presented, with the gloss of novelty still upon it, to American child-lovers. What parent, what infant could indeed resist an appeal so delicately true to the life, so adapted to the warmest recognition of every body? Fami y joys and cares are alike the world over, and the hundred inmittable touches which reveal the instincts and caprices of childhood will make these pictures as obvious to a transatlantic public as to a French one. There never was a series of child sketches which went more straight to the heart.

Salon Exhibition, 1884.

EXPOSITION DES BEAUX-ARTS, with twenty-four large full-page plates, and upwards of on hundred reproductions by the Photogravure Process scattered through the text, exhibiting the most notable pictures of the year, all of which are printed in tints, with descriptive text printed on heavy Holland paper. I volume Colombier 8vo, extra cloth, gilt, $20.00. Paris, 1884.

ONE YEAR'S SKETCH-BOOK.

By IRENE E. JEROME.

An original series of illustrations from nature, comprising forty-six full-page pictures (9½ x 14 inches) of great power and beauty, engraved in the best manner and at a great expense. Space in this Catalogue allows us to give but a fragment of an illustration. The illustrations are full of life and color. Natural beauties are taken from all the year round. Scenes of Spring, Summer, Autumn, and Winter, in land-scape and water sketches, by flashes of sunlight and through straggling moonbeams, in every variety of shape, shade, and color, mingle with gems of poetry applicable to the season. The volume is elegant's bound in black and gold, $6.00; Turkey morocco, $12.00.

AN ARTISTIC TREASURE. Saley (Income) Hille Shill shall lead them."

Wherein may be chronicled by the loving mother the story of the events, happenings, and cuningness attending the progress of "My Baby," as a memento for grown-up days. Designed and llustrated by Annie F. Cox. Printed in colors. Bound in elegant style. Cloth and gold, $3.75; Turkey morocco, $7.50.

Behold, there cometh a royal guest! Let the house be set in order, and the glad welcome ready. Herein shall be written the faithful history of the kingdom of the child.

Each day sees some rare unfolding of the sweet young life, the dawning of a new intelligence.

"He ruleth by the right divine
Of helplessness, so lately born
In purple chambers of the morn,
As sovereign over thee and thine."

"He speaketh not; and yet there lies A conversation in his eyes."

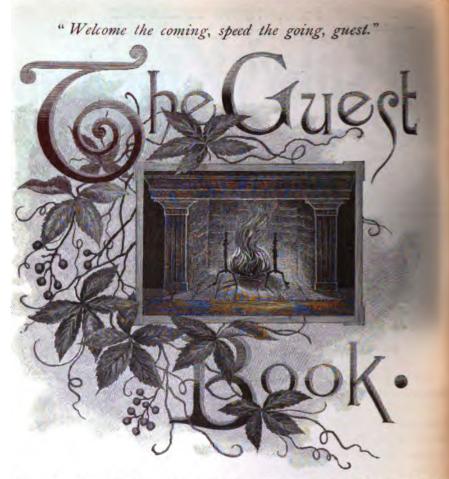

What quaint words of wisdom fall from the baby lips when the soul within begins to find expression in our common tongue! It is said of Mary, the mother of the child Jesus, that she "kept all these sayings in her heart," — a type of motherhood since the world began.

Let this, then, be the treasury wherein shall be kept all the precious records, the baby's journal of all the baby days,—

"Love's stories, written in love's richest book."

This is not a book for the particular amusement of the baby while a baby, but is a dainty diary in which the mother records the birth, the weight from time to time, the first step, the first tooth, the gifts, the first attempts at speech, and all the other wonderful events of babyhood, for her own gratification and the future benefit of the hero or heroine of the pictorial biography.

The illustrations being in gold and colors, we are unable to reproduce a specimen here. The above cut represents, in black, the titlepage, reduced.

In which may be recorded the coming and the going of guests, with pages for autographs, incidents, and sketches pertaining to pleasant visits, social circles, and other gatherings.

A companion to "Baby's Kingdom." Invented and illustrated by ANNIE F. Cox. Printed in colors. In rich binding. Cloth and gold, $3.75; Turkey morocco, $7.50.

The idea, which is original with the artist, is a happy one. The illustrations, in colors and gold, are many of them gems of art; all are emblematical of "good cheer," "Thanksgiving," "Christmas," and hale and hearty mottoes of welcome. Here the host and hostess, or the guests themselves, may record arrival, departure, and all incidents of interest. Laid upon the table handy for callers, it will be a great incentive to lively conversation and pleasant reminder of mutual friends. Such a book has long been needed, and it will undoubtedly become as familiar in households as Autograph and Photograph Albums or Birthday Books.

Being printed in colors, we are unable to give specimens of the illustrations. The capabove represents a reduced illustration of the titlepage.

OF FLOWERS AND JEWELS FOR HER ADORNMENT.

With original designs, printed in colors, by ELEANOR W. TALBOT. 4to. Cloth, full ilt, $5.00; Turkey morocco, $10.00.

The designs for this elaborate work being executed in colors, we are unable to present n this catalogue a specimen of the illustrations. The above cut is a representation of he cover, reduced to one fourth of the original size. The illustrations, in colors and gold, are unique and artistic. Nothing more chaste, beautiful, and original for a lover's gift, a wedding present, or a holiday offering has ever been produced.

THE FAVORITE ILLUSTRATED BALLAD SERIES.

Edited by GEORGE M. BAKER. Bound in new styles, with chaste and beautiful designs in colors and gold. Per volume, $2.00. Comprising:—

BALLADS OF BEAUTY.

"The volume contains forty full-page illustrations, nearly all of which are separingly charming. The poems have been selected chiefly with reference to their gaze and beauty, and are as finished a collection as one seldom meets with."—Hartford i.a.

The accompanying cut is a miniature representation of the front cover, which includes a beautiful picture in colors, set in panel; matched on the back cover by an equally appropriate design representing a rustic beast arranging a bouquet in a flower-garden.

BALLADS OF BRAVERY.

With Full-page Illustrations and a Fine Selection of Heroic Verse.

"Among which are, 'Curfew must not ring to-night,' 'The Glove and the Lions,'
'The Beggar Maid,' Hervé Riel,' 'Othello's Story,' 'Marmion and Douglas,' 'Sir Galahad,' 'Excelsior,' 'John Maynard,' &c. One every way more desirable in literary and mechanical beauty it would be difficult to find," — New Covenant.

The design for this cover includes on the front a scene from Tennyson's "Idyls of the King," from Archer's celebrated picture, "King Arthur and the Mystic Sword." The back cover has in panel a fine picture of that early battle of the American Revolution, the fight at Lexington.

BALLADS OF HOME.

"Household poetry is always acceptable, and Mr. Baker has gathered into one of the most attractive gift-books of the season, some of the choicest poems adapted for the fireside. The paper upon which the volume is printed is fine, the press-work clex. mit the forty full-page illustrations that embellish it are beautifully executed, and the binding is elegant."—New York Sunday Times.

The panel-picture on cover, here represented in miniature, is "Fate in Apple-Parings." The girl is in the act of whirling the fateful paring around her head, while her lover anxiously waits the formation of a letter when it falls to the floor. It is matched on the back by a beautiful "Home. Sweet Home" scene, in which the old New England homestead, the farmer returning, and the wife in the open door are conspicuous features.

GEMS OF GENIUS.

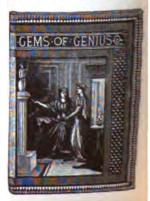

FAMOUS PAINTERS AND THEIR PICTURES.

"One great merit of all Trowbridge's stories is their unfailing dramatic fusion and flow. Much more famous writers in this field could be named who cannot lay claim to genius so thoroughly plastic and sympathetic. His characters are all vitally conceived, and hence his page is essentially dramatic, —full of action and the throb of real life, as distinguished from novels that are mainly narrative and descriptive. The interest of his stories is not at all in what he, the author, has to say, but in what his personages do and say. It is not his wit, but their wit, that makes us laugh." — Scribner's Monthly.

THE

[Of books in print July 1, 1876. 2 vols., royal 4to, $40.]

SUPPLEMENT

OF BOOKS ISSUED JULY 1, 1876, TO JULY 1, 1884.

NOW READY: Author-and-title Alphabet.

A — IRVING.

The SUPPLEMENT, which is a complete work in itself, includes titles of over 20,000 books, natered in the first part by title and author, and in the second by subject. The volume, when completed, will probably be of about the size of the second volume of the CATALOGUE, exceeding 450 pages; the price will be, to present subscribers, $10; after publication, probably $12 m $15. The edition will be limited to 1250 copies and no plates will be made.

Less than 50 copies remain unsold of the AMERICAN CATALOGUE itself, now priced at $40. The price will probably be raised at an early date to $50 or $75 on the few remaining copies.

Five-yearly supplements hereafter will enhance the value of the original work and of the first supplement. Every owner of a private library and book-collector, as well as every book-seller and librarian, should have this invaluable key to American books.

BOOKS FOR THE YOUNG.

A Guide for Parents and Children.

SECOND EDITION, WITH REVISIONS TO DATE.

Compiled by Miss C. M. HEWINS, Librarian of the Hartford Library Association.

"Meets most admirably the demand for carefully selected tists, and contains valuable and interesting counsel."—W. E. Foster.

"By far the best catalogue of books of this kind that has ever appeared."—S. S. Green.

"Deserves more extended praise than we have space for. It will bring joy to the hearts of hundreds of parents."— Nation.

"For them (the parents), as well as for librarians and teachers, the book will serve an excellent purpose, for it is by far the best guide that has been printed, and there is sothing in it that is not of excellent and interesting quality."—Boston Transcript.

"A little manual long needed. A classified list of good books is given, with indications as to the age and sex to which they are best suited. The list is prefaced by hints as to they are best suited. The list is prefaced by hints as to how children should be taught the right use of books, a sote on good reading in English and American history for children, and a 'symposium' on children's books, containing interesting extracts from many sources. Miss Hewins may safely be accepted as an authority and guide by parents and buyers of children's books."—Good Literature.

A Handy and Useful Book for Book-sellers and Book-buyers.

JUST PUBLISHED:

A Modern Proteus;

OR,

A LIST OF BOOKS PUBLISHED UNDER MORE THAN ONE TITLE.

By JAMES L. WHITNEY,
BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY.

At the last meeting of the American Library Association Mr. Whitney read a paper upon the reprinting of books under changed titles. The list of such books presented at that time has since been largely extended and numbers over nine hundred titles. It is now issued in book form at the request of many librarians.

Copies can be obtained at the office of the Library Journal, Nos. 31 and 32 Park Row, New York, (Trübner & Co., London,) or of booksellers. Price, 75 cents.

"Book-buyers owe a large debt of gratitude to Mr. J. L. Whitney for his extraordinary 'List of Books with Changed Titles.'"—Nation.

THE AMERICAN BOOK-TRADE JOURNAL.

The Publishers' Weekly, established in 1872, with which was incorporated the America Literary Gauette and Publishers' Circular (established in 1852), by purchase from Mr. George W. Childs, is recognized as the independent representative of the publishing and bookselling interests in the United States.

The central feature of the paper, that makes it an indispensable aid to the trade, to libraries, and to literary people, is its Bibliographical Department. Every possible facility of reference is afforded by a combination of methods which records the books, by the week, the month, the season, and the year, under the author, the publisher, the title, the subject, and the class. It is, acknowledged that no other journal, at home or abroad, supplies as practical and satisfactory a record of the publications of its country.

The bibliographical department includes:

1. A "Weekly Record" of all new American publications and reprints, giving their full titles (according to the raise of the American Library Association), with place and date of publication, publisher's name, size, number of pages, and prica; and also descriptive notes of books received. This first and practically the official record is arranged alphabetically by the authors or titles, and for ready reference is placed in the same accessible position in each number.

2. A weekly "Order List," being brief-title entries, with prices, of the "Weekly Record," arranged alphabetically by the publishers. The object of this list is to present at a glance the simultaneous issues of certain publishers, and is ease time in the making up of orders.

weekly Necord," arranged alphaletically by the publishers. The object of this list is to present at a glance the simultaneous issues of certain publishers, and is save time in the making up of orders.

3. A monthly "Index to the Weekly Record," being short-title entries, with the publisher's name and the simultaneous ranged alphabetically by the authors, with references from the titles or catchwords, and from the swind. With each entry is given also the number of the "Weekly Record" containing the full-title entry and note.

4. A monthly "Class Symposis." grouping the works of the month under such heads as Biography, Descriptors. Education, Fiction, Fine Arts, History, Law, Literature, Medical Science, Physical and Mathematical Sciences, Poeny and the Drama, Political and Social Science. Theology and Religion, etc.

5. A semi-annual classified list of Forthcoming Publications, given in the Spring and Fall Announcement number, in which also the announced books are more fully described under the name of the publishers, arranged alphabetically.

6. An annual Nadex to the books of the year, advertised by the more prominent publishers in the so-called Assessal Summary Number, which generally is published in the last week of January. In this number is also given a classified summary of the more prominent publications of the year,

7. Regular Litts of the Scaton, published as follows: A complete priced catalogue of Educational Books, in July: a priced list of the Holiday Books and prominent Juvenile Books of the year, in November; a supplementary list of ave Educational Books, in February; a list of Guide and Summer Books, in May.

8. Quarterly lists of the more prominent New English Books.

9. Semi-monthly lists of the more prominent New English Books.

20. Special Bibliographies. The timely bibliography, now in course of publication, is "Literary Property: a custogue of books and authors relating to literary property (copyright, international copyright, and kindred subject, by Thorvald Solberg.

The Literary Department includes comprehensive intelligence as to books forthcoming and publishing movements, at home and abroad, gathered with the aid of representatives in other cities; editorial discussions on book and trade subjects, as copyright, postal questions, book production and manufacture, etc.; original contributions and representative extracts on like topics; topical "cues" or references to bibliographical sources or courses of reading and study; journalistic notes; business notes; literary and trade notes, etc.

The Advertising Department is by no means a subordinate feature in a journal chiefly devoted to books. In the Publishers' Weekly, indeed, it is so representative of the publishing enterprises of the day that it becomes an essential supplement to the other departments.

A minor but practical and convenient feature is the "Books Wanted" column, giving subscribers the privilege of a free insertion of five lines in each issue.

Terms, $3.20 per year, 10 cents per number. Sample copies furnished on application.

WILL PUBLISH, WEDNESDAY, DEC. 10:

RALPH WALDO EMERSON.

OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES. Vol. VII, in "American Men of Letters." With fine Steel Portrait. I vol., 16mo, gilt top, $1.25.

The public is justified in anticipating this book with remarkable interest. The brief address made by Mr. Holmes a meeting of the Massachusetts Historical Society soon after Mr. Emerson's death evinced a most intimate knowledge his character and works, and a noble appreciation of both. With such a subject, the Autocrat of the Breakfast Table st be even wiser and more engaging than ever before, if that is possible.

JOHN ADAMS.

r JOHN T. MORSE, Jr., author of Lives of John Quincy Adams and Thomas Jefferson. Vol. XI. in "American Statesmen" Series. 1 vol., 16mo, gilt top, $1.25.

The excellence of Mr. Morse's previous volumes in this series guarantees a book of great interest on John Adams, o is one of the most striking figures in American political history.

Professor Shaler is exceptionally qualified to write the history of Kentucky, being a native of the State, familiar with annals, and able to present in due proportion their various distinctive features and events.

ORIENTAL RELIGIONS AND THEIR RELATION TO UNIVERSAL RELIGION.

ERSIA. By SAMUEL JOHNSON. With an introduction by O. B. FROTHINGHAM. 1 vol., 8vo, $5.

This volume completes the great work to which Mr. Johnson devoted himself with singular patience and energy. His an contemplated a careful and sympathetic survey of the great religious systems of the East—of India, China and mia. The first two volumes have been before the public for several years, and have won, from those critics most comstant justly to estimate their merits, very hearty commendation. This, like the two other volumes, is a most valuable metribution to the study of Comparative Religion, and is a work of surpassing interest.

TOMPKINS AND OTHER STORIES.

у Р. Deming, author of "Adirondack Stories." I vol., 18mo. Little Classic style.

A book of unusually interesting short stories, told with remarkable simplicity and sympathy.

NOTES IN SEASON.

VAN ANTWERP, BRAGG & Co. have purchased the entire list of school books formerly published by Jones Brothers & Co., of Cincinnati, comprising Ridpath's Histories of the United States and English Grammar, Milne's Arithmetics and Algebra, Bigsby's Philology, Forbriger's Patent Drawing Tablets, etc., and Smith's Music Reader.

R. WORTHINGTON announces a new book eatiled "A Modern Midas," by Maurice Jokai the celebrated Hungarian novelist. In its original tongue the novel has been very popular for its originality and forceful style. As a wivid representation of Hungarian life and char_ acter it has an additional value for American readers. In Europe Jokai has a reputation as the ablest and most popular of the Hungarian writers of fiction, but this is the first of his books that has been translated here. The work of translation has been admirably done.

FORDS, HOWARD & HULBERT announce that on Dec. 1 the price of Judge Tourgeé's new book, "An Appeal to Cæsar," was raised to book, "An Appeal to Cæsar," was raised to $1.25. They are now selling the third edition of 2500 since publication day, Oct. 11, which, considering the fact that the book is not a novel, but one of hard facts and figures, with arguments based upon them, is pretty good evidence that the book is a live one, on a live topic. This house has also brought out Dr. Henry C. McCook's "Tenants of an Old Farm." Dr. McCook's reputation as a scientist is worldwide in his specialty of insect life, and his animated narrative and lucid, attractive style have combined to make a delightful and instructive book. The illustrations from nature are correct and plentiful, and of course Beard's comicalities are full of suggestive characteriza-The book is handsomely printed.

D. APPLETON & Co. publish to-day a volume entitled "The Hundred Greatest Men," containing fine steel portraits, accompanied by biographies, of the one hundred greatest men of history. The volume has a general introduction by Ralph Waldo Emerson, and introductions to the various sections by Matthew Arnold, H. Taine, Max Müller, R. Renan, Noah Porter, A. P. Stanley, H. Helmholtz, Jas. A. Froude, and Prof. John Fiske. They have also just ready Dr. William A. Hammond's new novel "Doctor Grattan," in which he is said to have "availed himself of his great experience in mental disorders which often lead to incidents of the most romantic and surprising kind;" "The Cruise of the Alice May in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and Adjacent Waters," by S. G. W. Benjamin, with some seventy illustrations depicting the incidents of the voyage and the places visited; and the fifth volume of the revised edition of Bancroft's "History of the United States." The sixth and concluding volume of the latter work will be published shortly.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just ready "The Poems of Sidney Lanier," edited by his wife, and containing a memorial by William Hayes Ward, who shows a hearty appreciation of Lanier's rare artistic nature. The poems in this volume appeared in our best literary journals from 1867 to 1884. This house has also just issued in two volumes the "Correspondence and Diaries of John Wilson Crocker," the eminent statesman and author, edited by Louis J. Jennings; Rev. Henry J. Van Dyke's "Realities of Religion," which he dedicates to "men and women of every class and creed scattered throughout the world, who have felt with pain and hunger of the heart, this craving for reality in religion;" Julia C. Dorr's "Bermuda," an idyl of the Summer Islands, including also the article called "Bermudian Days" that first appeared in the Atlantic Monthly in 1883; and the eighth volume of "Stories by American Authors," containing "The Brigade Commander," by J. W. De Forest; "Split Zephyr," by Henry A. Beers; "Zerviah Hope," by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps; "The Life Magnet," by Alvey A. Adee; and "Osgood's Predicament," by Elizabeth D. B. Stoddard.

The front page has an appropriate poem by Thackeray, entitled "Fairy days." The illustrations, by Miss Emmet, are a very enjoyable feature of the book; in fact, even the cover seems to be designed with the view of pleasing, and has quaint and fanciful figures scattered over it.

Hatfield, Edwin F., D.D. The poets of the church; a series of biographical sketches of hymn-writers; with notes on their hymns. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1884].

N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1884]. 4+717 p. O. cl.. $3.

This series of biographical sketches of hymn-writers of all countries and all ages, was the last contribution of Dr. Hatfield to hymnology—a subject that deeply interested him during his ministry of over half a century. They are arranged in alphabetical order, are written in a very engaging manner, and all contain information and notes regarding the most celebrated hymns of the subjects of the sketche. A very complete index of hymns. A handsomely printed work on fine paper, with wide margins, top gilt, but otherwise uncut edges.

The design of the present work (intended as a text-book for schools and academies of all grades), has been "to present, in concise and plain language, and in the light of the latest research and investigation, the life-histories of the various groups that constitute the animal kingdom." Technical terms have only been employed where there was no simple equivalent, and the long tables of classification and formulæ, that can only be understood after a complete mastery of biological knowledge, have been omitted, as tending to divert the attention of the student from the real issue. President White, of Cornell University, suggested to Mr. Corson the translation of this book, and its remodeling as a text-book for schools and colleges in the study of ethics. Is structors in moral science have often expressed a desire for an elementary and practical text-book on the subject. The "scholarly and methodical arrangement, the clear and direct reasoning, the felicitious examples and illustrations' make Janet's work singularly interesting. It clearly teaches man's duties, and the application of the moral law to these duties. Paul Janet is a religious moralist; he cannot conceive morals without religion. He holds with Kant that practical faith in the existence of God is the postulate of the moral law. The two things exist or fall together. He makes due the law of duty to the comprehension of every logical mind. Mrs. Corson's large experience as a teacher has specially fitted her to make a practical text-book, and her minasts knowledge of her mother-tongue and finished style in the English language, enable her to render the noble thought of Janet accurately, and at the same time to make them graceful and fluent English reading. rect reasoning, the felicitious examples and illustrations

This autobiography tells the story of Dr. Sims's life up to the year 1864. For twenty years it has lain by, but there have been no additions made. An appendix gives many letters to his wife and some of the chief speeches made by eminent physicians upon the death of the great surgeon from pneumonia, in 1883. Contains a full account of the founding of the Woman's Hospital in New York City, and many details of practice throughout the world. The style is more technical than is quite suitable for general reading. Many leading physicians of the world are sketched with a sure and fair hand. Dr. Sim's private life was happy, his health was always delicate. He was an enthusiast in his profession.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT AGAIN.

THE election being over, and both political parties being relieved of the necessity of "fighting for position," Congress ought now to be able to accomplish some business legislation. The short session gives ample time for work, if not for talk. There is the further advantage that many measures come before the present session in an advanced stage, while the next long session will be that of a new Congress, at which all legislation must commence de

We urged last year that the Dorsheimer bill should be put in such shape as to obviate the opposition to its passage, and we were very glad to be able to show that the sentiment of publishers in general was very strongly in its favor. If this bill can be shaped and pushed so as to obtain success, we should be most glad to see that done. The President in his message has expressed himself definitely in favor of international copyright, and although Mr. Dorsheimer has not yet determined whether the prospects of success are sufficient to justify pushing his bill, we trust the opportunity will not be thrown away. It is to be hoped that the mistakes of the previous agitation for this bill, in which publishers were told to keep "hands off" the entire question, will not be repeated at this session, but that all interests that can be marshalled in behalf of an adequate measure will be enrolled in its support.

Mr. Warner, in his letter of last year, voicing apparently the sentiment of the American Copyright League, took the position that publishers should not act in this matter, because copyright is solely an authors' question. Those who recognize an inherent property-right in brain-work will accept this position as, theoretically, entirely true. But practically, the opinion and influence of publishers have to be considered in the solution of international copyright in this country. Several publishers in Philadelphia and Boston, who are strong pretectionists, have so far opposed international copyright strongly and effectively, because they looked upon it, we think mistakenly, as incompatible with the protective system.

What was called the Harper plan for international copyright, a draft treaty modified from the basis suggested by Lord Clarendon, was an attempt to solve the problem in view of this division of opinion in the publishing trade and elsewhere, and in view of the further fact that even our domestic law, like that of England, accepted certain limitations of time and registration upon the inherent property-right of an author. A good deal of mnecessary abuse was heaped upon this attempt, which commanded the support of many authors and other believers in property-right as a practicable and practical step forward, especially since certain details on which there was much division of opinion would be subject to discussion in the international conference that The American support of it was proposed. was made lukewarm in great measure by the opposition of English publishers, who certainly had much less right than American publishers to "meddle" in the matter, and who overlooked in their anxiety to hold our market the fact that the proposal was meant for the benefit of English authors rather than of English publishers. Such a treaty might have proved after all the most effective first step toward a satisfactory international copyright.

The Dorsheimer bill, which came next did not fully meet either interest. It did not reconize inherent property-right, and, in its original form, by limiting copyright to twenty-five years within the author's life, it denied to him that insurance for his survivors which is a chief good of copyright, and to the publisher any safe basis for business investment. But it was understood later on that its promoter would consent to certain practical modifications, and we trust it may, in its new form, have the attention of the present Congress.

What those most interested in copyright should work for, is as much copyright as they can get. It is not wise for authors to refuse to take an instalment because they cannot get all. If the Dorsheimer bill should not show good signs of success, we venture to suggest the introduction of a measure which shall make a square issue on the portions really in question, without endangering the whole bill. As, for instance, a measure drafted to put in proper shape the following points:

Sec. 1. The privileges of copyright to be extended to foreign authors or their assigns, for esame periods (including renewal) and on the ne conditions as to native authors, subject to provisions or limitations hereinafter set th.

Sec. 2. Such copyright to be granted only on rks whose first edition is published in the intry of origin on or after July 1, 1885.

sec. 3. Such copyright to be granted only en claimed, and declared by registration at ashington, prior to publication in any country, payment of the usual fee.

sec. 4. Such copyright to be granted only to citizens of such governments as shall extend privileges of copyright to American citizens, the satisfaction of the President, as declared executive proclamation.

ec. 5. Such copyright to be granted only on rks manufactured in the United States within months from the date of first publication in r country, and no importation of copies or tions of foreign manufacture to be permitted tept by consent of the author or his assigns. The first three sections would seem to be esitial to any just scheme for international copyht. They are squarely on the same basis as r present domestic copyright. Sec. 2 avoids post facto interference with publishers' investints honestly made under the old lack of law. e objections that the American people will tgive up the privileges to which the "cheap raries" have accustomed them, is met, aside m the question of justice, by the fact that the iole body of past literature is already and will atinue to be accessible in that shape. Sec. 3 quires from the foreign as from the native auor only the minimum of cost and trouble necary to "materialize" and secure by registry inherent property-right in creation by the ain, while it enables the publisher, the middlein of the transaction, to search title and justihis proposed investment, and does not preat prompt republication by uncertainty as to tether a right has been entered in a foreign pital, or is to be asserted at some indefinite ture time. Sec. 4 is a concession to the conlerable proportion of legislators and other ople who insist on reciprocity, and are not lling to see that it is well to do a good ing whether your neighbor does it or not. Sec. 5 is, of course, the battle-ground; the issue

Sec. 5 is, of course, the battle-ground; the issue ould be joined by the authors, who would move r its rejection. It would be supported by rong interests, largely identified with the idea promoting manufactures by legislation. These terests are powerful, because they are backed y the whole protective system. They would ery likely carry their point—but authors would no worse off, and would certainly be better off an before. Objection will be made that any arrender of principle postpones justice indefinitely. As a matter of fact, nothing is surrendered; the question of permanent copyright, as the result of inherent property-right, can better be fought out first in our domestic law, which at present denies it. And "justice" would be all' the nearer by reason of such a first step.

We do not undertake to disagree with thosewho hold that the tariff and not the copyright bill is the place for manufacturers to put in their claims. But they must recognize the force of opinions as well as of facts, and see also the hampering of American publishers by present tariff conditions, in which their material is taxed higher than their product. Otherwise, we would say freely, that if English authors chose to sell both markets to English publishers they could doso. Americans would still have their fair chance; they can, after all, best handle their own market. And if English publishers desired to set the precedent of buying both markets together, the-American publisher could take his time at that.. The system prevalent in America of paying a copyright royalty of ten per cent on the retail price fixed by the publisher, is so much superior to the English system or no-system, that many English authors would gladly deal with Americanoffers for both markets. Few English publishers have kept friends with their authors so steadfastly as to make "complete editions" possible.

We plead, in brief, for amity between authors and publishers in the interest of any step toward international copyright in which they may generally agree. We should be glad to have the views, both of authors and publishers, as to present practicable steps. And we believe further that both parties will agree to take the final step after the results of the first are seen.

THE Postmaster-General has made a number of recommendations in his report which will commend themselves both to the public at large and to business men who make especial use of the mails. Especially important are the proposals for extending the two cent limit to a full ounce, for making carrier postage one cent, and for the proposed immediate delivery of letters in the cities for a ten cent stamp. What is always needed, however, in this department is not so much liberal new laws as more liberal interpretation of old laws in the interests of the public.

ALTHOUGH the extension of the cholera has caused a partial renewal of the quarantine on rags, the new step is much more wisely taken than the old and sweeping prohibition. The diminution of the disease in Paris will, let us hope, authorize the removal of even the present restriction at an early day.

In connection with the copyright question, the continuation of Mr. Solberg's valuable bibliography of copyright, especially under United States, will be found especially interesting. We trust to find enough interest shown in this list to authorize its issue in book form.

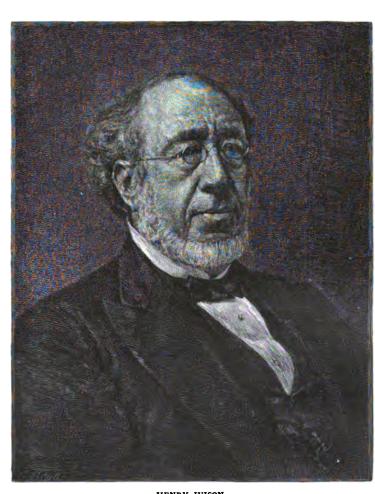

DESPITE the dulness of trade and the lateness of the season because of the Presidential campaign, we were able to present a Christmas number larger than ever before, and on the exact day of publication, though this was a week later than in 1883. We are delivering the imprint editions at the same date as last year. A few orders can yet be filled for imprint editions. if telegraphed to us at once, and we believe booksellers will find them especially advantageous in these dull times to induce purchasers to spend their money in books. We are also sending out the second part of the new American catalogue, completing the first alphabet, and giving the trade the benefit of this useful tool during the busy season.

OBITUARY.

HENRY IVISON.

HENRY IVISON, the founder of the publishing house of Ivison, Blakeman, Taylor & Co., died of pneumonia at his residence in New York City on Wednesday, Nov. 26. Mr. Ivison was born in Glasgow, Scotland, in 1808. His parents emigrated to this country in search of a fortune in 1820, but soon returned to their native land, leaving their twelve-year old son apprenticed to William Williams of Utica, N. Y., who was then the largest bookseller in the western part of the State. Mr. Williams took the boy into his own family and thoroughly taught him his business. In 1830, Mr. Williams was asked by a friend whether he could recommend a reliable young man to open a book-store in Auburn; the professors and students of Auburn Theological Seminary being desirous of having a well-kept store in that town. Six months later, Mr. Ivison, with the pecuniary assistance of the friend who suggested the enterprise, began business for himself in Auburn, and by industry and business talent of a rare order succeeded in building up for himself a very large trade. Between the years 1835 and 1845, the question of education and the public school system, received much attention from the leading men in the country, Mr. Ivison was deeply interested, especially in its bearing upon school books. He had made the acquaintance of Mark H. Newman, a successful publisher of New York City, who, after repeated efforts, had accomplished the publication of the first connected and graded series of spelling and reading books. Mr. Newman induced

Mr. Ivison to leave Auburn and enter into parnership with him under the firm name of Mark H. Newman & Co. In 1852 the firm became Newman & Ivison but the senior partner died during the year, leaving the business entirely in Mr. Ivison's hands. In a few years' time Mr. Ivison bought out the entire interest of the concern which then already numbered such authors a Thompson, McElligott. Fasquelle, Woodbuy. Wells, Bradbury and Hastings, and took in a partner Mr. H. F. Phinney of Cooperstown, NY. a son-in-law of James Fenimore Cooper, and an experienced bookseller. The firm became Ivison & Phinney, later Ivison, Phinney, Blakeman & Co., and finally Ivison, Blakema, Taylor and Co., under which name it rask as one of the largest school-book publishing oncerns in the world. In the spring of 1822 Mr. Ivison retired from the active business of the firm, transferring his interest to his son David B. Ivison, who had been in the partnership since 1863. Since then Mr. Ivison has cotinued to visit the business almost daily during the winter months, but the summers have been spent at his country seat in Stockbridge, Mass. At the time of Mr. Ivison's retirement, one of his partners wrote: "Mr. Ivison's hale and vigorous age gives promise of long years of hearty enjoyment of the comforts and compensations of life. Mr. Ivison's actual retirement from business has been gradual, and he has left his impress so deeply upon the character of his house, that his retirement will make no perceptible difference in its policy or in its relations to the business and educational public. To his partners, the change means both more and less than would appear to any one not intimately acquainted with the firm. It means more in that it is the formal sundering of one of the most delightful business relations that could possibly be conceived; and it means less in that they are assured that, so long as Mr. Ivison lives, they can on any and every occasion avail themselves of his strong support and wise counsel." And on the same occasion the New York Times said: "Among the characteristics of Mr. Ivison's business life, the finest qualities of hand and heart were ever conspicuous. To his partners and employés he was like the head of a family, and his sunny influence pervaded every department of the concern." Mr. Ivison was an active member of the Presbyterian Church and a faithful worker in many worthy charities. At the time of his death he was a member of Dr. John Hall's congregation. Mr. Ivison leaves a widow, one son and two married daughters. He would have celebrated his serenty-sixth birthday on Christmas day. The portrait which we give elsewhere was made a ten years since.

HE PRESIDENT ON COPYRIGHT AND ART DUTIES.

(From President Arthur's Message to Congress.)
THE question of securing to authors, comsers, and artists copyright privileges in this untry in return for reciprocal rights abroad one that may justly challenge your attendant is true that conventions will be necessage for fully accomplishing this result, but the extent of the president of the pre ry for fully accomplishing this result, but til Congress shall by statute fix the extent which foreign holders of copyright shall be re privileged, it has been deemed inadviste to negotiate such conventions. For this uson the United States were not represented the recent conference at Berne.

Much anxiety has lately been displayed by rious European governments, and especially the Government of Italy, for the abolition our import duties upon works of art. It is il to consider whether the present discrimition in favor of the productions of American ists abroad is not likely to result, as they emselves seem very generally to believe it iy, in the practical exclusion of our painters d sculptors from the rich fields for observant, study and labor which they have hitherto joyed.

A NOVEL feature of the Magazine of American History this month, is the beginning of a series of interesting papers on "Political Americanisms," by Col. Charles L. Norton. The present paper reaches only to the word "Bourbon." The series on "Unsuccessful Candidates for the Presidency" is concluded.

The Book Worm is the title of a small sixteenmo pamphlet, published monthly by John B. Alden, 393 Pearl St., N. Y. It contains chiefly advertisements of his own publications—the reading matter portion being made up of chapters from books either just published by him or in press. The first issue contains in addition to the other matter a page of aphorisms from Seneca, Montaigne and others.

Shakesperiana, the able magazine devoted exclusively to Shakespeare literature, published by the Leonard Scott Publishing Co., of Philadelphia, enters upon its second year, we are glad to learn, with the most flattering assurances of permanent success. The value of the magazine is to be further increased by the addition of a "College Department" with full reports of the more valuable lectures delivered in the colleges of Europe and America, prize essays, examination papers, etc., which will place much hitherto inacessible matter in the hands of the students.

The Christmas issue of The Book Buyer, published by Charles Scribner's Sons, is a creditable one in every particular. It contains contributions by Donald G. Mitchell, J. D. Champlin, Jr., W. M. Laffan, R. H. Stoddart, Roger Riordan, G. P. Lathrop, H. H. Boyesen, H. C. Bunner, F. R. Stockton and other well known writers, and is very fully illustrated with a selection from the leading books of the year, and a frontispiece engraved especially for this issue by G. Kruell. The technical part—paper, presswork and general get up—is fully up to the high standard of its literary matter.

The Century's War Series was begun by a Confederate contributor, General Beauregard. In the next number General Lew Wallace, of the Federal Army, will write of Fort Donelson. In January, Rear-Admiral Walke will give his reminiscences of the "Engagements of the Western Flotilla." Admiral Walke, it will be remembered, was commander of the Carondelet, which fought at Belmont, Fort Henry, Fort Donelson and elsewhere, and ran the batteries at Island Number Ten. Captain James B. Eads (who built the gun-boats) will contribute to the same number a paper on "Recollections of Foote and the Gun-boats." General Grant's "Shiloh" will appear in the February number, with a biographical sketch of General Albert Sidney Johnston, commander of the Confederate forces at Shiloh, who was killed in that engagement, written by his son, Colonel William Preston Johnston. This article includes an account of the battle from a Confederate point of view.

The Youth's Companion last December offered $3000, divided into eight prizes, for the best and second best boys', girls', humorous and adventure stories, the competition for which remained open until May. Upward of 6000 manuscripts were submitted from writers on both sides of the ocean. The prize stories will be published during the early part of next year,. New serial stories are also promised by J. T. Trowbridge, Mrs. Oliphant, Alphonse Daudet, Katherine S. Macquoid, Edgar Fawcett, Frank R. Stockton, etc., and the "Science and Education" department will be looked after by James Anthony Froude, Prof. Tyndall, Max Müller, Canon Farrar, T. Sterry Hunt, E. A. Freeman, Richard A. Procter, E. P. Whipple, James Payn, Edward Stanwood, and others. Thinking our readers may take interest in the names of the fortunate winners of the prizes, and theworks which gained them, we submit the list herewith. Boys' Stories: 1st prize, $500, Angelo J. Lewis, London, Eng. Title of story, "Better Than Victory."—2d prize, $250, Mary Bassett Hussey, Brazil, Ind. Title of story, "Davy." Girls' Stories: 1st prize, $500, Mrs. J. E. NOTES ON AUTHORS.

THE Boston Traveller is authority for the report that General B. F. Butler is about to publish a volume of reminiscences.

CARMEN SYLVA is about to bring out a new volume of poems, to be called "Mein Rhein." This book, which will be published at Leipsic, is illustrated by E. Dopler and other German artists.

VERNON LEE, the author of "Euphorion" and of the sketch of the Countess of Albany in the Famous Women Series, has written a novel with the title "Miss Brown." The real name of this author is Miss Violet Paget. She was born in France of English parents and has always lived on the Continent. During the winter she lives in Florence.

MR. RUSKIN'S proposed autobiography will be made up of a revised and enlarged collection of the scraps of personal reminiscence which have been given from time to time in Fors Clavigera. The author is now busy with the proof-sheets of "Cedi Enarrant," studies of cloud form, and "In Montibus Sanctis," studies of mountain form, both of which are excerpts, collected and completed from his "Modern Painters."

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

Kegan Paul. biography, while relying chiefly upon win's memoir, is supplemented by a careful ysis of her writings and study of the period hich she lived, with some particulars regardher last illness, never before in print. They also published "The Making of a Man," the late Rev. Wm. M. Baker, a sequel to is Majesty, Myself," issued uniform with lessed Saint Certainty;" and "Every-Day and Every-Day Morals," by George Leon-Chaney; an integesting collection of essays upon art and morals, juvenile literature and morals, literature and morals, industry and morals, business and morals, stage and morals, press and morals, and other interesting topics of the day.

LEE & SHEPARD have published their magnificent work on "Orchids," with twenty-four fine illustrations in color, drawn from nature by Harriet Stewart Miner; "One Year's Sketch Book," by Irene E. Jerome, forty-six full-page illustrations of the scenes and flowers of spring, summer, autumn, and winter, by leading artists; "My Lady's Casket, or, Flowers and Jewels for her Adornment," by Eleanor W. Talbot, with many original designs in colors; "Baby's Kingdom," designed and illustrated by Annie F. Cox, a unique and handsome volume, wherein may be chronicled by the loving mother the story of the events, happenings, and cunningness attending the progress of "my baby," as a memento of grown-up days: "The Mountain Anthem—The Beatitudes in Rhythmic Echoes," by Wm. C. Richards, illustrated by Miss L. B. Humphrey, bound in cloth and Golden Floral style; "From Greenland's Ley Mountains," Bishop Heber's missionary hymn, illustrated by Guilfoye and Garrett, bound in cloth and Golden Floral; also a new line of Golden Florals in silk, comprising "Nearer, My God, to Thee," "It was the Calm and Sileut Night," "Abide with Me," "Come into the Garden, Maud," "Curfew Must not Ring To-Night," and "Home, Sweet Home."

JAMES R. OSGOOD & Co. have now ready "Nathaniel Hawthorne and his Wife," by Julian Hawthorne, in two volumes, with steel portraitsand vignettes. The work gives the fullest accounts of Hawthorne's ancestry and family, his. boyhood, youth, courtship, and marriage, his travels and residence abroad, with facts and incidents in regard to the motives, and origin of his most famous works. They also have a limited edition of "The Light of Asia," by Edwin Arnold, with eugravings from photographs of Buddhist sculptures and frescoes, two thousand years old, illustrating scenes in the life of the hero of this poem; "How the Ends Met." by Susan Anna Brown, is a thoroughly practical and interesting account of how a family, reduced. in circumstances, contrived to live happily and comfortably upon a smaller salary; "The Literary Remains of the Late Henry James," edited, with an introduction, by William James, with portrait; "About People," by Kate Gannett Wells, a noteworthy book, treating, as it does, upon such subjects as "Caste in American Society," "Personal Influence," "The Transition of American Women," etc. "The Genius and Character of Emerson," edited by Frank B. Sanborn, which contains the many lectures delivered at the Concord School of Philosophy, by eminent authors: and critics, besides an historic sketch of the school-now in its seventh year-and pictures of Hillside Chapel and the Orchard House, and a new portrait of Emerson; and a new edition of "Artists of the Nineteenth Century," by Clara Erskine Clement and Laurence Hutton, fully revised to the present time of this valuable work, (two volumes in one,) containing two thousand biographical sketches of artists, with a large number of personal, historical, and artistic facts.

lessed Saint Certainty;" and "Every-Day Houghton, Mifflin & Co. have just published the third volume of the Gentleman's Magazine Chaney; an interesting collection of essays Library, entitled "Popular Superstitions and Traditions." Any one who knows how much curious anecdote the Gentleman's Magazine included in the volumes from 1731 to 1868, will understand that this book must be peculiarly attractive and valuable. With this appeared a new volume, by John Burroughs, entitled "Fresh Fields," containing articles mostly describing his impressions during a recent tour through England; Dr. Mitchell's "In War Time," which has appeared in the Atlantic Monthly, and attracted no little attention for its vigor and realism; "Tompkins and other Folks," a collection of short stories much above the average, by P. Denning, whose "Adirondack Stories" many readers remember with much satisfaction; a new volume, by Mr. Browning, entitled "Ferish-tah's Fancies," in a more sober vein than his tah's Fancies," in a more sober vein than his "Jocoseria," and brought out in uniform style with the edition of Browning which has been accumulating through many years on the catalogue of Houghton, Mifflin and Co., and their predecessors, and also in the style of the new seven-volume edition. Longfellow's "Hiawatha" is to be brought out in a school edition, with explanations of the Indian names, and with notes by a practical teacher. These aids, and the low price at which the work is put—thirty cents-will make it very available for school use. They promise some noteworthy books for next week. Dr. Holmes's Life of Emerson, for the series of American Men of Letters, cannot fail to be peculiarly valuable and attractive. Mr. Morse's Life of John Adams, in the series of American Statesmen; and Prof. Shaler's history of Kentucky, in the series of American Commonwealths, are surely books of positive and permanent worth. Johnson's work on Persia, completing his elaborate studies of Oriental Religions, is a prodigy of intelligent research and candid statement; and Miss Edith M. Thomas's poems come opportunely to reassure us that the ranks of American poets have received a genuine and welcome reinforcement.

WM. WOOD & Co. make the important announcement that they will issue shortly the "Reference Handbook of the Medical Science," which they have been for several years past organizing and arranging. It is designed that this superb work shall cover so wide a field, and embrace such a great variety of topics, as to make it of the greatest practical utility, not only to general practitioners, but also to those who are interested more particularly in special departments of medical knowledge. This work will consist of a collection of concisely written essays on all the more important topics belonging to the broad domain of medicine. Its subject matter will be alphabetically arranged, thus admitting of instant and ready reference. Kindred topics will be connected by the aid of numerous cross-references in such a manner that a person in search of information can scarcely fail to find everything he desires, and all the material which the work contains in relation to the subject under consideration. It is aimed to treat the topics in such a thorough manner that the reader will rarely, if ever, find it necessary to consult larger special treatises or monographs for the information of which he may stand in The number of those physicians who take an interest in the more purely scientific branches of medical knowledge is already quite large, and will undoubtedly increase as time goes on. It has, therefore, been thought advisable to devote considerable space to the more important topics belonging to the domain of anatomy, embryology, histology, physiology, physiological and pathological chemistry, pa thological anatomy, climatology, and medical botany. All these topics, as well as those belonging to the more directly practical branches of medical knowledge, such as general pathelogy and therapeutics, surgery, gyazcology, neurology, otology, ophthalmology, obsteries, etc., have been assigned to writers who are experts in their respective departments. Woodcut illustrations of the best character will be introduced wherever the authors themselves think that they will serve to elucidate the text. Special pains have been taken to secure as large a proportion of original cuts as possible. This work, which is edited by Dr. Albert H. Bock, will be completed probably in eight imperial octave volumes of about 800 double-columns pages each.

MR. J. W. Cross has now completed the editing of "George Eliot's Life, as Related in the Letters and Journal," and the book is passing through the press, but will probably not be paking the before the close of the year.

F. FISHER UNWIN, London, will publish a once a new novel by Miss Mathilda Blind, entitled "Tarantella." The plot of this novel of rather romance, is laid in 1845. The main indent takes place in Italy, and the scene is also ward transferred to Germany.

MR. W. H. MALLOCK'S new work, "Atherand the Value of Life," contains five studies a contemporary literature: "The Professor in Bulpit;" "Tennyson Under the Shadow! "George Eliot on the Human Destiny:" "Salural Religion;" "Atheistic Methodism."

The English courts have granted Lord Lynne an injunction restraining the publication of lather's correspondence. The whole edition of the "Vindication" of Lady Lytton has therefore been suppressed, except some stray advance copies sent out to newspapers for review, from which liberal extracts have already been published. There is a rumor that one of these has found its way to this country, and is to be reprinted.

The highest prize ever offered for a literary performance will be awarded in 1925 to the successful author of a simple biography. Fifty years ago, so it is reported, Gen. Aranschejeff, the friend and confidential adviser of the Emperor Alexander I., deposited in the Imperial bank of Russia the sum of 50,000 rubles, which is to be allowed to accumulate at interest till the 1st of December, 1925, when the enire amount—principal and interest—is to be handed over to the author of the best work on the life and reign of Alexander I.

T. FISHER UNWIN will publish almost immediately what promises to be a very interesting volume on Charles Dickens. It is from the pen of Mr. George Dolby, and tells the bstory of the final reading tours in Great Britain and America, during which Mr. Dolby acted as manager and travelling companion to Dickens. The book is written from an entirely inside point of view, for the author was more closely associated with Dickens than almost any one else during the last years of his life. It is full of anecdotes, and will contain much matter that has not seen the light before.

LIBRARIES AND READERS.

Chapters of suggestion and counsel on the subject of reading, the use of books and of libra-By WILLIAM E. FOSTER, Librarian of the Providence Public Library, and com-piler of the "Monthly Reference Lists."

Tomo, cloth, 50 cents.

Contents.—Some Hints on Right Reading; Correction of Aimless Reading; The Specializing of Reading, for General Readers; "Current Literature" and "Standard Literature;" Securing the Interest of a Community; "What may be Done at Home; How to Use a Library; Books, etc., on Reading.

"Should be in the hands of every one who wishes to make reading a means of culture as well as of entertainment. Not a few librarians can find in it suggestions which if followed will greatly inure to the benefit of the public they serve."—Good Literature.

"Mr. Foster's aim is to show how the aimless reader of the ordinary public library, the man or woman who 'wants a book,' but does not know what book, or even what sort of book, may be led to take a lively interest in books and the library. Here Mr. Foster speaks as one having authority, because in doing this very thing he has been most successful. His little book is to be recommended in the highest manner to all who seek to improve the quality of their reading, or who desire to give aid and advice to others."—Critic.

"No one, with limited resources, has done more to turn to account the collection under his charge, or shown greater activity and ingenuity in devising ways and means to stimulate reading, study, and research, and guide them in the proper direction. His chapters are valuable as exhibiting phase after phase of his perception of the conditions under which public libraries are now used, and found to be of service, by widely differing classes of the community. They are all sound, practical, and suggestive, and will-benefit parents, their elder children, and the author's fellow-librarians about equally."—Nation.

Consisting of full-page Photo-Engravings and some Three Hundred and Fifty Sketches, many of them by the artists themselves, of Pictures and Sculpture exhibited at the Royal Academy, Grosvenor Gallery, Royal Institute of Painters in Oil, and the Water-Color Societies in London in 1884. Descriptive Text by HENRY BLACKBURN. Large quarto, cloth, gilt top. Price, $12.00.

A full presentation of the very latest work in English art, making a sumptuous volume of great interest as well as beauty.

The Hundred Greatest Men.

Biographies of the One Hundred Greatest Men of History, with Portraits reproduced from Fine and Rare Steel Engravings. 8vo, cloth. Price, $6.00.

A General Introduction to the Work was written by Ralph Waldo Emerson; and Introductions to different Sections by Matthew Arnold, H. Taine, Max Muller, Noah Porter, A. P. Stanley, H. Helmholtz, J. A. Froude, and John Fiske.

"In the preparation of the present work an attempt has been made to separate the facts of civilization into classes, and to gather together in each class the portraits of the few great leaders who, from the beginning of history down to the present time, have been its representatives. In one of these classes appear Homer, Dante, and Shakespeare; in another, Alexander, Cæsar, and Napoleon; in another, Archimedes, Galileo, and Newton. In each class—Poetry, Art, Religion, Philosophy, History, Science, Politics, Industry—from fifteen to twenty portraits, arranged in chronological order, and each portrait accompanied by a carefully written biography."—From Preface.

The Historical Reference-Book.

Comprising: a Chronological Table of Universal History, a Chronological Dictionary of Universal History, a Biographical Dictionary. With Geographical Notes. For the use of Students, Teachers, and Readers. By Louis Heilprin. Crown 8vo, 579 pages, half leather. Price, $3.00.

As a book of compact reference this work is believed to possess considerable advantage in its arrangement over other books of the kind—reference being in one Part under dates and in another under countries or events—while every effort has been made to render it absolutely accurate. The compiler had many years' experience in the editorial department of the "American Cyclopædia" in verifying historical and biographical dates.

EDWARD EVERRTT HALE'S

A NARRAGANSETT CHRISTMAS.

Mr. Hale has spent a considerable part of every year in the Narragansett country for several years. The new back represents a party assembled there for the Christmas festivities, of some of the principal characters of his different series, particularly of those who met in his "Christmas in a Palace," a year ago. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

OUR CHRISTMAS IN A PALACE.

By the same author. 12mo, paper, 25 cents; cloth, $1.00.
"Mr. Hale is a capital story-teller. This volume is full of delightful stories, and the feast he gives as is a grand one."—Worcester Spy.

THE FORTUNES OF RACHEL.

By the same author. 12mo, paper, 25 cents; cloth, $1.00.

"A purely American story, original ail through, and Rachel is one of the pleasantest and satisfactory of heroines. She is a girl of the soil unspoiled by foreign travel and conventionalities. After surfeiting on romances whose scenes are laid abroad, it is delightful to come across a healthy product like this."—Journal of Commerce, New York.

GEORGE PARSONS LATHROP'S

TRUE

Just issued. 12mo. paper, 25 cents; cloth, $1.00.

A tale of North Carolina life, the scene being for the most part near Pamlico Sound. Mr. Lathrop in this stary has struck perhaps the richest vein of romance that American history affords, and the literary skill, and yet simplicity with which he improves his opportunity, are worthy of all commendation.

EDGAR FAWCETT'S RUTHERFORD.

"A notably manly and forcible story, surpassing his 'Ambitious Woman,' which stood for Mr. Fawcett's best with of fiction until this appeared."—Independent, N. Y.

"A novel that has in it qualities of brain and heart, and fine divination and poetic feeling. . . Few novels will insight one more than 'Rutherford.'"—Boston Traveller.

Melville, G: W. In the Lena Delta: a narrative of the search for Lieut.-Commander De Long; followed by an account of the Greely relief expedition and a proposed method of reaching the North Pole; ed. by Melville Philips. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1885 [1884]. 13+497 p., il. and maps. O. cl., $2.50.

The cruise of the Yeannette and its final destruction, are given but briefly, the elaborate narrative beginning with the retreat and the separation of the party under three dif-ferent commands. Melville tells his own story, already ferent commands. Melville tells his own story, already given to the public through the newspapers, but more in detail. It includes his life on the Delta, his search more in detail. It includes his life on the Delta, his search for De Long and Chipps, and the finding of the bodies of De Long and his party. It is a tale of heroic endurance, related with all the modesty of a truly brave man. Chief Engineer Melville went northward once more, in 1881, on the Thetis, with the Greely relief expedition. His description of the finding of the Greely party is a most thrilling one. The entire narrative, embraced in this volume, belongs to the story of one of the most important Arctic expeditions yet made. The author's proposed method of reaching the Pole, seems quite feasible, and is well worthy of attention. Embellished with many cuts and valuable mans.

The custom that prevails at North Adams, in the Rev.
T. T. Munger's church of having a special service each year in June for the children of the congregation, has been the occasion of these brief and simple sermons. The day is generally made a "festival of flowers," and the aim is to teach the young people the lesson they teach. This work was first published in 1883 and contained 8 discourses especially designed for the youngest members of the congregation. The four chapters added to the present (ad) edition, makes it, the author hopes, a fit prelude to "On the threshold"—a work designed for an older class of readers.

A sequel to "His majesty myself." The work was ready for publication when the author died. It continues the story of Theodore Thirlmore, the once popular incumbent of the Church of the Holy Oriflamme. He is shown in the opening chapters as a bitter, disappointed, and ruined man, having taken refuge from the world on his last possession, a bleak New England farm, from which harbor the sheriff is about to drive him forth. The time is just in the beginning of the late war, and a most opportune proposition is made to him to raise a regiment for the Northem case. He seems to find in this work, and the subsquast had lighting, a natural outlet to his fierce, energetic susue, is whole character undergoing a change for the bette, as softening under the harrowing sights of the context. The war is both "the making of a man" and of a women, a his his wife's dormant nature awakens under the stress of cumstances—both learning finally the lesson of matral be and forbearance.

Mr. Croker not only took a prominent part in public life in England for more than twenty years, but was also a literary critic of considerable fame; his caustic contributions to the Quarterly review were often thought to have been prompted by malice and even meaner motives, especially in the cases of Macaulay and Miss Martineau. To give a juster view of the man's hie and character than it has hitherto been possible to obtain is one of the objects which has prompted the publication of this objects which has prompted the publication of this voluminous work. Another object is to give the reading world the invaluable record of English and continental ing world the invaluable record of English and continental politics, and the graphic observations upon literature, secuety, and famous personages to be found in his letters and writings. Mr. Croker's personal recollections of George IV., his conversations with the Duke of Wellington, Sir Robert Peel, his witty and striking anecdotes of Byron, Southey, Talleyrand, Disraeli, and many others are only a few of the numerous features to be noted in these valuable memoirs. Letters and reminiscences abound of almost every famous person of the early part of this century. The volumes are handsome ones mechanically—paper, print, and binding being all that can be desired. The writer of "Paul Knex Pitman" and "Young Lord Penrith" has once more written a good old-fashioned novel of adventure, love, intrigue, mysterious disappearance, and happy ending. The scene is first laid on the Yorkshire or adventure, love, intrigue, mysterious disappearance, and happy ending. The scene is first laid on the Yorkshire coast, where the hero is carried away by the rising tide. Sixteen years later he appears as twenty years of age in an English village where he has been educated by a well-drawn rector. Jet-seekers had resoued him an 'kept him with them. He proves to be a nobleman's son, and marries a lord's daughter. The story is very well told. The work of jet-seeking is described in detail.

Mr. Owen Ambrose, an American artist, travelling in Ireland in search of an inspiration, is one of the heroes of this interesting novel. The heroine is a beautiful Irish girl of Venetian descent, who first figures as the ghost of an old ruin, and whose picture Ambrose afterward paints, losing his heart at the same time. The ending is a surprise, and the character of the heroine is charmingly worked out. Has less of the weird element in it than the majority of Julian Hawthorne's novels, and for this reason will probably be more popular with the majority.

One of the chief literary events of the season is this work. Not only does its subject recommend it, but the fact that it is written by Mr. Julian Hawthorne, a mm of gains himself, and probably the one of all others best able to appreciate his father's genius. The besis of the work is list-thorne's letters, Mrs. Hawthorne's letters, and letters but intimate friends and relatives to either. Every one will rejoice that the author disregarded his father's wish, that as biography of him should be written. It would have been mistortune if this delightful series of letters had been wisheld from the world. The beautiful family life they describe, with scarcely a flaw in it from beginning to est, is a bright contrast to some other "interiors" of the home of great writers offered us of late years. For the first time too, we learn through them of Mrs. Hawthorne's lowly character, and all the depths and contrasts of her besinais many-sided nature. As the letters were written only for the eyes of intimate friends, they are often quite frask is expression of opinion regarding literary consumpanis. No one should miss reading the work, if only to learn the a model biography is. The mechanical detaits, and a paper, print, and binding, are in rare good teste, as the letchings and portraits real embellishments. Fall index.

Scene laid in Germantown on the outskirts of Philadelphia. Gives excellent description of the hospitals in Philadelphia after the battle of Gettysburg, and of the workings of the Ladies' Sanitary Commission. Two love stories run through the plot—one ending happily, the other tragically, owing to the weakness of character of Dr. Wendell, who is a good piece of portraiture. Alice Westerley, a young widow who refuses to marry him, is also well drawn. The feeling in Eneland, and her sympathy with the Seuthern feeling in England, and her sympathy with the Southern armies, is made clear, and the effects in the lives of the characters are logical and natural.

ich forbids "the importation of copies or edins of foreign manufacture," "except by conit of the foreign author or his assigns," I will as follows: Considering that the enterable oks from the United Kingdom of Great Britbrought into the United States in 1882 were ned at $1,740,489, and paid duties to the ount of $435,122; and considering also that, mportation were to be restricted as per your : 5, no book-collector and no public or cole library in a nation of fifty millions would be weed to import a foreign book without exss permission of the foreign author or his perican assign;—considering all this, the proption seems too absurded discuss. Rest assured that while, according to my exrience, authors understand that their interests closely allied to those of publishers, and ile many of them have the pleasantest relaas with their publishers (including, humbly, self), they will never, as a body, be content h "as much [international] copyright as they get," unless that amount be consistent with en-handed justice. If it be desired to unite parties on an amicable basis, this should be pt in mind. The fault of your "comprose" bill is, that it proposes to secure to pubhers advantages which no other trade enjoys. is in the nature of sumptuary legislation. o injects into the copyright question conlerations of tariff which do not belong there. publishers wish to readjust the duties on raw sterial and the manufactured product, let them so-but not at the expense of authors.

G. P. LATHROP,
Secretary American Copyright League.

A SUGGESTION FOR TITLE-SLIPS.

A CORRESPONDENT of the London Bookseller rites:

"It is a common experience, that booksellers easked to recommend books suitable for very fferent purposes—e. g., for children of various res, for adults, for young men or women, for valids, etc., etc.-indeed, every possible age, x, and station has to be catered for. Now, hile there are many books which bear upon te face of them no doubt for whom or for what ey are adapted, there are also in the multiplicy now issued very many with whose purport is obviously impossible the bookseller can be quainted, particularly in the case of new boks, which he has had neither time nor oppormity to look at for himself, and before reviews ave appeared from which he may gather the esired information. My suggestion, therefore, , that publishers should print a slip, whereon ither they or the author should set forth the cope and purpose of the book, the particular lass of persons to whom it specially addresses self or is adapted for, and, where practicable, note the pith of an independent review. The rhole might be put in a dozen lines or less, and hould be attached by a gummed edge inside he first cover of every copy of the book, so s to be easily detached if desired by the purhaser. The cost of these slips would be inppreciable compared with the benefit conferred in the public, who would thus ascertain at a plance the nature of the work they were buying, while it would relieve the bookseller of all anxety of having recommended a possibly unsuitible book.'

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

- E. C. REYNOLDS has an excellent article on "Why Not an American Punch," in Lippincott's Magasine for December.
- G. P. LATHROP gives an interesting history of "Combination Novels" in the Atlantic Monthly for December.

The Boston Medical and Surgical Journal, one of the oldest medical periodicals in the United States, will hereafter be published by Cupples, Upham & Co.

PRINCIPAL J. C. SHAIRP writes a most readable article, full of interesting quotations, on the subject of "Friendship in English Poetry," in in the North American Review for December.

THE January number of the North American Review is an excellent one. It presents no very famous names among its contributors, but it offers a wide variety of unusually readable articles. The most interesting article to the literary reader is Frederic Harrison's brilliant and incisive discussion of "Froude's Life of Carlyle."

THE Christmas number of The English Illustrated Magazine is a sumptuous one in every respect. The illustrations are interesting in themselves, and are beautifully executed; and the text is varied, piquant, and refined. The engravings of the Gainsborough pictures are especially admirable. The drawings by Hugh Thomson which accompany Mr. Austin Dobson's poem are full of humor.

THE Phrenological Journal for January, 1885, will be a jubilee number, it being fifty years since the Fowlers began their phrenological work. It will contain a sketch of the introduction and growth of phrenology in this country, with new portraits of Drs. Gall, Spurzheim, and Combe, together with a history of the publishing business of the Fowler & Wells Co., with portraits of L. N. Fowler, O. S. Fowler, Samuel R. Wells, Charlotte Fowler Wells, Nelson Sizer, and many others, with biographical sketches.

THE Sun, a bi-monthly journal devoted to the subject of co-operation, enters a new series with the beginning of 1885. The issue for January and February, 1885, deals with the laws and principles of co-operation, and includes a portrait of the great apostle of the theme, Herbert Spencer. The next number of the Sun will be devoted to the reorganization of business, embracing articles upon consumption, production, and exchange. The views of the journal will be thoroughly practical, and the completed volume aims to form a good work of reference at the end of the year. C. T. Fowler, Topeka, Kan., is the publisher.

THE Publishers' and Bookbuyers' Journal is the title of a weekly record of current literature, the first number of which was published under date of November 15 by Weyman & Son, London. It is intended to be at the same time a popular and a trade publication. It will represent in the directest manner possible the interest of publishers, and will seek to bring their productions before the public at large. It will contain original reviews of the leading books of the week, and will also have a department of notes and news gleaned from the chief literary papers. The typography and general get-up of the journal (which is 11½x8 inches in size, 32 pages,) is in excellent taste.

tional inducement to encourage our foremost artists to contribute their best work for reproduction and publication four prizes were offered, consisting of a first prize of $1000, second prize of $500, third prize of $300, and fourth prize of $200, which were awarded to the four most popular designs by a number of dealers in art goods and connoisseurs invited for this purpose.

The first prize was awarded to Charles D.

Weldon, the well-known water-color artist, for design No. 6, representing a child's dream on Christmas eve. A charming little child, in its nightdress, sits on the carpet close to a rich rug, gazing attentively into the fire, watching the dream clouds as, rising and curling about the room, they resolve themselves into the shapes of fantastic fairies and weird spirits which hang gifts upon the Christmas tree; while Santa Claus, guiding his fleet-footed reindeer team, hastens to bring the little watcher his holiday gifts. This picture illustrates, in a singularly happy manner, a child's ideal of Santa Claus. The second prize was awarded to Will H. Low for design No. 17, a scene of the birth of the Saviour, representing "the Virgin Mother lying upon the ground, clasping in her arms the child Divine," while standing over them, and resting upon the clouds which occupy the entire centre of the picture, is a group of angels, the centre one of which is singing from a scroll held in her hands, while the four others are blowing trumpets. The third prize was awarded to Thomas Moran for design No. 3, depicting Christmas morning, one of this artist's characteristic landscapes, very strong in color effect. The fourth prize was awarded to Frederick Dielman for design No. 5, in which four children, each of whom is a separate and charming type of beautiful young innocence, peep out from a frame of holly.

AMERICAN PAYMENTS TO ENGLISH AUTHORS.

From London Athenaum.

PERHAPS the following facts may have an interest for English authors whose works are occasionally reprinted in America without their leave and without compensation. The other day I received a letter from a firm of Boston publishers asking me if I would ascertain the address of a certain English author whose books are published anonymously, because, wrote they, "we want to pay her something." Being naturally solicitous that this message of conciliation and justice should reach the author as speedily as possible, I enclosed a stamped unaddressed letter to him (or her) in a letter to his (or her) London publisher. I waited some little time for a reply, and not receiving any acknowledgment one way or the other, I wrote again to the London publisher. I said that I had ventured to trouble him with my former letter, which had reference to the payment of some money, because, at the moment, I knew of no better way of reaching the author, and that if my letter had not been forwarded, I might consider the propriety of publishing an advertisement in the Athenaum. This elicited a reply, saying, "The author is at present abroad, and will no doubt send an answer to your note if he considers one necessary; but having many similar ones [the italics are mine] from other people, he may not feel called upon to do so."

This last paragraph is so rich that I ask permission to submit it to your consideration. It appears to be a fact that there is at least one English author in existence who can bout receiving "many" letters having reference to the payment of American copyright money, and who can afford to ignore them. It is bardly of much interest to your readers to know that though acting as "literary agent" in Eagland for the Boston firm in question, I am no see answerable for what English books they pation than the man in the moon. I am as earnest as advocate of international copyright as ther honesty in this case leads me to hope they are: and whenever the opportunity has served design the past twelve years, I have done my much with them and others in America to min a the right of the English author to a fair means of compensation. Perhaps, after all, the Lorin publisher may have misjudged his dien I shall rest in hope. CHARLES EYRE PASCE

PROTECTION OF ENGLISH AUTHORS ON THE CONTINENT.

"IT is a fact not generally known," with London correspondent of Harper's Welly, "that from the whole of France and inly, where international copyright already com with us, nothing worth speaking about en reaches the pockets of the British author. In French publishers are much more gushing the the English, and will praise to the skies the li ary genius with whom they propose to dest but they will give him no pudding. After a infinity of detail has been arranged, it is a covered that the term allowed for publication (twelve months) has elapsed, and the fresh man takes the book for nothing. The lum does not trouble himself to go through 🛢 formula, but openly states that he can only the author 'the advertisement of publica and, unlike the Frenchman, he keeps his The German, it is only justice to say, per his promise to pay, but the payment is so that it is scarcely worth the trouble of rep tion and the expense of posting the proofs

NEW YORK CITY.—Mr. John Hovendon has ened a grand "Book Bazar" at 2 West 14th, with a full line of books suitable for Christis presents.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—William G. Perry, bookler and stationer, is dead.

SAN BUENA VENTURA, CAL.—R. A. Tanner, okseller and stationer, has sold out.

SPRINGFIELD, O.—Wright & Sharp, booksell-, have sold out to Barr & Pierce.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

Moses King, Cambridge, has in press a volume of poems by E. Yancey Cohen (Harvard, '81), entitled "Sir Cupid."

REMINISCENCES of fifty years of Washington life will be found in the volume which Sergeant-at-Arms Bassett, of the United States Senate, is preparing for the press.

E. J. HALE & Son desire us to call the attention of the trade to the fact that the price of "Katie" is $1.50, not $2.50, as was quoted in our list in the Christmas Number.

AUGUSTIN KNOFLACH, Tribune Building, New York, publishes a new method of learning the German language. The first three parts show that the exercises are well adapted to the wants of those studying without a teacher. The rules for pronunciation are especially good.

MR. HOWARD CHALLEN, 744 Broadway, N.Y., publishes two little books by Mrs. E. T. Corbett—"The Fairy of the Moonbeam, or, Karl's Queen Stories," and "Rustic Rhymes and Ballads." They are both clever in a way of their own, which is not so much literary as natural.

THOSE excellent and popular compilations, by Wm. Hand Browne, entitled "Heart Throbs of Gifted Authors" and "Witty Sayings of Witty People," which were published some years ago by F. W. Robinson, are now supplied to the trade by David McKay, 23 S. 9th St., Philadelphia.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will publish at once Lady Brassey's new book, "In the Trades, the Tropics, and the Roaring Forties." The author is said to have poured out her wealth on the illustrations, with which her work fairly bristles; eventhe maps and charts are bordered with pictures of scenes in the region.

THE REFORMED EPISCOPAL BOOK SOCIETY (Limited) of Philadelphia, has just issued a "Hymnal Companion to the Prayer-Book suited to the special seasons of the Christian year, and other occasions of public worship as well as for use in the Sunday-school and family," with accompanying tunes, compiled by James A. Moore, the harmonies revised by W. W. Gilchrist.

THE PRATT MANUFACTURING Co., 46 Broadway, N. Y., have published a gem of bookmaking, entitled "Antidote Against Melancholy: Compounded of Choice Poems, Jovial Songs, Merry Ballads, and Witty Parodies." The book is printed in the most careful and artistic manner on fine laid paper, and may be had gratis. For book-lovers and collectors they have gotten up a limited edition, of one hundred and twenty-five copies, on large Holland hand-made paper, which they offer at $3 each.

ROBERT CARTER & BROS. announce a new book by A. L. O. E., entitled "Life in the White Bear's Den," written as a pendant to her "Life in the Eagle's Nest," and describing the sufferings of the Moravian missionaries in their noble attempts to convert and civilize the Esquimaux; also "Among the Stars," a new book by the ever-popular Agnes Giberne; "Fathoms Deep," by Catherine Shaw; "The Septon Boys," an interesting book for young folks, by an anonymous writer; "The Children's Portion," by Alex. McLeod, and a new volume of sermons by Charles Spurgeon, entitled "Return, O Shulamite."

We learn from Appleton's Literary Bulletin that the second volume of Prof. McMaster's "History of the American People" is now well under way, and will probably be ready for publication early in 1885. Beginning where the first volume left off, in 1791, the second progresses to 1806, towards the close of Jefferson's administration. Three more volumes, Prof. McMaster thinks, will complete his great work, his purpose being to close with the opening of Mr. Lincoln's administration. The sixth and concluding volume of Bancroft's "History of the United States," it is confidently expected, will be ready this month, and will contain a new portrait of Bancroft on steel, specially engraved for this edition.

ROBERT CLARKE & Co., Cincinnati, announce for immediate publication a volume entitled "The Children-Out-of-Doors, A Book of Verses, by Two in One Home." This volume is composed of an attractive collection of some of the more recent productions of two widely-known and popular American poets, who choose to appear thus anonymously, though it is an "open secret" that the authors are John James Piatt, United States Consul at Cork, Ireland, and his wife, Mrs. S. M. B. Piatt. The introductory poem, which gives title to the book, is an appeal for homeless and destitute children. It may also be said that the intent and spirit of the collection are humane, and express strong sympathy for the poor and outcast children of humanity. However, several of the poems re-late to children "out-of-doors" literally in the happiest and most healthy way, with the tender radiance of home about them. The volume will make an attractive 16mo, bound in cloth. ($1.25.)

A GERMAN edition of Mr. Andrew Camerie's "Round the World" is soon to be published in Leipsic.

REMINGTON & SON, London, have published a little monograph, by Lady Pollock, entitled "Macready as I Knew Him," which is said to be a revelation of a side of the actor's life which has been quite too little considered.

An English publishing firm is said to be maturing a scheme for the issue of a large themerus of ecclesiastical etymology, which is being produced in Germany on a plan somewhat is lar to that of the English dictionary underwhat by the Clarendon Press.

BERNARD QUARITCH will publish a mesonial edition of Bewick's works in five royal occurs volumes, having made the necessary arrangements with the Messrs. Ward, of Newcasik, who purchased the woodcuts recently sold in last don by the executors of the late Miss Bewick.

HENRY FROWDE, of the Oxford Press has recently published a "Church Service Book in 1885," which, the London Publishers Grains thinks, will "prove to be a nevel and popular gift-book in the coming Christmas season, while, from another point of view, it will be welcomed by those who wish to make the Prayer Book intelligible to the young and we poor. The arrangement by which the moring and evening services are printed exactly is the order in which they are said or sung make the task of the worshipper simplicity itself; and it is surprising that Mr. Frowde has continue to keep the book within such a limited and one venient compass."

CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED STATE

Southern District of New York.

BELFORD, CLARKE & CO. et al.

The infringement of a trade-mark is a trespass upon the rights of the owner, by using its false representation that the wares of the infringers are those of the owner, for which an axis trespass on the case would lie at common law, in which all participants would be principals proper defendants. A Bill in Equity lies in this Court only on account of its preventive is and perhaps to save multiplicity of suits, as in case of the infringement of a patent—Railway Co., 105 U. S. 139.

The defendants Belford and Hart are the persons who are actively engaged in, and them principals in, all the infringement complained of. They are agents of the other Defendant apporation of Illinois, which ought to be proceeded against so far as it can be, and the Count in its discretion decline to proceed against these other Defendants if the Plaintiffs neglects proceed against that one. But the Plaintiffs have used all diligence in proceeding against corporation, and have only been put off in that by its efforts not to be found and held here. It is no reason therefore why the right to an injunction against these Defendants should set decided on its merits.

The case made is clearly within the former decision, Estes v. Williams, 21 Fed., In The matter of the Defendants' publication is different from that of the Plaintiffs', although of the same general class of juvenile reading and illustration. If put up in ordinary form a name without reputation, it would have to stand on its own merits as a literary and approduction. But the name, style and arrangement of the Plaintiffs' work is taken, and the utation and popularity of it thereby appropriated. An ordinary purchaser would be very guided by the name and style of the publication. It is not bought generally for what is known to be in it, but for what is to be found in it. The standard would be expected to come spatially that of the former publications of the same name, and the character of that would be principle relied upon. This name is nothing of itself apart from the work to which it has been applied the Orators and those upon whose rights they stand. It is quite clear that the name and splet the work are adopted for the advantage they give, and that taking this advantage is injurious the Orators.

The motion for Preliminary Injunction is granted against the Defendants, Belford & Est

NOTES IN SEASON.

A. C. Armstrong & Son will publish early in January, by arrangement with the English publishers, (Macmillan & Co.,) Edmond Gosse's edition of the works of Gray, in four volumes. The work will be illustrated with portraits.

© D. LOTHROP & Co. have just issued "Tales of the Pathfinders," by Arthur Gilman, illustrated by Robert Lewis—romantic chapters from history, detailing the experiences of some of those who left the Old World to find and possess the New.

FOWLER & WELLS Co. have just issued a new edition, in one volume, of James Parton's little tracts. "Does it Pay to Smoke?" and "Will the Coming Man Drink Wine?" under the title of "Smoking and Drinking." Mr. Parton furnishes a preface to this new edition.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will publish shortly the final volume of Taine's "History of the French Revolution." The translation has been made by Mr. John Durand, who is well known for his translation of former works by M. Taine. Mr. Durand is now revising the proof sheets.

SCRIBNER & WELFORD have just received the new edition of Lord Hervey's "Memoirs of the Reign of George II.," a work of the greatest interest to the student of court life and manners, but which has been so long out of print and so difficult to obtain, that it is comparatively unknown to the present generation.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish early next year "Mining Camps: a Study in American Frontier Government," by Charles Howard Shinn, a portion of which appears as No. 12 of the second series of the Johns Hopkins University Studies, under the title of "Land Laws of Mining Districts." The appendix contains numerous textual examples of the laws in question.

D. APPLETON & Co. publish this week, "Deldee; or, the Iron Hand," another novel by Florence Warden, the author of "The House on the Marsh," the heroine of which is a little nameless waif adopted by a rich family; a new edition, revised to date, of "Appleton's Hand-Book of Winter Resorts for Tourists and Invalids;" and the seventh part of Admiral Porter's novel, "Allan Dare."

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish at once "A New Year's Masque, and other Poems," by Edith M. Thomas. Although this book is published on the eve of Christmas, it is specially appropriate to the season, and will be eagerly expected by those who have watched Miss Thomas's career. The mechanical features of the book render it conspicuously beautiful. The cover design is unique and singularly attractive, at a time even when bindings are specially noticeable.

SAMUEL CARSON & Co., San Francisco, issue this week a work entitled "With the Invader—Glimpses of the New Southwest," by Edwards Roberts, which deals with the picturesque features of New Mexico, Arizona, and Northern Old Mexico, and gives a description of California's most popular resort, Santa Barbara. The work is fully illustrated by a series of original en-gravings by Lelia C. Chamberlain, made from sketches by J. Harrison Wright, Mary E. Ingalsbe, Peter Moran, Henry R. Poore, and Edmond H. Garrett. They have also just ready a novel entitled "The Squatter and the Don," by C. Loyal. The scene of the story is laid in the southern part of California, and the characters are drawn from the various classes that there meet, sometimes in conflict. The native California Don on his inherited domain encounters the trials and vicissitudes incident to unsettled titles through defective land laws, while the Squatter, in misguided reliance on the laws of Congress, does, and suffers, injustice. The scene shifts across the continent, by way of San Francisco, and a glimpse is given of society in New York and Washington as seen through California spectacles. Incidentally the sufferings of Southern California from the non-construction of the Texas Pacific Railroad, and the causes that prevented it are touched upon.

Dr. Furness says that more than fifty years ago it came to him in reading the accounts of the resurrection, "that what the guard at the sepulchre mistook for a figure alighting from heaven, and the women believed to be an angel, was no other than Jesus Himself." This interpre-tation of the scriptures he has told many times, and now relates it again, not only because the subject possesses an inexhaustible attraction for him, but because he is able to throw new light upon it.

The Inblishers' Weekln.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

DECEMBER 27, 1884.

PUBLISHERS are requested to furnish title-page proofs and lyance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in e lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of the book published should be forwarded, to insure corrects in the final entry.

The trade are invited to send "Communications" to the iter on any topic of interest to the trade, and as to which interchange of opinion is desirable. Also, matter for Notes and Queries "thankfully received.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from e which, as men do of course seek to receive untenance and profit, so ought they of duty to deavor themselves by way of amends to be a ly thereunto."-LORD BACON.

THE END OF THE YEAR.

THE trade, with the rest of the community, is reached the end of another year, and, in comon with other lines of business, is not able to ingratulate itself over as satisfactory a year as uld be wished for. Business in almost all anches seems to have reached during the past ar the lowest point both as to price and amount sales, and the book-trade has not been exnpt from the general depression. In fact, it is most surprising that, considering that to many tople books are a luxury simply, the trade has me so well as it has during the year past. Lithas been done in the way of legislation to elp matters at all; the country still lacks a meral bankruptcy bill, and the trade a measure international copyright, as a basis of reasonale business certainty in dealing in foreign oks. The political agitation of the last fall is, of course, contributed its share to interfere ith business, and it has, in fact, been a year in hich almost all conditions of commercial noniccess have come together.

The extraordinary natural prosperity of this ountry, however, gives it a recuperative power hich is the more sure to be exerted the lower e point of depression. The book business just be peculiarly benefited by the great fact at the population and wealth of the country ecessarily increase under its natural conditions, nd that education spreads even beyond the proortion of the increase of population. Thereore, when the business is less and less good, here is nevertheless, as a constant tendency to sitigate the depression, a greater and greater umber of people ready to become book-buyers. 'he outlook for the new year, despite the existag elements of depression, has many elements f encouragement, and we hope to present at the nd of 1885 a much better record than 1884 has een able to show us.

WE call the attention of the trade to the adrertising page of the Literary News, printed elsewhere in this number. We believe thoroughly that one of the best means of increasing trade is through such a publication as the Literary News presents, and the circular which we offer gratuitously to the trade, so far as they will undertake to distribute it, may easily be made the means of obtaining a circulation for an imprint edition of this attractive little paper without cost to the local book-seller himself, or of helping up his general business by obtaining individual subscribers who will, through the information the News offers them, become all the better customers for him. 'We trust the trade with the new year will not fail to give this plan a trial.

THE SALE OF BOOKS.

From the British and Colonial Stationer and Printer.

THERE is no department of business which requires more common-sense than the publishing and sale of books. The mere act of issuing a book is very simple. The setting of the type, and stereotyping it (if more than one edition may be required), the paper, presswork, binding, and royalty to the author, constitute the first expenses. The advertising, distribution, etc., may be large or small, according as sales may war-That a demand may be created, even if the work supplies a want, is self-evident.

The fact is, that nowadays there are few books that can be regarded as really essential. The author presumes so, and acting on the pre-sumption writes the book. The publisher counts on a given number of people wanting such a book, and issues an edition accordingly. It is then necessary, in order to insure the author and publisher against a loss, to convince a sufficient number of buyers that they need the book, and succeed also in inducing more than enough to purchase than will defray expenses, and this constitutes the profit of book publishing. Failing in doing this entails a loss on both the author and publisher.

It is common-sense for the publishers to create a demand which publishers may supply, and to make it the interest of booksellers to keep a stock, and interest such of their customers as may want books on the subject upon which the work treats, or the author may be known to be competent to write upon. To justify this a sufficient margin of profit must be guaranteed. The retail price ought to be definite, and the profit sat-isfactory. The publisher ought to have backbone enough to refuse selling to drapers and others who cut under the retail price, or even to the cut-throat booksellers, who are so foolish as to do the same. Protection to those who buy to sell again is absolutely necessary

It is common-sense for a bookseller to decline purchasing a book which may be sold by a neighbor and rival at less than he pays for it, or at so small a profit as not to warrant a risk of laying out his money upon it. It is commonsense to lay in a stock of such books which yield a living profit, but no others, notwithstanding the pressure that may be applied by either travellers or customers.

Perhaps the best thing for publishers to do would be to make their retail prices the same as the present wholesale rates at which their books are generally sold, and from these prices to make a small discount, and then no one could afford to sell at less than retail price. They should also refuse to sell to any house not recognized as booksellers or to those who cut under the regular price. Booksellers should deal only with such publishers as conform to this principle, and do all they can to promote the sales of books on which they can make a reasonable profit, keeping no others in stock. Live and let live ought to be the motto of the bookselling trade.

NEW YORK FREE CIRCULATING LIBRARY.

From The N. Y. Tribune.

THE fourth annual report of the trustees of the New York Free Circulating Library shows gratifying results. The institution is young and still comparatively small. The number of volumes in the main library at No. 49 Bond St. being only 10,424, but the number of readers is now 13,671, an increase of 2,170 over the number of last year, and the circulation, which was 81,233 last year has this year been 95,296. This is equivalent to over nine drawings of every book in the library, during the year; and yet in that time only three books have been lost. library is open on Sundays from 4 to 9 p. m., and the average number of books given out on that day is 133. In the class of books drawn there is a slight improvement. The percentage of fiction and juvenile books drawn last year was 70, this year 68. The reading-room was open 352 days in the year, and the total number of readers was 30,190, the daily average being 86. The Ottendorfer Branch Library, at 135 Second Ave., the gift of the late Mrs. Ottendorfer, was received by the trustees on June 10. It has a fine building with accommodations for 15,000 volumes, a large and well-lighted reading-room, and a smaller room for students consulting books of reference. The branch library has 4,784 books in English, and 4035 in German. The only in English, and 4035 in German. thing lacking is an adequate fund for the current expenses and growth of the library. The expenses of the year were $7,986.35. The subscriptions amounted to $6,646.76. The trustees invite every one who may be interested in this enterprise to visit the library and see how it is conducted and used. At the same time they appeal for gifts of money, that they may enlarge their work and extend its benefits as far as pos-The treasurer is J. Pierpont Morgan, No. 23 Wall St. The membership dues are only $10 annually, and as the society is incorporated members incur no liability. Applications for membership may be sent to William Greenough, Secretary New York Free Circulating Library No. 49 Bond St.

THE Magazine of Art for January has a striking frontispiece from Romeo and Juliet, engraved from the original drawing by Frank Dicksee. A special paper is given to Mr. Dicksee's portfolio of illustrations to this play, which has just been published by this house. Madeline A. Wallace-Dunlop begins a series of practical papers on "Some Oriental Brass Work," illustrated with some excellent examples of the art she describes. Miss Cartwright treats of a famous gem, a cornelian intaglio, once the property of Nero, in her paper on the "Romance of Art." There is also, besides some other interesting matter, the first of an illustrated series on "Early Sculptured Stones in England," by G. F. Brown, and the first of another series on "Profiles from the French Renaissance," by A. Mary F. Robinson. The first profile is "Francis I., Architect and Amateur." The number closes with some very live notes on American and foreign art.

N Sunday, the 21 inst., a fire broke out at 25 k Place. New York City, occupied mainly by teiger & Co. and other publishing and booking firms. It was a fierce battle for an hour re the flames were finally subdued, and then as found that the second and third floors had been burned almost through, while the fourth was more or less damaged. The flames did not burn into the first floor, but that part of the building was thoroughly deluged with water. The fire apparently originated from some unknown cause, in the store of E. Steiger & Co., on the second floor. Their stock was damaged about $10,000. The fire then made its way to the floor above, into the place of Baird & Dillon, publishers, bookbinders, etc. Their stock was damaged to the extent of about $5000; the stock of Machen & Smith, book dealers, who have a room immediately back of Baird & Dillon's, on the same floor, was damaged about $1000. The office of the Thompson Bank-Note Reporter is also on this floor, but was not injured by either fire or water.

The work will include the various acts relating to the protection of inventions, designs, trade marks; literary and musical compositions, dramatic performances; engravings, sculpture, paintings, drawings, and photographs.

THE London Athenaum for December 27 contains a series of articles on the Continental Literature of the Year. Among them are Belgium, by MM. E. de Laveleye and P. Fredericq; Denmark, by M. V. Petersen; France, by M. F. de Pressensé; Germany, by Hofrath Zimmermann; Italy, by Signor R. Bonghi; Poland, by Dr. Belcikowski; and Spain, by Señor Riaño.

HERM. J. MEIDINGER, Berlin, has begun the publication of a most interesting volume, entitled "Das Buch von der Weltpost-Entwickelung und Wirken der Post und Telegraphie im Weltverkehr," by V. Veredarius. The work, though treated from a scientific point of view, contains a large amount of matter interesting to the general public, and particularly to philatelists. The work will be completed in ten parts, and contain thirty full-page and a number of smaller illustrations-wood-cut, autotype, lithograph, and heliogravure.

KEGAN PAUL, TRENCH & Co. have just issued a small volume of "Rhymes à la Mode," by Mr. Andrew Lang. Many of the verses included in it have appeared in various periodicals, but none has hitherto been put forth in book form in England. The same publishers have north for immediate publication Mrs. Sammi at count of her experiences in the Southa Aste accompanied Major-General Sartorius de la his expedition to Suakim, she is able to the much about camp life as well as about the paple and country visited.

DR. VLADIMIR PAPAFAVA, of Zara, Dalmaria we learn from the Nation, is compiling a bit raphy of international law, public and print which he desires to make as complete a posble. He therefore appeals to all those the have published books, pamphlets, or ever me articles upon any topic of international in, send him the exact title of their work, which place and date of publication; and if the works have been reviewed in any journels magazines, he desires a list of such men, with exact references to the journals a with they appeared (number and page).

THE

1876-1884.

NOW READY: Author-and-title Alphabet.

4to, pp. 444.

The new AMERICAN CATALOGUE includes titles of nearly 20,000 books, recorded as issued between July 1, 1876, and June 30, 1884, entered in the first part by author and title, and in the second by subject. The work, when completed, will exceed 600 pages; the price, to present subscribers, is $10; after publication, it will be probably $12 or $15. The edition is limited to 1250 copies, and no plates are made.

Less than 50 copies remain unsold of the original AMERICAN CATALOGUE itself, now priced at $40. The price will probably be raised at an early date to $50 or $75 on the few remaining copies.

Five-yearly supplements hereafter will enhance the value of the original work and of the first supplement. Every owner of a private library [and book-collector, as well as every book-seller and librarian, should have this invaluable key to American books.

Bibliographical Publications.

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY.

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, established in 1872, with which was incorporated the American Literary Gazette and Publishers' Circular (established in 1852), by purchase from Mr. George W. Childs, is recognized as the independent representative of the publishing and bookselling interests in the United States.

The central feature of the paper, that makes it an indispensable aid to the trade, to libraries, and to literary people, is its Bibliographical Department. Every possible facility of reference is afforted by a combination of methods which records the books, by the week, the month, the season, and the year, under the author, the publisher, the title, the subject, and the class. It is acknowledged that no other journal, at home or abroad, supplies as practical and satisfactory a record of the publications of its country.

The bibliographical department includes:

- 1. A "Weekly Record" of all new American publications and reprints, giving their full titles (according to the rules of American Library Association), with place and date of publication, publisher's name, size, number of pages, and price; and also descriptive notes of books received. This first and practically the official record is arranged alphabetically by the authors or titles, and for ready reference is placed in the same accessible position in each number.
- 2. A weekly "Order List," being brief-title entries, with prices, of the "Weekly Record," arranged alphabetically by the publishers. The object of this list is to present at a glance the simultaneous issues of certain publishers, and to save time in the making up of orders.
- 3. A monthly "Index to the Weekly Record," being short-title entries, with the publisher's name and the size and price, arranged alphabetically by the authors, with references from the titles or catchwords, and from the snijects. With each entry is given also the number of the "Weekly Record" containing the full-title entry and note.
- 4. A monthly "Class Synopsis," grouping the works of the month under such heads as Biography, Description, Education, Fiction, Fine Arts, History, Law, Literature, Medical Science, Physical and Mathematical Sciences, Poetry and the Drama, Political and Social Science, Theology and Religion, etc.
- 5. A semi-annual classified list of Forthcoming Publications, given in the Spring and Fall Announcement numbers, in which also the announced books are more fully described under the name of the publishers, arranged alphabetically.
- 6. An annual Index to the books of the year, advertised by the more prominent publishers in the so-called Annual Summary Number, which generally is published in the last week of January. In this number is also given a classified summary of the more prominent publications of the year.
- 7. Regular Lists of the Season, published as follows: A complete priced catalogue of Educational Books, in July; a priced list of the Holiday Books and prominent Juvenile Books of the year, in November; a supplementary list of new Educational Books, February; a list of Guide and Summer Books, in May.
- 8. Quarterly lists of the Publications of the U. S. Government.
- 9. Semi-monthly lists of the more prominent New English Books.
- 10. Special Bibliographies. The timely bibliography, now in course of publication, is "Literary Property: a catalogue of books and authors relating to literary property (copyright, international copyright, and kindred subjects), by Thorvald Solberg.

The Literary Department includes comprehensive intelligence as to books forthcoming and publishing movements, at home and abroad, gathered with the aid of representatives in the cities; editorial discussions on book and true subjects, as copyright, postal questions, book production and manufacture, etc.; origini contributions and representative extracts as like topics; topical "cues" or references to bidingraphical sources or courses of reading and study; journalistic notes; business note like any and trade notes, etc. $3.20 per 100, 100 cents per number.

THE LITERARY NEWS.

An Eclectic Review of Current Literature. Philished monthly, and containing the bases news concerning books and authors: less of new publications; reviews and critical carments; characteristic extracts; sketches and anecdotes of authors; courses of realing; bibliographical references; prominent topics of the magazines; prize questions on their books and other literary subjects, etc., etc.

The Literary News, since its establishment under the name of The Literary Bulletin, in this, has passed through many transformations in appearance and method before acquiring the fistinctive features which have given it a character of its own, and which have become so familiate to thousands of readers. In substance it is been the same since its inception—"a month's record of current literature;" but while primaring fulfilling its mission in the interests of the booktrade, it has since the establishment of the Piblishers' Weekly, which now so thorough; are that ground, aimed more directly to under wants of readers and students.

Its plan is to present each month a full sent of current literature, by means of brief renes and notices, sketches of authors, lists of boots of the month, etc. The reviews and book-noise are confined to the best books of the day, and are quoted only from recognized literary journal. Their selection is made with an aim not merely to guide by a praise of books, but to awake a interest in subjects worth studying and author worth knowing, by giving what throws most 🔯 both on authors and books in their relation to 12 and literature. The entertaining element # chiefly the Prize Questions, of which two or ince are given almost every month, and the "Lima" Miscellany." Of special interest to the statest are the "Cues," which give (1) references to sources of reading on topics of the day; (2) a classification of the magazine contents; (1) Ref. erences to the latest authority, as soon as recor nized, on any subject of general interes; 4 references to bibliographies of subjects of general ral interest, to approved reading-courses, and w anything written in the interest of reading and study.

A complete index, by authors, titles, or spicts, makes the annual volumes accessible for permanent reference. $1 per year.

THE LIBRARY JOURNAL,

>fficial Organ of the American Library Association. Edited by CHARLES A. CUTTER, Librarian Boston Athenæum.

The Library Journal was established in 1876 y the co-operative efforts of the leading libraians on both sides of the Atlantic. Its chief bject is to be a practical help to the every-day administration of both large and small libraries, and to effect a saving by enabling library work be done in the best way, at the lowest cost, The Journal especially meets the needs of the maller libraries, offering them the costly experience and practical advice of the largest. refraining from doing imperfectly what is done so well by the several journals specially devoted to antiquarian or purely historical interests, the Library Journal is enabled to give its chief at-tention to modern bibliography and current literature, as represented particularly in its departments of "Bibliography" (proper), "Library Economy and History," and "Anonyms and Economy and History," and "Anonyms and Pseudonyms." Published monthly, $4 per year; 40 cents per number.

INDEX TO PERIODICALS,

Co-Operative Index to Current Numbers of Leading Periodicals. Edited by W. I. FLET-CHER. Supplement to the Library Journal.

The suggestions for the co-operative indexing of current periodicals, submitted by Mr. Poole and Mr. Fletcher, and also by Mr. Stetson, in the January (1883) number of the Library Journal, have met with such prompt action on the part of interested librarians, that Mr. Stetson's monthly plan has already gone into operation, and in such a manner as to prepare the way for Mr. Poole's annual and quinquennial continuations. It may be safely announced that both plans will be thoroughly tested.

INDEX MEDICUS.

A monthly classified record of the current medical literature of the world; compiled under the supervision of Dr. John S. Billings, Surgeon U.S.A., and Dr. ROBERT FLETCHER, M.R.C.S., England.

The Index Medicus, established in 1879, records the titles of all new publications in Medicine, Surgery, and the collateral branches, received during the preceding month. These are classed under subject headings and followed by the titles of valuable original articles upon the same subject, found, during the like period, in medical journals and transactions of medical societies. The periodicals thus indexed comprise all current medical journals and transactions of value, so far as they can be obtained.

The Index Medicus is published monthly at $10 per annum, and supplements all the leading medical journals (American and foreign) as a current guide and general index to all.

THE AMERICAN CATALOGUE

Of Books in Print and for Sale (including Reprints and Importations), July 4, 1876. 2 vols. 4to, pap., $40; hf. mor., $44.

The American Catalogue compiled by F. Leypoldt and Lynds E. Jones, aims to present, for the first time, all the bibliographical featuresof the books in the American market, arranged in the first volume alphabetically by both authors and titles, and in the second volume alphabetically by subjects. Over nine hundred publishers are represented, among whom is a great number of the smaller publishers and publication societies, of whose books it has hitherto been almost impossible to keep track; and the two volumes aggregate 1400 large quarto double-column pages. containing over 125,000 entries. As it was impracticable to bring the body of the work downto a later date than July, 1876, without further delaying its appearance, an appendix has been added to the first volume, containing the publications of most of the leading houses issued subsequently to that date, and an index to this appendix is given in each volume. As a further aid, a list of bibliographies is prefixed to the second volume to assist the student in prosecuting his researches beyond the province of the catalogue proper. These two lists serve to bridge over the interval elapsing during the compilation and publication of the work, and thus practically remedy a defect inherent in all such publications.

The catalogue thus forms the only approximately complete guide in existence to the American books of the day, so arranged as to make reference easy from whatever direction the inquiry may come, whether from that of the author, or the title, or the subject. It not only furnishes the desired information about any particular book of which the consulter is in search, but shows what others there are by the same author, or on the same subject in which he is interested. To the bookseller, therefore, it is valuable both in filling orders and in stimulating business; to the librarian, in supplying gaps and proportioning his collection; and to all who are practically concerned with books, in furnishing information which nowhere else is obtainable by so convenient a method, if obtainable at all. Two volumes, unbound (folded), $40; half morocco, $44.

THE AMERICAN CATALOGUE,

Covers all books recorded between July 1st, 1876, and July 1st, 1884, and includes titles of over 18,000 books. Its practical value as an everyday working tool will almost exceed that of the original CATALOGUE. It will be delivered to subscribers either in two parts, the first including author and title-entries, the second, subjectentries, or complete, as may be desired. The first part (including author and title-entries) is now ready for delivery. The second part will be issued early next year. The edition will be limited to 1250 copies and no plates will be made.

Price to subscribers, $10; after completion, probably $12 or $15.

THE PUBLISHERS' TRADE-LIST ANNUAL.

This volume is indispensable to any one that has any interest in the purchase or sale of books. It contains:

- 1. THE PUBLISHERS' TRADE-LISTS.—These are the latest catalogues of American publishers, arranged alphabetically by the names of the publishers.
- 2. THE EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE. (For description see below.)
- 3. Annotated List of the Books of the Year.—A complete reprint of the Publishers' Weekly full title Records (inclusive of all the descriptive notes) from July 2, 1881, to June 30, 1882.
- 4. COMPLETE INDEX TO THE BOOKS OF THE YEAR.—In order to facilitate reference to the above list, it is accompanied by a full index by which every book on record can be found, whether it is looked for under author, title, or subject. Numerous cross-references are also added to facilitate the finding of books on similar subjects.

Large octavo. Price, $1.50; postpaid, $2. With "Duplex Index," 50 cents extra.

THE AMERICAN

EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE.

The Educational Catalogue, established in 1870, is published annually in the Educational Number of the Publishers' Weekly, and subsequently in "The Publishers' Trade-List Annual." It includes a price-list of all the text-books in use in the United States, arranged alphabetically by author's or editor's name, and a detailed subject-index, referring from each specific subject to authors of books on that subject, so that the advantages of both a finding list for the trade and a class catalogue for the use of schools are combined. Price, separately, 25 cents.
